The World Question His Heart Cut Out To Live 100 Years Who Understands Money?

By Arthur Brisbane

THE WORLD question is: "What is Germany's condition?"

The second question: "What would happen to the world, if German industry and finance should collapse?"

That probably will not happen, although German effort to borrow $500,000,000, to bolster the Reichsbank, shows how difficult the situation is, even after President Hoover's energetic action temporarily stopping payments under the Young plan.

You remember, perhaps, that this column has often advised against buying foreign bonds, indiscriminately; an investment nearer home is safer in such times as these.

Some, that preferred foreign investment, tempted by higher interest rates, or glowing salesmanship circulars, will realize, presently, if they have not done so already, that the warning given here was needed.

Those that know anything about finance have known for years that Germany could not fulfill the terms of the Young plan. Germany knew she could not possibly live up to the terms of the plan, on the very day that she signed.

What Germany wanted was to get rid of foreign soldiers, French, English, and some of ours, holding possession of German soil, at German expense. She would have signed anything to get rid of them, she did sign, and got rid of them. Now she gets rid of the Young plan.

Cotton dropped $1.50 a bale yesterday. Wheat went to a new low price. Senator Capper wants to know how farmers can afford to pay higher freight rates, in case the Interstate Commerce Commission consents to them.

Wall Street yesterday was like the old Canadian lady, who used often to say: "I tell my husband I don't know what to tell him." Wall Street didn't know what to tell itself yesterday.

Another racketeer killing in New York city emphasizes, horribly, the brutality and bitter hatred that inspire these killings. Carmello Liconti, racketeer connected with the Brooklyn Barbers' and Longshoremen's Union, was the victim. His throat had been slashed, the head almost severed from the body, and his heart had actually been cut out.

Human nature develops hideously, when contempt for law becomes universal, as it has done recently in the United States, when officials supposed to enforce the law share the profits of law-breakers, and fear of punishment is removed.

John D. Rockefeller says he hopes to live 100 years and his fellow citizens hope that he will. He has rendered one great service, proving the foolishness of unrestricted competition, the most wasteful thing in the world.

And, having accumulated hundreds of millions, he spends them usefully for science and education. The people would like to see him live to 100 YEARS, except that it would not amuse him.

Luigi Cornaro's career proves that men, to some extent, can control their length of life. Told by doctors and by himself that he had only a short time to live, he said he would see about that, and did. He experimented carefully with his diet, and wrote his book, Discorsi Sulla Vita Sobria, when he was 92 years old, mounted his horse without help for a daily ride when past 90, wrote to the archbishop: "I had to live to be 95 to learn that the world was beautiful.

He died at the age of 98.

He took 12 ounces of solid food, and 15 ounces of light Italian wine every day. Mr. Rockefeller omits the wine.

The world's different money situations are strange. Germany begs for credit, to keep her industries alive. We respond with $100,000,000, which isn't difficult, for we have so much money we don't know what to do with it.

In Wall Street yesterday, money lent as low as one-half of one per cent a year, on first class acceptances Stock Exchange loans were at one and a half per cent, private bankers lent at one per cent.

Who understands finance? NOBODY.

Senator Borah tells Collier's Weekly, out today, that cancelling war debts is dangerous, "the sums belong to the American taxpayer." And if these debts are cancelled, Senator Borah says there must be "some

MOB STONES POLICE IN STRIKE

Crowd Breaks Through Ropes in New Outbreaks at Central Falls

Central Falls, R. I., July 10—New rioting broke out among 1000 strikers at the General Fabrics Corporation plant this afternoon.

Rocks were showered at the police guards and the crowd burst through ropes in a surge toward the mill in an attempt to get at a dozen loyal office workers and janitors who were inside. Riot calls were sounded by the local and State police.

Two police commissioners were inside the plant, planning safe conduct for the workers, when the disorder began.

Central Falls, R. I., July 10—Federal and state authorities took action against two Communist leaders of the mill strike here today as strikers clashed with police in new disorders.

At Pawtucket, meanwhile, police guards were set at the homes of three mill officials who feared violence to themselves and families.

William P. Murdoch, 2L national secretary of the National Textile Workers' Union, which is directing the strike at the silk mill of the General Fabrics Corporation, was arrested in Pawtucket on a federal deportation warrant. He was held without bail.

Miss Ann Buriak, 24, blonde organizer for the union, was sentenced to a month in jail and fined $200 for throwing pepper in the eyes of a mill foreswoman.

COURTHOUSE STORMED

A crowd of 800 strikers stormed the courthouse when she was sentenced and was driven back after a sharp clash with police. The guards used force but there were no casualties. They were jeered and booed.

Murdoch, who directed the woolen mill strike at Lawrence, Mass., several months ago, was arrested in union headquarters by Chief Inspector Wilfred H. Wadsworth of Pawtucket on orders of Boston immigration authorities.

He was turned over to William

WORLD LINER, FREIGHTER AGROUND

President Hayes on Vineyard Sound Shoal; British Vessel Hits Peaked Hill Bar

The Dollar Liner President Hayes and the British freighter Crandon missed their bearings in the heavy fog off Cape Cod today and drove aground.

The President Hayes piled up on Shovelful shoal, off Monomoy point, at the entrance to Vineyard sound, while the Crandon went ashore on dangerous Peaked Hill bar.

MOJAVE TO RESCUE

Bruins of the most dangerous kind prowl the President Hayes, the coast guard cutter Mojave, which went to the aid of the Crandon, first to ground, was rushed to the assistance of the liner.

The latter, in command of Capt. O. A. Pierson, with a crew of 145 and no passengers, was said to be in the midst of vicious tide rips which were buffeting her severely.

The freighter on the other hand was aground on a sandy bottom in 14½ feet of water, with no sea, with good chances of being pulled off by the ice breaker Kickapoo and the 125 footer Coast Guard patrol Agassiz were sent to assist her in place of the Mojave.

The Crandon, in command of Capt. S. R. Jones, and with a crew of 27, was the first to go ashore

FREE STATE'S FOE BLAMED IN BIG RACE SCHEME

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American. All Rights Reserved)

The Irish Free State government has officially banned the Gaedealtacta Trust Lottery, a $2,500,000 scheme centered in Boston.

Opponents of the Free State government are suspected by Free State authorities of promoting the lottery for funds to finance their opposition.

Boston police have discovered how outsiders lured their way into the Gaedealtacta scheme to set up a counterfeit lottery, also centered here.

ALL LOTTERIES BARRED

This probe has ended with agreement by Irish banks to accept no more funds by mail from the United States in this or any other lottery.

These disclosures, the Boston Evening American today makes exclusively.

Existence of an unnamed bogus lottery of huge proportions was revealed previously by Deputy Supt. James McDevitt.

The Boston Evening American reveals today that while thousands of these counterfeit tickets have been sold, many thousands more have been sold in New England on the original Gaedealtacta lottery, now declared unauthorized and forbidden by the Irish Free State government.

It is further revealed that persons connected with the latter have aided Boston inspectors in getting on the trail of the "higher-ups" in the fake project.

A warrant has been issued in Boston police for the arrest of the general manager of the bogus lottery.

GOT TICKET SAMPLES

This Boston man is declared by police to have obtained the complete confidence of the promoters of the Gaedealtacta lottery, to have gone abroad with them after they made their preliminary preparations here, and to have obtained samples of the tickets they were to use.

He had these tickets photographed and they had plates made by the best engravers obtainable. Printers were hired who could produce a million or more slips a

HURLEY DIES IN CHAIR SEPT. 13

Paul V. Hurley, 19, Roxbury, convicted murderer of Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien in Brookline on August 3, was sentenced to electrocution during the week of Sept. 13 by Judge Elias Bishop in Norfolk County superior criminal court in Dedham today.

Hurley was calm but pale when the sentence was passed. He showed no evidence of emotion.

When asked if there was any reason why court should not pass sentence, he replied with the one word, "No."

Asst. Dist. Atty. William P. Kelly pointed out that there had been no motion or claim for a new trial since Hurley was found guilty on June 11. He will remain in Dedham jail until Sept. 3, when he will be removed to the death house at State Prison.

Patrolman O'Brien was shot three times in a duel with Hurley in Ivy st. on the night of Aug. 3. The officer interfered when he found Hurley and a companion, Thomas Healey, 18, tampering with a parked automobile. Both boys escaped to New York following the shooting.

Hurley was brought back to Boston from Baltimore on March 24 and confessed to the murder. Officer O'Brien died the day after he was shot, despite attempts of fellow officers to save him through blood transfusion.

RAYMOND DIED BY OWN HAND

Rockland, Me., July 10—Leonard Raymond, 80, president of the Franklin Typographical Society of Boston, who was found dead with a bullet wound through the head on the steamer Camden yesterday was a suicide, according to the finding of an autopsy held today.

Medical Examiner H. W. Frohock and Dr. A. C. Long of the State Department of Health, concurred in the finding.

Authorities were informed that Raymond's son, Wilton T. Raymond of Billerica, Mass., had received a deposit slip from his father showing that $680 had been deposited to the son's bank account.

The father drew $780 from a Boston bank Wednesday

Earlier, U. S. Attorney Dyer had given out a statement that he believed Raymond to have been murdered because of the absence of cash and the death gun.

When informed of the results of the autopsy, he said he was satisfied the suicide verdict was correct.

GILLETTE POOL CALLED TRICK

The $25,000,000 Gillette Safety Razor pool, a feature of the suit of minority stockholders against certain directors, was characterized as "an ingenious trick of lawyers to make two-paper dollars go where only one had gone before" in probate court today.

The characterization was made by Attorney William G. Thompson of counsel for the minority stockholders, who seek to recover $21,000,000 alleged lost through unlawful acts of the directors.

Atty. Thompson told Judge William M. Prest, sitting as a master, that measure of damages which the plaintiffs are entitled to recover, aside from impairment of capital, was the excessive price paid for stock of the company over its fair value.

After reading answers of defendants and other documents, the hearing was adjourned to next Monday.

FLOGGING COSTS OFFICIAL JOB

Springfield, July 10—Alleged brutal punishment of boy inmates at the County Training School in Feeding Hills was one reason for the forced resignation of the school superintendent, Jim R. Smith.

This announcement was made today by County Commissioner Thomas J. Costello, following protests by friends of Smith to Governor Ely, who refused to intervene.

Boys at the school allegedly were flogged and fed on bread and milk three times a day, according to Commissioner Costello. Some, for punishment, were required to work in the laundry on Sundays, he said.

He also said the county commissioners demanded the superintendent's resignation after they found him asleep in bed at one o'clock in the afternoon of an inspection tour at the school.

Subsequent investigation disclosed Smith had come to the school from the Connecticut Institution for Boys after the Connecticut governor had ordered an investigation of complaints of brutality there, Costello said.

Four Escape Death Under Freight

Four Boston men narrowly escaped death today when the car in which they were riding crashed through the railroad gates at the B. & M. crossing in Eastern ave., Chelsea, directly in the path of a freight train passing through at a high rate of speed.

The driver was Barney Matani of 36 Prince st., and with him were Thomas Firsilla of North st.; Antonny Costles of Hanover st. and Joseph Jodine of 5th st.

The car was going toward East Boston, when it skidded and crashed through, breaking off one gate. It continued over the tracks, just getting out of the path of the onrushing freight train. Although the driver was uninjured, the three passengers were treated at the Chelsea Memorial hospital for cuts and bruises.

FOLLIES GIRL BURNED TO DEATH IN MYSTERY FIRE

FALLING ROOF TRAPS RICH BEAUTY

Radio Roars Above Flames as Firemen Fight to Save Mansion

New York, July 10 (US)—Mrs. Marion Berrian, 30, widow of a naval officer and a former "Follies" beauty, was burned to death in a mysterious fire in her $30,000 home in the fashionable section of Forest Hills.

Mrs. Berrian was in the Follies in 1915. Her husband died in Boston last year after an operation.

Guards placed around the home by a fire insurance company found Mrs. Berrian's body beneath the collapsed roof of the sun parlor, where the fire was discovered by neighbors.

UNABLE TO FLEE

Fire Marshal Brophy and Inspector John J. Gallagher, of Queens—the detective in charge of the Snyder-Gray murder case—asserted the fire was suspicious. Brophy announced:

"From evidence we have discovered, Mrs. Berrian was sitting in the sun parlor when the fire started on the sun porch. Apparently she was unable to flee from the flames, for she was still in the sun porch when its roof collapsed. She was pinned under the roof, beside the burned chair in which she may have been sitting.

"When neighbors called police they could not penetrate into the house very far, the blaze had gained such headway. So police fired several shots to awaken and warn anyone in the house. No one was seen to come out during the fire.

FRIEND SOUGHT

"The first police to arrive said the electric lights were burning in several parts of the house and the radio was going so strong its music could be heard above the crackling of the flames."

Neighbors said Mrs. Berrian, a striking blonde, was known to them as Mrs. Gomperts, and had lived a secluded, quiet life.

Police started a quest for a friend of Mrs. Berrian, known as Louis Gomperts, and supposedly a night club owner.

TOURED WORLD

Mrs. Berrian, whose husband was Lieut.-Comdr. G. D. Berrian, U. S. N., was the daughter of Mrs. Julia Day, of 371 Sixth ave., Brooklyn. Police disclosed she left an estate of $12,000 in banks, property worth $35,000 and two expensive automobiles.

Her will left all her property to her mother.

Several years ago Mrs. Berrian made a trip around the world unaccompanied. She explained that a woman who has traveled New York alone need fear nothing anywhere.

U. S. ENDS JAIL 'OUTING' GRAFT

Washington, July 10 (AP)—The Justice Department announced today federal agents had broken up a system of graft within the Atlanta Penitentiary under which prisoners occupying key positions in the prison were accepting money from other inmates to facilitate their transfer to road camps and other institutions.

The number of men involved in the scheme, the department said, was small and little money changed hands.

All of the prisoners who secured transfer to camps "by improper means," it was said, have been sent back to the institutions from which they came.

The department made no mention of other institutions, although investigations have been reported under way at Leavenworth.

The departmental statement said there was no evidence in the Atlanta case "that money has been paid to any officer or employe of the institution or of the department."

reasonable assurances that American taxpayers will enjoy some economic advantage." The senator is also afraid that money saved by Europe will be invested in war, also that our private citizens may lose some of the seventeen billion dollars that they have lent privately to Europe.

That is a case of the horse and the barn door. Americans may lose many of the seventeen billions lent to Europe, and the money we are not going to get from war loans will probably be spent largely for war preparations.

As for "economic advantages," the advantage of Europe is the question of the moment, not that of the United States.

KILLER SUSPECT IS SET FREE

Dover, N. H., July 10 (AP)—Albion Shaw, of Befast, Me., was freed today after being held overnight on the suspicion of Dover police that he was Alden Bouller, fugitive maniac sought for the slaying of Mrs. Mertie Wellman, at Rockport, Me.

Deputy Sheriff Cavanaugh, of Rockport, came here, confronted Shaw and said he was not Bouller.

Bouller's description, as furnished by Maine authorities, said he had a woman's face tattooed on his left wrist and the name "Nina" under it. Shaw had the same but too marks in a similar position.

Local police said they communicated with the Maine prison at Thomaston in an effort to secure Bouller's fingerprints and were told none were available.

MEXICO TO GET U. S. REGRETS

Washington, July 10 (AP)—The American government moved today to express its regrets to Mexico for the sentencing in Chicago of Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul, for contempt of court.

The state department received a report on the incident from Gov. Emmerson of Illinois this morning.

Department officials said the report satisfactorily explained the situation and said the contempt order was expunged from the court record to "remove any possible indication of any feeling toward Mexico."

A reply to the Mexican government's note of protest is being prepared by the state department and probably will express the regret of this government over the incident.

BEAUTY DIES IN FIRE

The death of Mrs. Marion Day Berrian, former Follies beauty and widow of a naval officer, when fire swept through her palatial home at Forest Hills, N. Y., was under investigation today. Firemen found all lights in the house burning and the radio on when they responded to an alarm. The charred body of the former stage beauty was found pinned under a roof. (International photo.)

1-INCH COLON TWINS PUT IN INCUBATORS

Remarkable Operation Made It Necessary to Reconstruct Each Internally

Baltimore, July 10 (INS)—The twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Foster, born three days ago with their abdomen connected with a thick ligament, are in incubators, to regain the strength lost when their bodies were separated.

Although their father is a railroad brakeman, his infant daughters have aroused the attention of the medical and surgical world and they are destined to receive expert attention and care.

Underweight at birth, as is the rule with most twins, the Foster babies weighed only 4½ pounds. They have gained little, because of the master operation they underwent at the hands of Dr. Daniel J. Pessagno, local surgeon.

He not only had to sever the bond between them, but practically to rebuild each inside and replace an inch of the colon back into the body of each child.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Foster also was responding to treatment. She was at death's door when the twins arrived and Dr. Kyle W. Golley and Dr. Edward P. Smith were forced to operate upon her immediately, while Dr. Pessagno performed the remarkable operation upon the infants.

when she missed the Peaked Hill Bar buoy after rounding the Cape.

In the dense fog she drove on the shifting sands which have taken toll of many craft. Her shrieking siren was plainly audible at the coast guard station three quarters of a mile away, but the weather was so thick it was nearly an hour before the vessel was located.

CRANDON HEAVILY LISTED

Lifting of the fog revealed the steamer apparently had struck the bar amidships, and was listed heavily.

Capt. Frank Mayo and a crew from the Coast Guard station put out to the vessel's aid, but refused the skipper of the Crandon refused an offer to take him and his crew ashore.

In the meantime Coast Guard headquarters in Boston had been notified and ordered the Mojave to the scene.

A short time later word was received of the grounding of the Fred Hayes. She left New York at 5 p. m. yesterday with 1000 tons of general cargo for Boston. The Mojave was ordered to leave the Crandon and go to the aid of the Fred Hayes.

The freighter is owned by the Crandon Shipping Co., Ltd., of London, is 331 feet long, 48 feet beam, and of 3108 gross tons.

HARBOR SHIPPING HIT

The fog which has shrouded the New England coast most of the week, completely enveloped Boston harbor today.

Ferries and other harbor craft were proceeding slowly and cautiously, and shipping schedules were upset.

According to the weather man, indications are fo, a continuation of present conditions over the week-end. The light easterly wind which prevails has little effect on the fog.

MISSING SALEM BOYS FOUND

Two 16-year-old Salem boys, missing in a dory off Salem Willows since Wednesday for whom coast guard and police boats were diligently searching, were today found by Salem police happily making their way over Salem roads in a truck.

George McShay, of Marlboro rd., and Sebastian Manyafico, of Tremont st., were seen on the back of a truck by a neighbor who notified the father of young McShay. Police were notified and an automobile squad, headed by Sergt. Thomas F. Hyde of the Salem department, discovered the youths in Barton st., Salem.

The boys were driven home.

The boys had been sighted three miles off the Salem shore, heading toward Marblehead, on the day they vanished in the fog, and the police feared they had drowned.

The lads laughed about their experience today, as they told of reaching shore, splitting a ham sandwich between them, picking blueberries in the Lynn woods, selling the berries for 25 cents and selling ice cream to some 30 boys in the Y. M. C. A. camp on Gunney Island.

New Smallpox Cure Discovered

London, July 0 (AP)—Discovery of a new smallpox serum was announced today by the British Medical Research Council reporting the researches of Prof. William John Tulloch and Dr. James Craigie.

The announcement describes the serum, as a "flocculation reaction" obtainable in cases of smallpox which enables a definite diagnosis in the early stages of suspected smallpox when the symptoms are otherwise doubtful.

NEIGHBORS AID WIDOW HELD IN POISON DEATH

Mrs. Filipiak Is Defended by Son, Who Declares Family Life Was Happy One

Neighbors of Mrs. Michelina Filipiak, 36-year-old Chelsea widow charged with the poison murder of her husband, circulated a petition in her defense today, while her 19-year-old son, Stephen, repeatedly declared his belief in her innocence.

The boy, eldest of three children, said that their home life had always been happy and unmarred by a single quarrel between his parents. He is caring for the younger children, Jessie, 11, and Stella, 6, while his mother is confined in Charles st. jail awaiting arraignment in Chelsea District court.

Police requested a continuance until July 17 when Mrs. Filipiak pleaded not guilty to the murder charge. Judge Samuel R. Cutler ordered her held without bail until that date.

SAYS ARREST A MISTAKE

"The police have made a great mistake in arresting my mother," her son, Stephen, told the Boston Evening American. "She was devoted to my father and they never had a quarrel.

"When he became ill she took good care of him and did everything she could to help him get well. She always worked hard at home during the day and at night she went to work in Boston.

"She used to come back in time to get the children off to school and then she would sleep a little while and get up when they came home. She helped my father save enough money to buy this house and I never heard any argument about money matters.

HUNGRY MANY TIMES

"Since my father's death we have had very little money and many times have gone hungry but my mother never complained.

"Then the police came and took her away. I was on the front steps tieing up strings for the morning glories when they arrived.

"I told them my mother never did anything wrong but she came out and told me not to worry. She said, 'Don't cry, son. Take good care of the children and I will be back soon.'

"And she will come back to us," the boy said. "She is innocent. She never could do such a thing to my father."

DEFENSE FUND PLANNED

Residents of Arlington st., where the Filipiaks made their home, held a meeting last night and drew up a petition attesting to the character of the accused widow. This was circulated today by Louis Kaufman and Joseph Sherman and scores of signatures were obtained.

Her neighbors also stand ready to aid with counsel fees in the event that her small savings are used up in the fight to free her. The three-story tenement purchased by the Filipiaks in 1923 is in danger of being sold for taxes and payments on the mortgages are in arrears.

As friends of the widow rushed to her defense police widened the search for the "handsome Russian" who was a frequent visitor at the Filipiak home.

Walter S. Walata, the undertaker who buried Filipiak, today asked in Suffolk Probate Court that an administrator be appointed for the estate. The funeral bills remain unpaid, according to Walata.

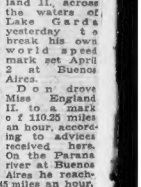
Don drove Miss England II. to a mark of 110.25 miles an hour, according to advices received here. On the Parana river at Buenos Aires he reached a speed of 103.45 miles an hour.

Anthony Biddle, Jr. Is Named in Sonora Case

New York, July 10—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., society clubman, sports patron and director of many corporations, has been named one of many defendants accused in federal court of causing a $3,000,000 loss to the bankrupt Sonora Products Corporation of America, through mismanagement.



Anthony Biddle, Jr.

Suit was filed yesterday by the Irving Trust Co., bankruptcy trustee, for an accounting. It was alleged that many of the defendants profited by "a corrupt and unlawful agreement and conspiracy" in a stock transaction, pocketing $1,500,000 in profits that should have gone to the Sonora.

Queen Mary's Garden Party Is Rained Out

Edinburgh, Scotland, July 10—A thunder storm accompanied by torrential rains completely ruined the royal garden party given by King George and Queen Mary at Holyrood Palace late yesterday. More than $250,000 worth of gowns were ruined by the downpour.

SLAYER, LOST WIFE IN LIFE, PLANNED TO WIN HER IN DEATH

THE PINES WILL GO WILD

Rudy Vallee is going to show his pretty and petite bride to the folks in his home town, Westbrook, Me., and when he does—WOW! Reports are that they will go down by plane, either this week-end or next. Anyway, it will be the biggest thing ever in that part of the Pine Tree State. (International Newsreel photo.)

Nancy Astor's Sister, in Love 17 Years, to Wed Flynn

ELOPEMENT IN 1914 HALTED FOR FAMILY

Love at First Sight Endures, Actor and Mrs. Phipps Assert in London

London, July 10—A romance of 17 years' duration will have its happy ending July 17 when Nora Phipps, sister of Lady Nancy Astor, who obtained her final divorce decree from a London court June 30, marries Maurice Bennett "Lefty" Flynn, former Yale all-American football star.

A simple ceremony at the registry office will unite two whose tempestuous love affair had its beginning back in 1914, when Nora eloped from her Long Island home, leaving her English husband, Paul Phipps, and their two children, to flee with "Lefty" to North Yakima, Wash. There the lovers nearly starved for six weeks while Flynn tried to find work as a farm laborer.

FATHER TO ATTEND

"Lefty's" septuagenarian father, Joe Flynn, who recently married a young bride, is coming with her on the Aquitania Tuesday to give his blessing.

The former Nora Langhorne, whose sister, Irene, was known as the "Gibson Girl" after her marriage to Charles Dana Gibson, and whose beauty, with that of her four sisters, was the toast of Virginia, and her fiance lunched with the Universal Service correspondent.

For the first time they told their story. Nora can still defend her title as one of the "beautiful Virginia Langhornes." She looks surprisingly youthful. "Lefty," with a touch of gray in his hair, is the same dashing figure that Miami and Pensacola knew when he was a pilot. He allowed his fiancee to do most of the talking, though once she appealed to him for help. Grinning, he answered:

"This big boy stays on the sidelines; you tell them, darling."

"TWO HEADS LOST"

Thereupon Nora said:

"Lefty and I feel it is better that we tell our story once and for all. After our marriage we want no more publicity. I first met Lefty at my own Long Island home, in 1914, and I lost my head immediately."

Her fiance interrupted:

"You had better put in there that I lost mine, too," he said.

Nora smiled appreciatively and said:

"Well, that makes two heads lost.

"Anyhow, I just forgot everything and ran away with Lefty. I don't want to go into that period in North Yakima when we nearly starved."

RETURNED TO CHILDREN

"I spent my last dollar on a steak and Nora burned it."

For a moment his fiancee mused silently. Then she continued:

"After six wonderful weeks my duty to my children called me home. Lefty and I parted at Chicago. I never saw him again for 17 years. Then he cabled from Honolulu that he was coming to England—that he simply must see me."

DOGS DO BARK AND BITE---SOMETIMES

THERESA LEPORE

DOUBLE DEATH PLAN REVEALED BY A LETTER

McDonald, Failing in a Reconciliation, Shoots Wife and Then Takes Own Life

Springfield, July 10—Death was the best way out for both of them, John W. McDonald, 31, of Sargent st., wrote in a letter before he shot and killed his estranged bride and afterwards committed suicide in a lonely section of Longmeadow.

Police, finding the letter in the suicide's pocket, refused to make public the contents of the letter, but announced today it had established a motive for the crime.

REFUSED TO GIVE WIFE UP

The husband wrote that persons had poisoned his wife's mind against him. He refused to give her up and penned as his last sentiments the desire to have her in death if not in life.

Police say McDonald had on previous occasions attempted reconciliations with his bride but was unsuccessful. She refused to return to live with him, police say.

Police here say the couple, who have been married less than a year, had not been living together for three months. Longmeadow police say that Mrs. McDonald, who was 23, had been employed as a nursemaid by a family in Ellerton st. there.

Patrolman John W. Keith of Longmeadow police found the unconscious form of McDonald, a revolver clasped in his right hand, lying across the dead body of his wife in Bliss rd. on the outskirts of the town. McDonald's car was parked about 100 feet away. He had gone to the scene in response to a telephone message that there was trouble in an auto in that section.

"Undying Love"

In love for 17 years, Mrs. Paul Phipps, of Virginia, and Maurice "Lefty" Flynn, former Yale All-American football star, are to be married in London. Although married when she first met Flynn in 1914, Mrs. Phipps eloped with him, returning in six weeks because of her children.

RUDY NO IDOL TO HIS NEW WIFE

New York, July 10—"To me he's just an ordinary man."

The new Mrs. Rudy Vallee, one of the most envied girls in America today, glanced casually toward her beaming crooner, and thus smashed the day-dreams of America's flappers, to whom the romantic Rudy has been a glamorous idol.

"She's just a plain home girl," said Rudy. "She's given up her screen career—she has no other aspirations now."

The two intend to spend a lot of time swimming, playing tennis and riding horseback.

"What will you do while Rudy is working?" Mrs. Vallee was asked.

"Oh, I'll be right there with him," she replied.

Mrs. Rudy announced that she was very fond of children, but said:

"There won't be any for a couple of years. Then I hope we'll have some."

Westbrook, Me., July 10 (INS)—Rudy Vallee and his bride, the former Miss Fay Webb, musical comedy actress, will receive a great celebration when they come to his home town. Persistent reports were current that they would fly from New York to Scarboro airport, 10 miles from here.

Governor William Tudor Gardiner may head the list of greeters. There will be speechmaking, confetti, balloons, a banquet, more speeches, a parade, wedding presents galore and probably fireworks. The grand fete will be held in American Legion Hall. Rudy is a member of the local post.

91 Per Cent Humidity in Springfield Sets Record

Springfield, July 10 (AP)—A reading of 91 per cent humidity today, three per cent in excess of yesterday, set a record for this vicinity for recent years.

So nearly saturated was the atmosphere that frequent short but violent downpours over very limited areas occurred.

The Amherst College meteorogical station ascribes the continued air stagnation, now in its fifth day, to cross-currents of air over New England in which low hanging currents of moist air from the Atlantic encounter dry currents from the Berkshires, resulting in almost complete stoppage of air movement.

U. S. LOAN HOPE OF GERMANY

Paris, July 10 (AP)—Contrary to earlier announcement, Dr. Hans Luther did not leave for Berlin, today, still being tied up in negotiations with Finance Minister Flandin and French bankers.

Berlin, July 10 (AP)—In view of the situation in Paris in connection with the visit of Dr. Hans Luther, head of the Reichsbank, United States Ambassador Sackett had a long conference today with Julius Curtius, foreign minister, and later was scheduled to talk with Chancellor Bruening.

It is believed the German government, without waiting for Luther's return, may turn to the United States for financial aid.

News from Paris that Luther is coming back to Berlin instead of going on to Basel for the world bank meeting Monday caused consternation.

Why? Well, for one reason, things could be seen a little better.

The sun, thought by the more pessimistic to be extinct, showed for more than ten minutes for the first time in five days.

Then the fog which has blanketed New England for nearly a week, began to go.

HURLED OUT OF MASHER'S CAR

Lynn police today were seeking a young man who last night threw a pretty Lynn housewife from his car after trying to force his attentions upon her.

Mrs. Helen Findley of Newton st., with two companions had attended a dance at Revere and accepted a ride home with the man. As they approached Lynn, according to Mrs. Findley, the young man made advances and forcibly threw her from the car when she resisted.

He drove off with the other two girls, and she reported him to the police.

GIRL AND MAN DOG VICTIMS

A girl and a man were today recovering from the bites of two dogs, inflicted in the North End yesterday.

Theresa Lepore, 17, of 83 Beacon st., Chelsea, while visiting at 160 Endicott st. was bitten in the right leg by a dog which flew at her as she opened the door of the house. Three stitches were taken and the bite was cauterized.

While protecting his son, Frank, 6, from a stray dog, Salvatore Spadaro, 40, of 5 North sq., was bitten on the right hand. The dog snapped at the boy and Spadaro drove it away.

Brothers Held as Robbers After Chase

Brockton, July 10—Two brothers, who had broken into a North Montello st. store and stole paint, brushes and supplies valued at $300, were captured early today through the alertness of Patrolman Harry Cook.

The officer saw the pair running from the rear of the store as he passed. He gave chase and captured them after firing two shots. They gave their names as Ernest Auger, 19, of Marion st., and Norman Auger, 22, of Elliott st.

VAUGHAN SHORT $40,000 MORE

Evidences of an additional shortage of approximately $40,000 in the accounts of Guy L. Vaughan, missing receiver for five banks, will be presented to Suffolk grand jury on Monday.

Vaughan fled following discovery of a shortage of $200,000 in the accounts of the banks he was administering.

Evidence of the new shortage was received by Lieut. James L. Daley of Dist. Atty. Foley's office from Frederick J. Bonner, temporary receiver and Frank Kirk, public accountant.

More than $30,000 was collected as rents, the property of the defunct private bank of A. Di Pietro & Co., of the North End. The Fabrizio Pilocchelli of Lawrence, another of the banks for which Vaughan was receiver, lost more than $7000.

Atlantic Tourist Season a Failure

Seek Reopening of Amesbury Plant

Amesbury, July 10—The special committee of citizens named at a recent special town meeting to investigate industrial conditions and make recommendations for obtaining new industries, is directing its work to having the Biddle & Smart plant, which has been closed for some time, reopened by some manufacturing concern.

A sub-committee composed of Guy E. Nickerson, Benjamin F. Sargent, Jr., and Robert W. Briggs is to interview assessors and bank officials regarding the value of the property before taking further steps.

POLICE HUSKIES CURB RUSH OF STRIKERS TO COURTHOUSE IN R. I. MILL WAR

week. One engraver and one printer, becoming suspicious, told the police.

Throughout New England thousands of ticket-holders are wondering whether they have poured out their money for real tickets or for bogus ones.

One or the other, they are bound to lose, according to the investigating authorities, who set one scheme down as a bubble and the other as a counterfeit on that bubble.

And yet, mysteriously, word has gone out to the holders of the real Gaedealtacta tickets to hold on to their slips, because with or without the sanction of the Free State Government, they are good.

SUSPECT HUNTED.

This is one reason for the Free State Government's suspicion of the lottery as a disguised means of gathering a fund to finance assaults on the Government's policies.

Meanwhile Inspectors Timothy Donovan, Thomas Towle and John McCarthy of the Boston bureau of criminal investigation are seeking the head of the counterfeit crowd, and also the plates he had made, which have mysteriously vanished.

This search, while centering here, has its ramifications in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. Maine especially was to be flooded with tickets and special instructions issued to the sellers, because of the publicity gained when a Maine man won a big prize in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes a short time ago.

MILLIONS OF TICKETS

Sixty line plates and 20 electrotypes are also being sought. These were snatched from the hands of Boston printers only a few minutes before police arrived on the scene to make seizures. These plates were to have turned out a million tickets a week, according to police inspectors.

All information gained by Boston police over a period of three weeks has been turned over to federal agents for use in the investigation in other states.

Detailed plans for the sale of the tickets on a huge scale have been uncovered, these covering every phase of the lottery promotion, even to instructions for the least important figures in the scheme.

It was through a tip-off sent by Deputy Supt. James McDevitt of the Boston police, recently, that a fake lottery was being promoted here, that Irish Free State officials first learned of the Gaedealtacht Trust lottery, which has raised a storm of discussion and investigation in Dublin.

FREED IN DUBLIN

The latest development in this widespread probe came today when announcement was made of the arraignment in the police court at Dublin of E. J. Hearty, charged with promoting the lottery, but he was freed when he proved not a ticket had been sold in all Ireland.

The official ban on the lottery came with the following decree issued by Minister of Justice Fitzgerald-Kenney:

"If any attempt is made to draw for the Gaedealtacta Trust in the Irish Free State, we shall take steps to prevent its being held and we shall prosecute any person who sells tickets for it."

While the investigation in Ireland was in progress, with the police probe here keeping pace with it, word has been mysteriously passed around for all ticket holders to "sit tight"—that the lottery was above-board, even if it did not have the sanction of the Irish Free State government.

This led investigators to suspect that perhaps a scheme was afoot to gather a political war chest for opposition to the policies of the Cosgrave government.

Irish Free State officials declare they have been unable to get any information whatever as to the disposition of funds garnered from the sale of the tickets in the alleged unauthorized lottery, the Gaedealtacht.

MUCH TO EXPLAIN

They point out that the Gaedealtacht, technically, means those districts of Ireland where Gaelic is the language in universal use. The Free State government has given these districts especial attention in order that the traditional tongue of the country may be preserved.

Speaking broadly, however, they assert that the term may be applied to the whole of Ireland and if meant in this sense by the promoters of the lottery, the officials contend, there is much to be explained from a political point of view.

The Free State police, in reports of their investigations, draw attention to the alleged fact that among the names on the Gaedealtacht lottery tickets are those of several leaders known to be connected with "advanced or extreme politics."

These names are said to include those of Dr. Patrick Joseph Gaffney, Dr. Kevin McGrath and Dr. Matthew Peppard, all of whom have been accused in the past of being utterly out of sympathy with the Cosgrave government and its policies.

McDEVITT GIVES TIP

The lottery came to the attention of the Free State authorities with a communication by Deputy Superintendent James McDevitt of the Boston police that a "fake" Irish sweepstakes-lottery had been uncovered, its center in Boston, which would have taken $250,000 weekly from Americans over a period of more than four months.

Aside from issuing a denial that it was their intention to sell any tickets in the Irish Free State, the promoters refused information asked by officials of that government regarding the objects of the lottery.

TICKETS FOR U. S.

Questioned by detectives attached to the civic guards, representatives of the Gaedealtacta found in offices on Upper O'Connell st., Dublin, otherwise known as Sackville st., said sales of the sweepstakes tickets would be promoted only in the United States, England and one or two other countries.

The Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes lottery, which has become famous and widely popular in the past 18 months, with large prizes being won on both sides of the ocean, is not conducted by the Free State government, as many suppose, but it has the government's sanction.

The management of this lottery now face the probability of having to dispense with sales of tickets in the United States.

In this connection it was learned that it was a large Boston bank which unintentionally started the ball rolling which led to the agreement by Irish banks to accept no more lottery funds from the United States through the mail—an agreement which is giving the Irish Hospitals' Trust lottery management much concern.

On the head of this bank, the Boston Evening American has learned, asked postal authorities regarding the legality of transferring lottery funds to Ireland, as requested by several customers.

The result was that the banker was shown the federal statutes barring the use of the mail in connection with any lottery. The Boston bank accordingly refused to make the transfer of funds.

But the matter did not stop there. It was brought officially to the attention of Horace J. Donnally, solicitor of the postoffice department at Washington, who immediately drafted a communication to the secretary of the bankers' organization of southern Ireland. This communication called attention to the fact that money was pouring into Ireland through the mails contrary to the laws of the United States governing lotteries.

The secretary of the Irish bankers was notified that the postoffice would feel obliged to stop all mail addressed to banks in the Free State, unless the banks gave their solemn assurance that they would return to the senders all sweepstake money and counterfoils received by them from subscribers in the United States.

The committee of the Irish banks agreed to comply with the demands of the postoffice.

SWEEPSTAKES SANCTIONED

This agreement is giving much concern to the hospitals' trust, coming as it does with the official announcement that the minister of justice had sanctioned the next Irish hospital sweepstake on the Manchester November handicap.

Aside from exacting a promise from the Irish banks not to aid in the violation of United States laws, Solicitor Donnelly has issued a fraud order against the Irish Hospitals' Trust, 13 Eastfort ter., Dublin, as well as against a score of its agents throughout the Irish Free State.

This fraud order also means that no money orders will be issued, paid, or certified to the Irish Hospitals' sweeps or its promoters for the Manchester November Handicap.

The Gaedealtacta drawing was planned to be held on the Cambridgeshire steeplechase at New Market, October 28, 1931.

The prizes listed on the basis of 10bet sales aggregating $500,000, but four or five times that amount was expected to be taken in, so that the prizes would be four or five times greater.

As listed on the $500,000 basis the prizes were to be: First, $150,000; second, $65,000; third, $50,000; fourth, $50,000; other prizes totaling $185,000.

AGENTS ARE WARNED

Agents were warned in the literature sent out by Managing Director Edward J. Hearty not to use United States postal money orders in remitting collections.

The tickets sold for $2.50 each. The literature stated that all funds received would be subject to government audit and that the drawing would take place under the direct supervision of the Irish Free State government.

The tickets and literature were headed:

"The Irish Charitable Sweepstake (Ar Son na Gaedealtacta), conducted by the Gaedealtacta Trust, Ltd., 60 Upper O'Connell st., Dublin."

The counterfeit tickets are excellent duplications and the prospective purchaser would have no reason for suspicion. The differences are only noticeable after careful comparison.

Dr. Gaffney, Dr. McGrath and Dr. Peppard, listed as trustees on the literature of the real lottery, publicly announced today they would have no further connection with it.

Biting Dog Banned From Hoover Camp

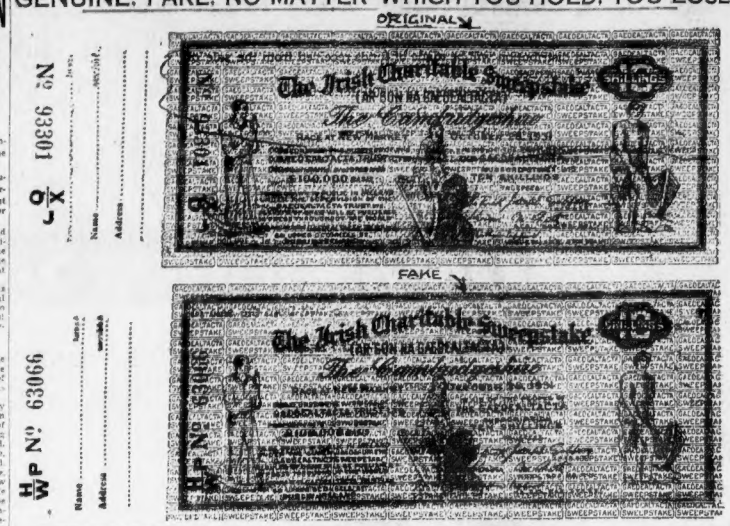
"Mrs. Sackett" German Rose

Berlin, July 10 (AP)—Germany's most beautiful rose, a great dark red flower which won first prize at the Bad Homburg rose show, has been named the "Mrs. Sackett" in honor of the wife of the American ambassador.

GENUINE, FAKE, NO MATTER WHICH YOU HOLD, YOU LOSE



The ticket shown at the top is issued by the Gaedealtacta Trust Lottery, and the one pictured below is a clever counterfeit uncovered by Boston police. The lottery ticket was issued from headquarters in Boston for participation in a $2,500,000 drawing on the Cambridgeshire Sweepstakes. This lottery has been banned by Irish Free State authorities. It will be noticed that on the bogus ticket the numbers run in one direction across the end of the slip, while on the original they run in the other direction. The color of the "fake" is of a slightly different hue. There are almost unnoticeable differences in the spacing of the words. Local and federal authorities are seeking agents of the lottery here. CRIMES BOOST CITY BUDGET BY $107,000

Indications are that the cost of crime in Suffolk County will show an increase of 25 per cent for the year, Mayor Curley announced today while preparing his supplementary budget for presentation to the City Council Monday.

Included is $107,000 additional for Suffolk County superior criminal courts and Dist. Atty. Foley's office.

Of this sum $60,000 is for jurors' salaries; $35,000 for witness fees; $8000 for transportation in extradition cases; $2500 for additional clerical assistance in the office of the district attorney and $1500 of transcript of evidence in the Garrett trials.

Mayor Curley said he had been informed that in the first six months of this year there were 1042 more criminal cases tried in Suffolk superior courts than in any other six months in their history.

The Mayor said also that Boston must be relieved of the cost of financing the higher court cases of Chelsea, Revere, and Winthrop. Boston bears all costs of Suffolk County, he said, and yet the fines assessed in Chelsea Court go to that city.

FIGHT FOR PURE LIQUOR AT FAIR PRICE GROWS

While chemical examination was being made today of the brains of the six Brockton victims of "prohibition highballs," opponents of the dry law continued to denounce prohibition as the real cause of the tragedy, one of the worst hereabouts since the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted.

Julian Codman, Boston attorney and national executive commander of the Crusaders, wired the Boston Evening American from New York:

"Similar things will happen so long as the laws make it impossible or difficult to obtain pure liquor at reasonable prices."

ANOTHER POISON INDICATED.

While it is known that those who attend the party drank denatured alcohol, it is now believed that they also had something even more deadly, as suggested by State Chemist Herman R. Lythgoe.

Police have reopened the investigation, although still maintaining a constant guard at the beside of Dominic Desormiers in Brockton Hospital. Desormiers, alleged purchaser of the denatured alcohol, is charged with manslaughter, but results of the probe now under way may free him.

Himself a victim of the highballs, which claimed the lives of a woman, her son and brother, and three other men, Desormiers was somewhat better today.

FOUND DENATURED ALKY

State Chemist Lithgoe, who had read of the deaths in the newspapers before being called on for an official examination of some of the liquor late yesterday, was frankly surprised at finding the samples supplied to him were denatured alcohol.

He thought from the circumstances as previously revealed to him that some other poison was the cause.

"We don't know yet what other stuff they may have drunk at the party, besides this denatured alcohol," said Agent Thomas Lee of the Brockton health board.

Medical Examiner Fullerton announced the cause of one death that of John E. Blake of Bridgewater, as "alcoholic poisoning—denatured alcohol."

Blake's brain and stomach will not be tested and the report of his death will be left unchanged, at least for the present, but no report will be made on the others until the chemical tests are completed.

THREE FUNERALS TODAY

Three of the victims, Mrs. Annie Jacobs, 58, of Lincoln st.; her son, Edward, 26, and her brother, Lloyd Dean, 41, of Bennett st., will be buried late this afternoon after services at a funeral home in Green st., Brockton.

Edward Jacobs will be buried in the American Legion lot in Melrose Cemetery, Brockton, while his mother and uncle will be buried in Covenant Cemetery in that city. Jacobs served with a hospital unit at Camp Meade, Va., during the war.

Two Men Held in War Vet's Slaying

Farmington, Me., July 10—Sheriff W. R. Leavitt of Franklin county said that charges of murder would be pressed today against Leo Kennison and Frank Douglass, both of Phillips, at a hearing here into the death of Ronald Brown, World War veteran of Phillips.

The arrests climaxed an investigation begun when Brown's body was found in a bed in his home Sunday. The room was blood-spattered and gave evidence of a violent struggle, officers said.

Aged Hero Ends Life by Shooting

Portland, Me., July 10—The body of Charles Ross White, 70, was found last night near the waterfront, where 59 years ago his rescue of a drowning man brought him a Congressional Medal of Honor.

Even Ship Captain Is Annoyed by Back Seat Driving

San Francisco, July 10 (AP)—Even at sea a man can't get away from back seat driving, Capt. Andrew G. Townsend of the S. S. Maloio complained today.

Townsend said while the Maloio, which arrived yesterday, still was 300 miles at sea, his wife talked to him from a radio station here for 15 minutes, much of which time was spent in telling how to berth his ship.

"If that isn't back seat driving I'll swallow the compass," said the skipper.

HELD IN PROBE, KILLS HIMSELF

New York, July 10 (AP)—Traugott F. Keller, 45, chief engineer of the city's dock department at $10,000 a year, was killed by a subway train today in what railway officials called a jump underneath the train.

In Keller's pocket was a subpoena notifying him to appear before referees conducting the city inquiry. One phase of the investigation is an examination of pier leases granted by the city to steamship companies.

Keller had named several contractors who paid money to city officials and Referee Seabury looked upon him a key witness.

TOKIO FLIERS TO TRY WITH BIG MOTOR

Nome, Alaska, July 10 (AP)—Their attempted non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokio having ended near here in failure, Reg L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones of Texas today planned an early return to the United States to try it again. They announced they would use the Fort Worth for their second attempt, but would install a larger engine.

In explanation of the sudden termination of their flight, Robbins said the Fort Worth had become unwieldy after 300 gallons of gas had been taken aboard in high winds. It was impossible to hold the monoplane in contact with the refueler, he said, to take aboard sufficient gasoline to complete the flight to Japan. A more powerful engine in the Fort Worth would have prevented the trouble, he said.

Dog Ban Refused

Springfield, July 10—The Board of Aldermen, in special meeting, refused to pass an order calling for the restraint of dogs for a 90-day period.

Gossip Keeps Hubby and Bride, 64, Indoors

Portsmouth, N. H., July 10—Hotel chatter about his romance with 64-year-old Mrs. Susan Day Forest Parker, with whom he is honeymooning here, caused Fortunato Porotpe, 26, Italian language instructor, to beat a hasty retreat on his only appearance outside the honeymoon suite.

The couple arrived here after their marriage at the bride's palatial summer home in Wenham, Mass., and took a suite at the Wentworth Hotel. They remained in their quarters, having all their meals served there.

While all the society people were buzzing with the fact that the couple had arrived at the hotel, they were disappointed in getting a sight of the bride.

Don's Speed Mark Set at 111 Miles

Gardone, Italy, July 10 (INS)—The new world's motorboat speed record, established yesterday by Kaye Don, British racer, in Miss England II, was officially declared today to be 177.494 kilometers per hour, or 110.99625 miles per hour.

Don drove Miss England over the first measured mile of the Lake Garda course in 32 2-5 seconds, the second in 36 4-5 seconds. The racer broke his own record, which he established earlier in the year on the Parana river in Argentina, of 103.49 miles per hour.

DRIVER FLEES AFTER CRASH

Danvers, July 10—Police are searching for the driver of the auto which crashed through a fence and caught fire on the Newburyport turnpike here early today.

Passing motorists notified police that the auto was burning. When officers reached the scene the machine was practically destroyed. They were able to distinguish the numbers and found the auto was registered to Harold Ford, of Main st., Medford.

KING GEORGE IN BID FOR SOUTH AMERICA TRADE

Glasgow, July 10 (AP)—King George today added to the efforts of the Prince of Wales and British industrialists in a bid for South American trade.

In a speech dedicating a new dock, he recalled that ships from Glasgow had sailed every sea for a century but that there are still new worlds to conquer.

"For example," he said, "there is the southern half of the American continent from which my dear son, the Prince of Wales, recently returned, and which I believe will one day be bound to Great Britain by close commercial ties.

"The future lies in the hands of men with brains, energy and determination. These qualities the people of the second city of my empire have never lacked."

POSSESSION

I built myself a house of dreams
And fashioned each part with care,
And in all my dreams of the little house
You were always there.
One day I looked in my house of dreams,
Looked carefully there in the dawn,
And a pitiful fear came over me then
For you, my dear, were gone.
I remembered then I had locked you in
And always held the key—
Perhaps—who knows?—you'd have wanted to stay
If I had left you free.

FRENCH MAKE COUNTER PLANS
—Headline in Transcript

Just another Thompson's spa, I suppose . . . speaking of which, I wonder how many know of the hundreds of people, newspaper men and otherwise, who go to the downstairs hot order place of this famous restaurant after 10:30 at night and get food for half price? It seems they don't keep any food from one day to the next and the food that is practically given away in the wee sma' hours is nobody's business—except Thompson's and the customers, who have long since ceased to be newspaper men only.

THOSE SONG SHEETS

Well, sir! Did we show our ignorance? And were we squelched? Do you remember that we confessed in one of our columns last week that we couldn't figure out why anyone should buy those nickel song sheets?

Who would think that an innocent remark like that would loose the tongues and unsheath the pens of a host of readers, anxious to tell me just how dumb we were not to know what a boon these song sheets are?

"Well, I can tell him," said Miss Prim, after she had read the paragraph, and she said it with such vehemence that we suspect she has been buying them secretly for some time and is not exactly proud of herself for so doing. Her explanation is that people buy them so that they can know the words when they hear the music on the radio—or, indeed, when they hear the words on the radio.

* * *

Then there was Polly Anna who sent me a nice little note saying just about the same thing and Frances Iris B. who seemed to take it to heart and splattered her note paper with tears which, she said, came right from a heart that had been broken by my cruel paragraph.

Lillian Watts Balcom, song leader at the Chelsea Naval Hospital, tells me that these song sheets are a boon to the boys at the Red Cross Huts at the Marine Hospital on Tuesday nights or the Naval Hospital on Thursday nights. Lillian asks me to come out to one of their parties and help harmonize "Wabash Moon" with the boys, and if she doesn't look out I might take her up on it. Then she'll be sorry! And, incidentally, yourself, Lillian. I'm glad you feel relieved after unburdening yourself and I HOPE they're not over—yet!!

AUTO IS STONED IN R. I. MILL STRIKE

Clark, in charge of the Rhode Island immigration department, and will be sent to Boston.

Miss Burlak, local organizer for the Communist union group, was cheered by the strikers as she went to court.

NEW DISORDER AT MILL

She appealed the sentences, was bailed in $2500 and her appearance was the signal for another demonstration as police forced the crowd across Broad st. from the court building.

Two weeks ago she had declined an opportunity granted by the court to escape sentence by leaving the city.

Before her appearance in court 2000 strikers and sympathizers created a new disorder at the General Fabrics mill where, last night, there was serious rioting.

The strikers stoned an automobile in which a printer, mistaken for a strike breaker, was riding. They jeered two auto loads of mill office workers who arrived under heavy police guard.

Forty state and local police armed with riot guns and tear bombs, guarded entrances to the mill at which all operations were suspended as a result of the violence and damage resulting from yesterday's attempt to break the strike that began in May.

Developments of today and tomorrow are expected to decide whether Governor Norman S. Case would order out the militia, but closing of the mill precluded the necessity of such action, it was believed. If mill officials decide to attempt another reopening, the national guard may be summoned.

ON GUARD ALL NIGHT

Police maintained their vigil at the mill throughout the night following the riot in which mill windows and mill machinery was damaged and strikers rescued all except one of a half dozen prisoners arrested before they were forced by tear gas and streams from fire hose to retreat.

The damage done the General Fabrics plant will be far in excess of the $1000 first estimated for broken windows, for some of the large stones hurled by the rioters damaged the looms inside the mill.

With a few words, Judge Roscoe Dexter punctured any idea of martyrdom or self-sacrifice Miss Burlak might have carried into the courtroom.

"As far as your sentence goes, I'll use my own judgment, and not yours," he told Her, after calling attention to a N. T. W. U. pamphlet saying she faced a year in jail.

"I am not going to make a martyr of you, although I might make an example of you. I consider you nothing more nor less than an ordinary organizer of disorders. I think you're one of the highly paid organizers."

The girl, smiling, protested:

"You can't compare my salary with yours. I'm getting $10 a week right now."

Judge Dexter disregarded the remark and sentenced her and when she appealed told her it would be necessary to increase her bail from $1500 to $2500.

"I assure you if the bail were $5 I'd be back," Miss Burlak said.

"I would not take your assurance," said the court.

Some of the tension of the situation was relaxed when the crowd learned this morning that no attempt to resume operations was to be made today.

Roy Monast, a printer at the E. L. Freeman Co., situated near the police dead line, narrowly escaped being mobbed, however, when he drove close to the picket line in his car.

Several stones bounced off the auto and the crowd moved in around it, threatening further violence, before Monast was able to convince the pickets he was not a strike-breaker.

A short time later George Manton, superintendent of the mill, with several executives and office workers, drove through the police lines in two cars. The strikers jeered and hooted, but no missiles were thrown.

The strike was augmented by operatives from Royal Weaving Mill, No. 6, one of the largest silk plants in the country.

AGITATORS HUNTED

A partial strike was declared there, three weeks ago with announcement of a one-cent cut in yard-weaving rates, and at the end of one week of operations on a reduced schedule the mill shut down for its annual two weeks' accounting.

The Royal mill is scheduled to reopen Monday, and new trouble may result from the increased activities of the N. T. W. U. organizers. A meeting of stockholders will be held to decide whether the plant shall be kept closed for a time.

On order of Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast, immigration commissioner at Boston, federal inspectors continued their search for alien strike promoters among the crowd.

Aloysius Hull, 18, the lone prisoner held after the riot last night, was fined $20 for inciting to riot at a special sitting of the court.

Yesterday's riotous outbreak came at the end of the first day the mill had been open since a strike started on May 8. The strike followed rejection by the mill corporations of demands made by the United Textile Workers' Union.

Seized by U.S.

William T. Murdock, secretary of the National Textile Workers' Union, was arrested on a deportation warrant in connection with Central Falls mill strike and turned over to immigration officials.

NILAND HECKLES FIRE MARSHAL

A verbal tilt between former Rep. Thomas A. Niland of East Boston and Fire Marshal John W. Reth today enlivened the continued hearing at the State House on the objection to the proposed oil farm on Chelsea creek, Revere.

Niland asked Reth several questions, to which the marshal responded tartly:

"I'll have no political speeches."

The session centered around a vigorous cross-examination of John P. Doyle, former fire chief of Wellesley and an expert on oil fires, retained by counsel for the Boston Port Development Company, and Thomas Green, holders of the license granted by the Revere City Council.

Doyle was asked by Senator Brodhine if oil burning on water was more dangerous than on land. Doyle said it depended on location, whether it was close to wooden piles in a high-value district.

Ex-Banker Executed for Liquor Slaying

McAlester, Okla., July 10 (AP)—Paul D. Cole, former banker and druggist, was executed here today for the murder of Ernest Irby, witness in a liquor conspiracy case against Cole.

Cole denied any connection with the slaying. Irby was shot to death in March, 1930, and his body, weighted with stones, thrown in Lake Wewoka.

FORCE OF HABIT

President Joseph McGrath of the City Council does not apply the "gag" rule in that body and, as a result, the members are occasioned to making long speeches. This freedom of speech has caused many embarrassing experiences for those who have been called on to speak over the radio for a limited time. One night recently Councillor Clement A. Norton of Hyde Park was delivering a radio address and, becoming absorbed in his topic, forgot about the passage of time. Suddenly his remarks were broken off in the middle of a sentence and a voice said, "Sorry, but our New York program is now ready."

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

NOW IT HAPPENED THAT LAST NIGHT—THE MAN of the world having eluded us—we stayed in town for supper and wondered what in the world people did in a big city summer evenings. All of the theaters were closed, hotels were quite impossible, we have outgrown the flicker show—it looked like an early bedtime story for us, but before we drove home we would go and see the sunset on the river.

* * *

Oh, boy, what a thrill we got when we turned the corner of the Esplanade to see a pile of chairs in the shell where the concerts are given. We parked. We questioned. We stayed. As the evening melted into night, the crowd gathered for the first concert of the season by Arthur Fiedler and his Symphonic Orchestra.

* * *

And we had the added pleasure of meeting the popular conductor himself to the envy of many stage-door Glorias who were standing about. We asked him if the idea of popular subscription for the concerts had been successful, and he told us it had, but that it would be gratifying if many more people who enjoy these musical treats —this is our own phrase, naturally—would feel it a pleasure to send in even a small amount to the Esplanade Concert Fund, care of Lee, Higginson & Co., Boston, and we thought what a perfectly priceless surprise it would be to Mr. Fiedler if everybody who attended the concert any evening would put 10 cents in an envelope and send it in.

* * *

Picturesque Scene on Esplanade

THERE MUST HAVE BEEN ABOUT 10,000 PEOPLE standing and sitting on the grass for this first concert, and by the prolonged applause how they enjoyed it. Mr. Fiedler said he was very happy to be back again playing for his musical public and we were certainly glad to have him back with us.

* * *

THERE IS SOMETHING sort of real and wholesome about these out-of-door concerts — a kind of every man being equal in the world of music feeling; there are no roped-off spaces for the ewe lambs of the rich, no reserved seats, thank Heaven. On the upturned faces of those thousands only one thought was reflected, sincere enjoyment of exquisite music. And so they sat, very close together, like children listening to a story.

* * *

IT IS AMAZING HOW QUIET 10,000 people can be; the little boats slipped along the river, a glimmer of light in the dark; old man Technology squatted on the other bank like a brooding Thinker; spires of many churches pointed their fingers heavenward and hearts were uplifted on wings of song; tiny children hopped about like frogs on the grass but hardly a sound was heard while the splendid orchestra, under the direction of the originator of these summer symphonies, played well-known and beloved melodies. And there will be 24 of them, think of it, out in the sweet, fresh air under the stars. See you there at twilight.

* * *

ROSE AND NANCY WHITMAN, pretty daughters of the Hendricks Whitmans, have journeyed out to Chicago to spend a few weeks with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor. Mrs. H. H. is busy writing another play. You will remember she had one produced in Boston last winter, "Heritage," by the Copley Players. How any one as bright and witty as the beautiful Adelaide could have written such a dull play, amazes us. We surely are looking forward to the next with interest. Miss Rose has recently returned from Italy where she attended that fashionable girls' school in Florence.

* * *

THIS MIGHT BE CALLED house-party month. We have heard of more week-end sprees, cruising parties and house parties than ever before. Among others the Chandler Robbins, who are summering with Mrs. Robbins' parents, the Joseph Fosters, at Biddeford Pool—that oh, so fashionable spot on the coast — are having a continual round of house parties.

Rose Whitman

* * *

HOME, SWEET HOME looks better than Bohemia to handsome William Duane, lately of the Somerset Club. We hear he has gone back to Haverford, Pa., and Mrs. Bill, after a sojourn around these parts; even a treasure house is no fun unless your feeling fit. We believe the lovely daughter of Haverford, Pa., was presented at the Court of St. James this past winter.

* * *

THE LEVERETT TUCKERMANS of Beacon st. and Mr. William Richardson, brother of Mrs. Tuckerman, who have been living in Florence, Italy, since last spring, are returning this month to spend the remainder of the season at Nahant, where they usually summer. Nahant is mentioned so often, we wonder if it is really coming to life after all these years.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cutler, the former Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, are entertaining a great deal at their beautiful villa at the Queen resort, Newport, R. I. The marriage was one of the pleasant shocks in the social world this summer.

First of Plays to Be Given July 20

Summer colonists seem to have gone out for dramatics, professionally, in a big way. Every other resort now has a playhouse of some sort or another.

Mrs. Evans R. Dick, Jr., has gotten up a lot of enthusiasm for one in Magnolia this summer and under her direction, with Mr. Vladimir Resing managing the production and choosing the plays to be presented, she will open it in the Oceanside Hotel on the 20th, for a season of six weeks or more.

Three plays will be put on during this time, the first being "Effie Gallow," the dramatization of the novel, "Effie's Orchard," by Claire Spencer. Miss Pauline Lord has been chosen for the leading lady, and an excellent cast will support her.

Another attraction to the delightful evenings Mrs. Dick is planning is the charming ballroom of the hotel, with its beautiful view of the ocean, where those who wish may dance either during intermissions or after the performance.

The list of patronesses for this affair includes the names of Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., Mrs. Leslie Buswell, Mrs. Charles M. Butler, Mrs. Katherine Schuyler Chesto, Mrs. Russell S. Codman, Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, Mrs. James C. Dunn, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. Durward Grinstead, Mrs. John C. Howe, Mrs. John S. The Empress Eugenie Hat Is New

By ANN ARDEN

OH, LADY, lady, what a changed expression you will achieve in the romantic new hats for fall—gone the surprised, back-tilt, which has made most of us look blank, if not moronish! These hats have distinction, and are guaranteed to be more becoming than the chapeau we have worn these past months.

* * *

IN THE new hat era that approaches, the "cover one eye" motif will be strongly present. And talk about tilts! These hats will be tilted until they look as though they would drop down and obliterate the eye at the slightest suggestion.

* * *

PICTURED is the "Empress Eugenie," a very new model, extremely chic, which may be worn now, and continue, with assurance, into fall. Of white felt, it is worn high on the left side, its curved brim sharply pointed over right eye.

* * *

THE DERBY like crown and brim are banded in the felt, while a cut-out flower of the material is posed at back.

* * *

DOWN IN the front, down in the back—that is the way that the new hats will take. It is an idea that we will all have to accustom ourselves to, but the chances are we will like it better than the ones we have been wearing. Wait and see.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American, or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAB.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE SALTONSTALL WEST and their family, of Chestnut Hill, have moved to True Farm, their summer place on Squam Lake, in Maine. And joining them there is Mr. West's sister, Mrs. A. L. West Mevius, with her charming daughter, Rose, who is engaged to Mr. Potter Palmer, 3d, of Chicago, Rose's twin brother, George, and their elder brother, Hallam, the former a classmate in both school and college of his sister's fiancee, both being graduated with this year's class at Harvard, and the latter a 1930 graduate.

MRS. ROBERT WINTHROP, the former Theodora Ayer, has come on from her home in Syosset, Long Island, accompanied by her little daughter, for a week's visit with her parents, the Charles Fanning (Chill) Ayers of Topsfield, where she will assist at the church fair of which her mother is chairman.

THE COUNTESS COLLORE-DO-MANSFIELD has just sailed with her charming daughter, the Countess Eleonora, for a summer in Austria. Eleonora, a debutante of the coming season, will live with, and be presented by, the I. Tucker Burrs, this winter. Any dates for a dance, tea or luncheon that they may give in her honor have not been decided on as yet.

DR. AND MRS. HOLLIS BATCHELDER will present their daughter, Miss Barbara, at a tea-dance at the Dedham Polo and Country Club October 22.

Several hundred store members of Houghton's are enthusiastically entering into the inter-department selling campaign which opened officially July 1. Daily prizes of $5 are being awarded throughout this month to sales persons making the largest number of suggested sales outside their own departments. The grand prize on the last day of the month will be a week's vacation in New York with all expenses paid by the firm, announced James McDermott, store manager.

Charles P. Bentley, bargain table merchandise manager, has charge of the contest. Prizes awarded this week went to Miss Mary McDonough, tinware, on Monday; Miss Margaret Sullivan, yard goods, on Tuesday, and Miss Sadie Keneran, china, on Wednesday.

Ball Will Open New Hotel

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, July 10 (US)—The magnificent new Waldorf Astoria, now nearing completion at Park ave. and 50th st., will be formally opened the night of Nov. 6, next. The great structure will begin its career with a gigantic entertainment to be given for the benefit of the Association for Improving the Conditions of the Poor.

No less a notable than Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly, daughter of Mrs. Hamilton McKown Twombly, is serving as chairman of the committee in charge of the event which promises to be one of the highlights of the early season, and through Miss Twombly I learn more than 3000 guests will be invited to the entertainment.

The event will be known as the A. I. C. P. Charity Ball and Miss Twombly and her committee—Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, Mrs. Kenneth P. Budd and Thomas Cochran—have arranged to take over all the entertainment suites of the hotel.

The underlying motif will be "A Night Tour of Paris," and there will be a succession of entertainments featured consecutively in the various ballrooms.

'HURRY, NOISE, NERVES' WHO SUFFERS?

—By Gilbert Seldes—

I read recently Complaint No. 347,852 against modern civilization, read it hastily because all you have to do is pick out the usual nouns: hurry, noise, nerves, breakdown —— you know what it is all about. With the usual quantity of ears and, according to my doctor, nerves, I continue in a state of calm; I am, in fact, as unperturbed as a steelworker in a Pittsburgh mill. Observing the open-hearth furnaces in Homestead a few months ago I was impressed by the fact that the workers put on dark glasses against the gorgeous and destructive light of the melting pot, but do not stuff their ears against the appalling racket and clamor which goes on about them. Nor, so far as I know, do they indulge in nervous breakdowns.

* * *

Vocal Protestants

A few broken ribs in a motor accident are a good corrective against any indiscriminate love of speed for its own sake and if you care for conversation or taxi-necking the rattle of an elevated train is a nuisance. The cynical suggestion that people really love their city noises and that Americans would go anywhere if the going were fast enough, exaggerates in one direction. It implies that we are conscious of noise and speed. And that is exactly the point: the people who protest, the fine-fibred ones who break down and cry, turn their own sensitiveness into a universal malady. They cannot bear the bustle and the outcry, and they are pretty determined that no one else shall. What is more, they get into print; the others observe a decent privacy.

* * *

Ferrero's Warning

The Italian historian, Ferrero, in a footnote to his major work, once remarked that we get our ideas of corruption in ancient Rome from the moralists, not from the corrupted. He suggested that so long as moralists rise up and shout shame on a civilization it cannot be all bad; the irredeemably bad times are those when every one is corrupt and contented, when there is no complaint, when the moral level is so low that no one is moved to protest.

This strikes me as eminently sensible (and if anyone wants to use the idea in defense of the officials of Memphis, Buffalo, or Irkutsk, I shall be only too happy). The practical bearing of the idea is this: that the exceptions always make themselves felt out of all proportion to their numbers and worth; the shell-shocked are more interesting and pathetic than those who were unaffected, and only the few who have had operations are always talking about them.

* * *

A Private Stagger

In the army training camps there were always two ways of escaping the one unbearable feature of military life—waiting in line. The first was to run like mad and get in at the head of the line; the other was to loaf like a gentleman and saunter in at the very end. I do not mean inspections and drill; mess, showers, pay, mail and a dozen other events left the individual soldier enough leeway. And the comfort of life was multiplied 100 times if you introduced a stagger system of your own, and took a shower when every one else was sweltering in the South Carolina sun in a perfect rush to get $15 to lose to the sergeants in a crap game.

In city life there is only one absolutely vile and humiliating and inhuman event: the crowding in street cars and subways. Dozens of ways to avoid this are available, the best one being walking and waiting.

* * *

A Darling

The sweetest story ever told has just come from Chicago. It appears that one Chicagoan is so dear to the hearts of his fellow-citizens that they have laughingly named him Public Enemy No. 1. The pranks that boy is up to keep Chicago in gales of laughter and every once in a while they get up a masquerade and somebody dresses as a policeman and raps Mr. Capone, for such indeed is his real name, on the shoulder. Good old Al takes it in the spirit of fun and motors around until he finds a convenient court house for his plea.

The screaming part of the game comes when "sentence" is passed. Just to show how good a sport he is, Capone pleaded "guilty" the last time, causing rage of laughter and, what Chicago will never get over, it was before a federal judge. A big celebration was scheduled for "sentence day," the 30th of June, but, such fun! Capone asked the judge to postpone a month. And the judge did, but he was very severe and he pulled down his eyebrows and glowered at the little culprit and "a promise was exacted that the gangster would not dodge the immediate serving of his term on July 30."

* * *

Bright Repartee

Few people outside of America can relish the humor of such an episode, but all must admire the quick comeback which Mr. Capone made, for the boy is a wit as well as a holy terror. It wouldn't do to let the judge have the last word; Capone doesn't use stoogers. So after he had promised the dear old judge to go right to jail the minute the judge sent him, he came right back with a statement that "he would like a sentence of three years' imprisonment."

What made it so frightfully jolly was the general knowledge that the judge has the right to impose a sentence of 32 years.

Defense

He hastened to meet me with fatuous grin,
And wrung my limp hand till I feared it would crack—
He chortled "Old Timer—well, how have you been!"
And slapped me with vim on my sun blistered back.

He mopped his damp brow—and I wonder what more you
Could ask Man to bear: Something snapped at the sound
Of his voice when he wheezed "Is it hot enough for you?"

Cathedral

—By Bruno Lessing—

CHARTRES—The great attraction here is the cathedral dedicated to the Holy Virgin. SOME cathedral! Everybody in the world ought to see it at least once because it creates a memory that one carries through life.

Couldn't help thinking of how some people might react upon their first sight of it.

Business man: "How much did it cost? What's the return?"

Union laborer: "What wages did they pay the guys who did this work?"

Politician: "Wonder who got in on the graft."

Philosopher: "What has it all got to do with religion?"

* * *

THE cream of it all is the stained glass. From the outside you see windows, smudgy and dreary. But from the inside, especially when the sunlight is streaming through, you see the Promised Land, in colors.

The making of stained glass, today, seems to be a lost art. Of course, it is being made. But not this intoxicating, mediaeval stuff.

At any rate, there are no reds, blues, yellows or purples in the world—not even in the realm of flowers—that have the warmth, the vividness or the joy of life that you feel upon beholding the sunlight shining through an old stained glass window.

* * *

It is always cold inside. The temperature of 600 winters is imprisoned within the cathedral's high walls and many visitors, coming in on a warm day, go out with the sniffles.

There are little boxes along the walls where visitors are invited to drop a contribution to heat the place. The average visitor drops in less than a dime—because nobody watches him.

But as you stand in the nave or the transept and revel in the flood of joyful light that pours through those ancient windows—

"The light that never was on sea or land.
"The consecration, and the poet's dream—"

you feel a warmth of heart and soul that is not soon forgotten. Also, unless you're a hopeless atheist, you feel something soothing and uplifting within you. It's hard to put a name to it—but it gets you.

Carvings so delicate, so dainty, the lines blending so softly into one another that they seem like a lot of cobwebs designed from the fabric of some wonderful lace.

* * *

There's another impression you get. As you look at the stained glass windows and at some of the chrvings you see in a corner, mysterious names which, the guide tells you, are the names of the donors.

Among them are the Plumbers' Guild, the Furriers' Guild, the Fishmongers' Guild, the Plasterers' Guild and all the other trades unions of those ancient days. With here and there the name of a king or a count or some millionaire of those days.

You feel that religion meant something real to them. You feel that they were real human beings. You feel closer to your own kind—even though they all died nearly a thousand years ago—than you ever did before.

Then you get a kick. There's a placard reading:

Nurse's Life

By Charles Hanson Towne

THERE IS NO DOUBT that a great novel could be written about the life of a nurse. The quiet drama of such an existence, with side glimpses into the lives of the families they serve, might make engrossing reading.

After I had read some of the encomiums of praise which had been lavished upon Edward Sackville-West's book, "Simpson—a Life," published now in this country by Knopf, I felt that perhaps the volume we were waiting for had arrived. One enthusiastic reviewer in London has said of it: "I would place it in the first fifty novels England has produced in this century." That is high praise, indeed. Personally, I can think of over a hundred novels written during the past half century which would make it impossible for "Simpson" even to get its elbow at the door.

* * *

In the first place, Mr. Sackville-West approaches his theme too seriously. Instead of allowing his characters to tell their own stories, he is fearful lest the reader, at the very start, will not see what it is he is trying to say; and so he steps in boldly, like a teacher with a little text book in her hand, and announces, speaking of his protagonist:

"Perhaps it was this feeling which, communicating itself in her appearance and manner, kept the young men away. The dedicated priestess is seldom an object of sexual desire, though Iphigenia was an exception to the rule. The born nun has few suitors; as Blake has it—

"What is it men in women do require?
The lineaments of gratified Desire."

One suitor had offered his heart and hand to poor Ruth Simpson; and then the door of romance closed forever on her bleak existence. Yet she had chosen the path she wished to tread. She wanted no children, yet she desired to nurse the children of others—a hired servant. We are asked to believe that this vicarious joy in motherhood is a normal instinct.

Frustration is not a pretty or healthy theme; and when it is given to us in large doses, through 364 closely printed pages, one feels frustrated oneself. Add to that the fact that Simpson is the product of a lower middle class household in London, one of several boys and girls brought up in poverty by an unimaginative father and mother, and you have the perfect recipe for the drabbiest kind of novel.

But Arnold Bennett could have made Simpson convincing. He would have drawn her out of the marble, and caused us to sigh for her shoddy surroundings; he would have wrapped her in the sympathetic arms of his art, until we felt her pulses beat.

But Mr. Sackville-West (I wish I could just call him Mr. West hereafter, to save a little time) has not the power to evoke our compassion. He has given us, more's the pity, mereley a drab chronicle of an unconvincing female who wanders from house to house, rearing uninteresting or neurotic little brats.

Had he thrown in for good measure a view of the life that is lived below stairs in English country houses, he might have enchanted us, and filled us with pity for his dreary heroine.

* * *

AND the sad part of it is that he strives very hard to do this very thing. But you feel all the time that he does not know Simpson, that he never knew a woman like unto her; and so she remains a piece of cardboard, and never emerges from his pages a thing of flesh and blood.

And yet—there is some good and worthy writing in this book. When poor Simpson is forced to go back to her widowed sister, to take care of her filthy child, through that conscience which makes cowards of us all, a sense of the beauty of the woman's nature is made known to us. And the portion of the story which moves on to Krehwel, in Germany, lends variety to a tale that for a long time moves slowly and heavily from one bleak household to another.

And there is one truly touching moment when Simpson, after the war, discovers in a railway station one of the little boys she had nursed, now a man in uniform, and speaks to him. He thinks she wants financial assistance, while all she craves is a word of remembrance from his lips. Had there been more of this kind of emotional writing in the novel, it might have worked its way into our hearts.

* * *

MR. WEST (there!) is not happy in his use of figures of speech. Here is an example of his awkward approach:

"She was like a pianist who should find that the keys on her piano have suddenly lost their bed, falling to an indefinite and silly depth under her touch, and, though they sound the notes, refuse to come up again to their proper level."

On the contrary, he can be as good as this: "It must be a funny life—always living in someone else's family."

One of these days he may learn to be consistently good in his observations. "Simpson" is, if it is anything, only a step in the right direction. And I can but wish that someone else, with a surer touch, might have tackled this big theme.

HOLLYWOOD NEWS By Harriet Parsons

'The Second Life' to Be Ruth Chatterton's Last on Paramount Lot

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, July 10—Wonder if Paramount is heaping coals of fire on Ruth Chatterton's head. Certainly no one expected them to give Ruth such a marvelous break on her last few pictures. Yet in spite of the fact that she goes to Warners after two more films, Paramount has been giving her the best stories, direction and supporting casts.

Harriet Parsons

"The Second Life," a play by Jules Eckert Goodman, has just been purchased for Miss Chatterton's last under the Paramount banner. It will be re-titled "Notoriety" and she will make it when she completes Philip Barry's "Tomorrow and Tomorrow."

Richard Wallace will direct the Barry play. Guthrie McClintock, excellent stage director and husband of Katherine Cornell, will direct and Zoe Akins will adapt "Notoriety," story of a woman's life wrecked by a husband's indifference.

* * *

Hal Roach's inspired duo, Laurel and Hardy, are about to make a story amusingly titled "Beau Hunks." It's about the Foreign Legion and judging from the name, we can look forward to a hilarious parody of all the previous "Beaus" and probably "Morocco," too. At any rate, the prospect of seeing plump Oliver and weepy Stan as Legionnaires is something to live for. James Horn will direct. By the way, Roach has just signed David Rollins, formerly at Fox, on a five-year contract and will feature him in the "Boy Friend" series.

* * *

Roland Brown, who authored "Doorway to Hell," gangster box office smash, has just sold Lasemm, Jr., an original story titled "Gallows." However, in spite of the title "Gallows" is not a gangster story. It will be Brown's first directorial assignment for Universal, with whom he signed a contract after his fuss with Fox last week over "Yellow Ticket." Young Laemmle who figures the Brown-Fox ruckus gave Universal a lucky break, will personally supervise.

* * *

The versatile Ivan Lebedeff, who besides being an actor and writer, holds Hollywood's handkissing championship, has just sold Radio another story of his own, titled "The Marquis." Yarn which was published in France and has a European background, will be Ivan Lebedeff's next starring vehicle. Gerrit Lloyd is adapting and Richard Dix directorship will probably direct. This is the second original story of Lebedeff's to be accepted by Radio, to whom he is under contract. Not long ago Radio brought "Strange Woman," said to be the former czarist officer's own life history.

Marx brothers are planning to depart Eastward immediately after the preview of "Monkey Business." We—and they—will have a year to rest up for their next visit, since their Paramount contract only calls for one a year. Jesse Lasky, Jr., who has been working in Paramount's East coast foreign department, becomes assistant to Ned Marin in the Hollywood studios. Minor Watson, who was simply elegant in New York stage production of "It's a Wise Child," added to cast of "Twenty-Four Hours."

Just received a voluminous and incoherent wire addressed to Henrietta Parsons. Confused me at first but the signature clarified everything. It's from none other than that young scallawag, Fifi Dorsay. Says Fifi: "arrived by plane Breezy Point to spend week with Captain and Mrs. Fawcett. Am so happy. Forget your new paper worries and come up among these jack pines while your mother is enjoying the Hulas. Would we have fun?

Sterling Stage Bill, Rare Music and 'Women Love Once' on Program

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

When the films fall out, honest men of the stage get their dues. The sorrows of "Women Love Once" give all the breaks to the footlight offerings at the Metropolitan. And the flesh-and-blood performers come through with the goods, and in easily and entertainingly bear the burden of amusing the audience. Charles Hector's taking over the baton as guest conductor puts him into the spotlight for an ovation; and Frank Cambria's stars shine out in the revue, "Roof Top Revels."

* * *

Practically all the strength of "Women Love Once" lies in the excellent acting of Paul Lukas and in the equally excellent settings. This is the Zoe Akins stage play. "Daddy Goes A-Hunting" done over: a story of a love triangle. Mr. Lukas is an artist, living happily enough with his wife (Eleanor Boardman) and child. Marilyn Knowlden, until that bold cinema vamp, Juliette Compton, drops a fly into the ointment of blissful domesticity. She lures the husband away, leaving the road clear for Geoffrey Kerr to woo the wife. As is the wont of all such wayward flesh, Mr. Lukas in time comes home, like the chickens, to roost. Sad to tell, his two pals from the Latin quarter of Paris, Mischa Auer and Judith Wood, make a further mess of Miss Boardman's affairs. The usual gets worse, until Marilyn is hit by an auto. You have guessed the happenings in advance through the picture; and as easily know now that the child's death reconciles the parents.

Mr. Lukas, as always, is capable: his work here is extremely clever. Miss Boardman, pleasen, and some of the other characters do quite well. The direction and dialogue are below par.

On stage, the story is just the reverse. Mr. Cambria knows his business, and his revues sparkle. Some of his bright lights are The Musketeers; Hart, Whitestone and Polly, also the Tiffany Twins, and the comics, Rob Carney and Jean. It's a fine unit. Mr. Hector expertly guides the orchestra through a long selection, and through one of his own compositions. The reception indicates his popularity. Mr. Martel presides at the organ, and has to acknowledge much applause.

THOUSANDS AT CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

The Esplanade Concerts, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, opened their third season last night. These concerts, in which the rising young conductor leads a group of 50 players from the Boston Symphony Orchestra in what are known as "popular" programs, are substantially a Boston institution at an age when most other ventures of the sort are still in their swaddling clothes.

The turnout last night was sufficient evidence of this. Despite the threatening weather the attendance was to be numbered by the thousands, not by the hundreds.

The program listed Rerlioz' "Rakoczy" March, Grieg's First "Peer Gynt" Suite, the overture to Wagner's "Tannhauser," and shorter and lighter pieces. We found ourselves using the performance as a stimulus to ruminations about the seating of the orchestra—so different from that in the concert-hall; the extraordinary carrying-power of some of the wood-wind instruments; the occasional freakiness of the sound reception as one moved about from one vantage-point to another.

Tonight's Program

Another open air concert of orchestral music is to be given tonight at 8:30 by 50 players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, on the Esplanade, Charles River basin, foot of Mt. Vernon st. The program for tonight:

1. Wedding March from "La Coq d'Or" ..... Rimsky-Korsakow
2. Three German Dances ..... Mozart
3. Largo from "Xerxes" ..... Handel (Solo violin—M. Gaston Elcus)
4. Overture to "Mignon" ..... Thomas (Interval)
5. Rhapsody, "Espana" ..... Chabrier
6. Intermezzo symphonic "Cavalleria Rusticana" ..... Mascagni
7. "By the Beautiful Blue Danube," Waltzes ..... Strauss
8. Introduction to Act III, "Lohengrin" ..... Wagner

South Sea Love Story in Film

Peter B. Kyne's famous story of the clash between civilization and the South Seas, "Never the Twain Shall Meet," made into a photoplay begins an engagement today at Loew's Orpheum. Conchita Montenegro, 17-year-old Spanish girl, has the principal feminine role. Leslie Howard, Broadway stage star, has the leading male role.

"Never the Twain Shall Meet" was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, who has become known as an expert in the direction of tropical background pictures. Van Dyke directed "White Shadows in the South Seas," "The Pagan," and also "Trader Horn," taking large location companies thousands of miles from the west coast studio in each case.

A large number of native extras has been required in every one of the Van Dyke productions and "Never the Twain Shall Meet" is no exception to the rule.

Gala Vaudeville at Boston

A Vaudeville Fiesta of eight acts, headed by the screen and stage star, Armida, begins at the RKO Keith-Boston tomorrow. Armida is one of the newest Gus Edwards' discoveries. Mr. Edwards took Armida from the Pacific Coast to fill a vaudeville engagement with him in the East. This opened the doors to musical comedy and pictures and Armida soon found herself featured in the operetta, "Nina Rosa" and assigned to important roles with John Barrymore in the picture, "General Crack," "Under the Texas Moon," "On the Border" and "Boudoir Romance." Armida is Mexican and an excellent singer and dancer. In vaudeville she is assisted by Ramirez and Lara and John Wellington.

Armida

Howard, Fine and Howard and Ted Macks will appear in "Call the Act." Harry Cardiff and Mary Wales appear in a comedy skit, "Divorce." "An Impromptu Revue" is staged by Sis and Buddy Roberts. Sandy Lang presents "A Skating Classic," assisted by Emeraide Sisters and Patti Lee. Will Aubrey, "the Bard of the Byways," injects comedy into his song scenes. Lester and Irving Trio have an athlete act. Jimmy O'Brien and Jack Hewitt are billed as "Songland's Sons," another act rated as decidedly entertaining.

RUNAWAY WIFE SAYS 'OFFICER' LURED HER

Danbury, N. H., July 10—Following the return to her home of Mrs. Adaia Heath, attractive mother of five, police of Danbury and surrounding towns are seeking Richard Jennings, bogus detective, with whom Mrs. Heath said she spent the past two weeks.

Mrs. Heath, sought by authorities here as a "runaway wife" on complaint of her husband, said she went with Jennings to protect her two daughters, June, 14, and Charlotte, 13, whom Jennings sought to take with him in one of his "official" capacities.

CHILDREN CARED FOR

The girls, with two younger children who remained with the mother and Jennings, are with Mrs. Heath's parents in Keene, Mrs. Heath said.

Jennings posed as a state welfare officer, Mrs. Heath said, and she went with him when he declared he was ordered to take her children as state wards.

CAME AT MIDNIGHT

According to Curtis Heath, the husband, Jennings first appeared in his home as an officer of a court, bearing an order to dispossess the family of furniture, Heath said that Jennings, accompanied by a woman, entered his home in the middle of the night, and ordered Mrs. Heath to dress and accompany him to court.

The story related by Mrs. Heath to her husband on her return last night, is being probed today by Will ngsby A. Colby, solicitor of Merrimac county.

Heath will go to Keene to get his children.

BENGAL TIGERS MENACE MEXICO

Pachuca, Mexico, July 10 (INS)—Hunters returning from the mountains near Vila Del Carbon report that the count of Bengal tigers, roaming the region has apparently increased greatly in numbers this year.

The ferocious beasts, which are not known to exist anywhere else in America, have decreased with perturbing frequency to the lower limits in recent months and should soon threaten cattle. Several native have been killed, causing local authorities to offer bounties to hunters for each animal bagged.

The farmers declare the unwelcome tiger colony must have originated through the wreck of a circus train 18 years ago, when a Bengal tiger and tigress escaped into the mountain wilderness.

The tiger and tigress were not seen again, but several years later Bengal tigers began to attack cattle grazing in the foothills.

Manila Students to March or Lose Grade

Manila, July 10 (AP)—The Manila Bulletin says it has verified reports "professors and teachers of one of the largest institutions in the city" have told students "a certain percentage will be deducted from their grades unless they attend Philippine Independence parade scheduled for Sunday."

The parade will be in the nature of a demonstration for Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri and Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, who are visiting here. Both are proponents of Philippine independence.

Heavy Ore Deposit Found on Island

Edmonton, Alta., July 10 (AP)—T. G. Donovan, Detroit geophysicist, has brought from an island in Echo Lake samples of ore which he said had assayed up to $1200 a ton.

He refused to identify the mineral in the ore or tell on which island it had been found, on the ground that "it would be regrettable, indeed, to cause a stampede to that part of the country."

Donovan said there was also copper and radium on the island.

London Goat All Ready for Gandhi

London, July 10 (AP)—When Mahatma Gandhi gets here next fall for the second round table conference he will be a goat ready to supply the fresh milk which forms an important part of his food diet.

Miss Muriel Lester, his probable hostess, disclosed she had selected the woman among a dozen or more offered by persons in many parts of the country.

Bridge Expert Bets $5000 He Can Win

New York, July 10 (AP)—Comes Sidney Lenz to accept a challenge and a bet by Ely Culbertson as to contract bridge. Culbertson offered to wager $5000 to $1000, charity to take all, that he, his wife and his bidding system could beat any team designated by a group of rivals.

$12,000,000 Suit by Doherty in Gas Fight

Kansas City, July 10 (AP)—Henry L. Doherty, head of the Cities Service Co., filed suit for $12,000,000 damages against the Kansas City Star here today as an outgrowth of a campaign by the Star and Governor Harry Woodring for a reduction in Kansas gas rates.

Mouse Kills Motor

Newport, Vt., July 10—A mouse silenced a big motor. Vaughn House was unable to start his automobile and called a mechanic, who found the mouse had built a nest in the carburetor.

STRUBER GIRL TELLS HER STORY

Though Slain Man's Ex-Secretary Answers Colt Readily, She Fails to Throw Light on Choir Singer Mystery

"THE MURDER OF THE CHOIR SINGER"

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

AS THATCHER COLT paused and shuffled some papers covered with his pencilled notes, his phone rang and he talked to Lengel over the wire.

Lengel and Fegley are on the job," he remarked in a gratified tone. "They have learned that a call was made by Mrs. Saunders to Doctor Beazeley at six-forty-five last night. That was, of course, the call of which Isabel heard one part and Mrs. Beazeley the other. Further, they have traced a much more important call—somebody at 13 Sangster Terrace telephoned to Gerald Curtainwood last night, a few minutes after nine o'clock.

I stared at Colt in amazement. He was deliberately loading his pipe.

"That is a detail Mr. Gerald neglected to mention," the chief went on grimly. "I shall be interested to refresh his memory. Another thing—Lengel has located a woman who keeps a tea-room near Sangster Terrace. She has some kind of a private sale. She and I will have to have a little talk, too.

She told Fegley that the couple used to drop into her tea-room and that once she overheard them talking about some secret place in the church that they used as a post-office box. That seems odd to you?"

"Can't we go up there now?"

"Not too fast. I want to think during the recess to you and wait for Dougherty.

"Let's continue, then. Some of our men have been digging into the past lives of all these people, but their study has not been very helpful or illuminating so far. We found out that a man named Frush did guard the Valiant last night while Saunders was away, and that Saunders remarked on leaving that he was going home for a bottle of medicine. That is by way of clearing the ground.

STRANGE FRUIT

"So is the search of the Beazeley rectory and study, the Saunders house in Lame Man's Court and the continued examination of No. 13 Sangster Terrace—searches of three houses which I have initiated this morning, conducted by experts, but which have, so far, revealed practically nothing. Still, the quest for the gossip in the congregation has yielded some strange fruit."

"You mean it was known—"

"Some people knew about the love affair. The scandal was not rife in the congregation, but it was talked about. As you know now, the widow and the Curtainwoods lied brazenly when they said there was no intimacy."

"Do you think Willis Saunders knew?"

"I don't know what to think about him. I am inclined to give some thought to his daughter, Isabel. In school, she has a reputation for being a holdish and a bit giddy, but good-natured. The remarkable thing is that in the last few months she has been reserved and melancholy; a girl turning into a hypochondriac in front of her teacher's eyes. We may find something there."

By the excited gleam in Colt's eyes I knew how keen he was on the case. But I knew, too, that the mystery was deepened, rather than simplified, by the ramifications exposed by our detectives in their first morning on the case. The next moment, Colt surprised me by saying.

"Nor is the supernatural missing from our complications, Jon."

"Ay, me lad! A tale of haunting, phantasms seen cruising through the darkened aisles of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels."

"Well, that's one thing we don't have to worry about."

I wouldn't be so sure. The story seems to have had wide circulation. Then it was hushed up. But at odd hours — once, certainly, when the church was locked up—something was seen moving about mysteriously inside. Several people saw the apparition at different times. No, I wouldn't be inclined to dismiss that spook too readily."

Colt looked thoughtful for a moment.

"Finally," he recited, "we come to a vital bead — the clergyman's private secretaries."

"You dwell on that." I reminded him "last night and again this morning. Would you mind enlightening me—why do you consider that so vital?"

Colt spread wide his hands and looked at me in amusement.

"It is almost impossible," he expounded, "for a man to keep secrets from his secretary. Sooner or later, however secretive he may be, she will find out what is going on. From the woman who worked side by side with the Reverend Timothy Beazeley I am sanguine of obtaining something tangible about his feverish inner life."

BOTH WAITING

"Yes. Both Miss Emma Hicks, who was his secretary after the resignation of Evelyn Saunders, and Bessie Struber, from whom Evelyn took over the job, are waiting at this moment in our anteschamber. They were rounded up for us this morning by Detective Schultz, the most conscientious, the most complete fact-finder in the business. Suppose we have him in first."

A moment later, Detectives-Sergeant Schultz entered the room.

"Well, Schultz?"

The short, inconspicuous little man, one of the best operatives in the whole department, whose only vanity is that he wears a patent nose-reshaping instrument when he sleeps, shook his head emphatically.

"Not so well, Mr. Colt. I wish I could have done better for you this time. But I've done what I could."

"And how much was that?"

"I landed the Struber lass with no trouble at all. She's been working for Beazeley before the Saunders skirt hove on the blue horizon. She's dumb as dumb could be. But the lucky gal—the one that worked with the skypilos after they made him chuck the one that subsequently was taken for a ride—I mean the latest secretary—wow! She's a tornado!"

And Schultz wiped his brow with the manner of Hercules after one of his heaviest labors.

"Let's take them in proper order," opposed Colt. "Bessie Struber was secretary number one. Evelyn Saunders number two, and Emma Hicks number three?"

SAVES HER MONEY

"Bessie, Evelyn, and Emma, that's the parade, Mr. Colt."

"Where did you find Bessie Struber?"

"At her place of business. She's a secretary at the Darlow Publications, Inc., trade-paper publishers on West Thirty-ninth st. Works for the second vice-president, in charge of advertising. Lives with her mother and father on the top floor of a walk-up on East Ninety-fourth st.

"Her married sister has a flat on the next floor. Bessie makes a good salary—forty-five bucks a week. But she must save it all. Her mother and father are well off and don't need her money—yet she never goes to the movies, dresses like last year's almanac, wears no jewelry except a cheap old pair of earrings that belonged to her grandmother, and devotes her spare time, evenings, Saturday afternoons and Sundays either to extra work for extra pay, or else in the service of the Lord up at the church. She's a hard-working, pale-faced runt, with too much industry, patience and perseverance and no sex urge. A prime conscientious!"

"Bring her in," instructed Colt, his face serious and composed, except for the unmanageable twinkle of his eyes, adding as an afterthought, "Be sure to arrange fingerprint doorknobs for both the young ladies."

Bessie Struber justified Schultz's worldly opinion of her physical charms. She was a jejune little monochrome in brown—eyes, hair, and neat, inexpensive business dress, shoes, stockings, purse, and mended gloves. But I noticed that her skin was fair, and fine and delicately beautiful.

Her air was frightened and yet not impervious shock. She had a slow-witted glance and a generally discouraged air.

Whether this was habitual or a result of the shocking news of the crime I could not determine She looked around her with a slow, harassed gaze before taking the chair to which Colt courteously invited her.

Quickly the police commissioner drew a statement from Bessie Struber, after dismissing Sergeant Schultz with a lift of his dark eyebrows. Her story was simple enough. Her father was a wholesaler of stationery and office supplies, who had retired.

Bessie had worked since high school because she enjoyed it. All her life she had attended services regularly at the Church of St. Michael and All Angels, and upon her graduation from the Pratt Secretarial School Dr. Beazeley had offered her a place as his helper.

"That was my first job. I kept it nearly three years. Then I became worn out and our family physician said I had overworked. So I got a vacation. When I came back, Dr. Beazeley had filled my place and I had to seek work elsewhere."

"I see. Mrs. Saunders took your place?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you think Mrs. Saunders and Beazeley were in love with each other?"

Bessie Struber flushed.

"I have heard that gossip. I even read some of it in extras this morning. But Dr. Beazeley was too ambitious to piss as a churchman to waste his time on women"

All other questions failed to elicit any revealing light on the mystery; Bessie Struber answered frankly and fully, manifesting a warm desire to help the detectives, but, as is so often the case, her heat gave us no illumination

COACH JUDGES SELECTING WINNER

"Building a model Napoleonic coach of the sort entered in the Boston Evening American and Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild contests constitutes a mechanics art course for the builder."

This is the opinion of Andrew Rowell, division head of cabinet making, carpentry, painting and decorating and aviation departments at Boston Trade School, who is one of the judges. The 30 coaches entered are on display at Rogers Building, 491 Boylston st., where the judges are hard at work picking the winners, which will be announced tomorrow night with the awarding of prizes by Mayor Curley.

All boys who have entered the Fisher Body contest are eligible for the Boston Evening American competition. Any who have not done so should sign and mail the coupon printed elsewhere in this paper. The winner will receive a handsome silver loving cup

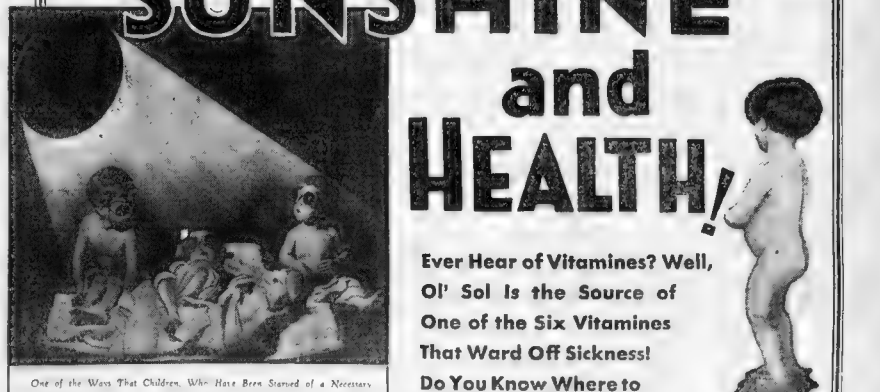
SUNSHINE and HEALTH!



One of the Ways That Children Who Have Been Started of a Necessary Supply of Vitamine D and Have Acquired Soft Bones Are Put Back Into Health Again. They Are Allowed to Play in the Sunshine or as Shown Above Are Given a "Food Bath" of Artificial Sunlight from an Ultra Violet Ray Lamp

Ever Hear of Vitamines? Well, Ol' Sol Is the Source of One of the Six Vitamines That Ward Off Sickness! Do You Know Where to Get the Rest?

MOST of us know that the sun's rays are conducive to health . . . But few know why sunshine has health-giving qualities . . . Science has proved that it is because the ultra-violet rays in sunlight enable the body to manufacture Vitamine D which aids bone growth and the clotting of blood, and prevents tooth decay.

This vitamine is only one of the six that have been discovered during the thirty years that scientists have known about them . . . These mysterious substances cannot be seen . . . They have no smell or taste . . . No one is certain about how they work . . . Nobody even knows exactly what they are . . . Yet science is positive that you will be sick or enfeebled if you starve yourself of the necessary supply of them.

The lack of Vitamine D, for instance, is the children's disease called rickets . This particular vitamine is supplied not only by sunshine but is found in several foods, such as: liver, egg yolk, cod liver oil, and snails.

The other five vitamines are also supplied by many common foods that should be included in one's diet to ward off many illnesses . . . Why not find out what these foods are? . . . You can do so easily by referring to the article that gives, in addition to all the facts that science now possesses about vitamines, a carefully prepared chart listing the chief foods that contain the various vitamines . . You will find it helpful in preparing a healthy diet . . . Look for this informative article in next Sunday's American Weekly

These Two Chicks Were Hatched at the University of Illinois from the Same Setting of Eggs But the Big One Was Given a Sun-Bath of Fifteen Minutes Every Day of Ultra-Violet Light, While the Smaller, Feeble Bird Was Kept Indoors and Never Allowed Any Sunlight The Surroundings and the Food for the Two Chicks Were the Same in All Other Respects

'GAG' IS PUT ON NEWS ABOUT HOOVER

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Theodore Joslin, secretary to President Hoover, said today the investigation of several newspaper stories originating outside official sources had failed to produce results.

He said any newspaper man had "a perfect right to ask any White House employe any question he wishes," but added "just try and get any information!"

After starting an investigation of Secret Service men and correspondents concerning accounts of how the President departed hurriedly from his Rapidan camp Sunday, the White House outlined a new policy regarding news.

This is that any story having to do with the President of the White House shall come from a "stated and official source." Joslin said he did not consider it a censorship.

Joslin, a former Boston newspaper man, has been designated by the President as the "stated source, but when the story under investigation happened he was in Washington and the President and reporters were in the Blue Ridge mountains.

The correspondents were unable to get in contact with Joslin and Lawrence Richey, secretary at the camp, "too busy to talk with newspaper men."

Veteran Washington correspondents have protested concerning the latest news policy. They told Joslin the ruling was a censorship and some of them frankly expressed resentment at being investigated.

Jugoslavia Faces Doom in Debt Plan

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, July 10 (AP)—The successful conclusion of the moratorium agreement between the United States and France has created widespread anxiety here.

Politicians expressed a belief the sacrifice demanded of Jugoslavia was beyond her strength. They doubted whether a government can be found which will assume responsibility for renunciation of Jugoslavia's share of 900,000,000 dinars (about $15,000,000) and they counted upon America taking this circumstance into special consideration.

WIFE IS LINDY'S EQUAL IN TEST

New York, July 10 (AP)—Mrs Anne Morrow Lindbergh, is the equal of her famous husband in radio sending and receiving on the records of the board of examiners of the second radio district.

Radio Supt. E. H. Lee gave the two Lindberghs the regular examination for commercial third class licenses to send and receive messages. Both passed it with high percentages he said. Their test included transmission performances and 25 technical questions.

The couple are now licensed radio operators qualified to send or receive at least 15 words a minute in code, adequate facility for any needs they may have on their contemplated trans-Pacific and Canadian flights.

RAIDS HOSPITAL TO KILL MAN

New York, July 10 (AP)—Anthony Mignogna, underworld foes sought to kill him today as he lay wounded in a Brooklyn hospital but their attempt was foiled by the gangster's henchmen, who stood guard around the hospital.

Shortly before dawn nurses attending Mignogna, wounded Tuesday in an attempt on his life, heard shots and saw one man pursued by four others, enter the hospital.

The men all carried drawn pistols. They ran up stairs to the floor where Mignogna lay helpless in bed. Then the pursuing four turned and fled and the other ran along the corridor, looking into rooms.

Suddenly two of the four who had left came back, grabbed the fifth man, carried him to the street, and hurled him into an automobile. Police expressed belief that he had been taken for "a ride."

Lynn Judge Knows How It Feels to Be a Prisoner

Judge Edward B. O'Brien of Lynn, who has parted many a defendant in the district court from his liberty, experienced something of sort himself yesterday when he unwittingly made himself a prisoner in the clerk of court's office.

The judge had some papers to file and all the attaches of the clerk's office had departed. He and a young attorney entered the office by the outside door, slammed it and then entered the clerk's cage. Leaving the cage, the outer door was found locked. They tried to get back into the cage but found the automatic lock barred them there.

About 20 minutes elapsed and Probation Officer Charles Colby put in an appearnce, learned the story and grinned.

"I haven't any key."

NAVY YARDS TO KEEP UP WAGES

Washington, July 10 (AP)—To prevent reduction of wages in the various navy yards and stations, Acting Secretary Jahncke today ordered that the present schedule be maintained and that meetings of the wage boards scheduled for August 15 be postponed indefinitely.

Without this order, local wage boards would have been obliged to recommend changes to conform to the standard paid on private projects in the same community. In view of present conditions of depression, Navy officials said this surely would have the effect of lowering the scale.

Under the law, wages paid at the navy yard must conform in general with those paid in the immediate vicinity.

In view of the present conditions with regard to employment of labor, Jahneck said, the Navy will continue the present schedule which is expected to be higher in virtually all cases than that prevailing in the communities.

THIS ART AND THEATER RACKET IS RUINING VACATION LAND

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

SUMMER ENTERTAINMENT, like everything else, changes. It is not so very long since Boston could be sure of having the old Tremont open all summer, with some musical show light and graceful and tuneful enough to carry on all summer and pass on into theatrical history besides. Sometimes it was a Savage operetta, sometimes a George M. Cohan show. I seem to remember as a boy "The Prince of Pilsen" and "The Burgomaster" and the Pixley and Luders "Woodland," and a bit later one of the Richard Carle operas, perhaps "The Spring Chicken," and a good deal later one of Cohan's shows named after an Irish colleen. Nowadays a summer show is something of an anachronism.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

And the folk who didn't go away had another recourse. Take a trolley line in almost any direction and you would find yourself in a trolley amusement park with a rustic theater, where some one of that extraordinary family of Ott brothers, with their cousins and uncles and nephews-in-law, would be disporting in summer burlesque. Louder than movies and a good deal funnier.

* * *

Good-bye, New England Atmosphere

Nowadays there are no simple summer shows and no rustic trolley-park theaters. The stay-at-homes have to depend for amusement on million-dollar talkies in iced theaters around the corner from a good soda fountain. It is the people at the summer resorts who are supposed to go there to get away from the artificialities of the big city, who are bombarded from June to September with high-brow art theaters, summer stocks, little theaters, schools of the theater, seasons-of-art theaters, and all the rest of it.

As I write I can find four such entertainments within a radius of 10 miles—one fairly old-established theater school with a reputation for giving good plays of the high-brow sort in a competent manner; one new and unproved theater school, both amateur and amateurish; one company of New York professionals, on a vacation sponsored by a hotel, in the near-successes of the past season; and one highly fashionable and expensive semi-amateur group that produces smart comedy and grand opera at Metropolitan prices.

Cape Cod is dotted with these summer theaters, one of them historic, and the coastline of Maine boasts almost as many as it boasts lighthouses and fog-bells. For several years a certain lake in Maine up near Waterville has been famous as a try-out theater, all rigged out with actors, authors, and an audience that might just as well be back on Broadway and be done with it.

This latest summer development of the little theater racket, which got under way about 1913 and suffered severely during the war but is still going strong in the South and West, has done more to change the character of many of our quiet, old New England seacoast towns than anything except prohibition. The school of the little theater usually goes hand in hand with an art school—and then good-bye to the old New England summer atmosphere which used to be one part school teachers, one part retired clergymen and one part children.

A Modern 'Art' Colony

Nowadays the children are all away at camps with unpronounceable Indian names, and the school teachers and the clergymen are either betraying the fine arts in a painting school or sweating themselves making batik costumes and painting cockeyed scenery for the local impresario. There spring up all over the quiet little town strange eating places, with blinds and awnings in all colors of the rainbow and picturesque signs purporting to be Spanish, Italian, German or Parisian. People are induced to hang around evenings and smoke and drink coffee and listen to New York cabaret people out of work. And occasionally the Greenwich Village atmosphere becomes so overpowering (in every sense) that decent people who have been coming here summers ever since Nahant got too Bohemian, back in 1883, have to complain to the selectmen.

The streets suddenly seem full of young women who never wash their necks or comb their hair and whose notions of dress are somewhat of a cross between their ideas of the Lido and their actual experience of the Bronx. They are, however, far less decorative than their young men, who write or make batiks or do Russian dancing. The boys are good dressers on and off, in sandals and orchid silk smocks and earrings and a high makeup. The visiting clergyman, who never saw anything like it at home, feels somehow that in sponsoring them he is aiding the American theater. The natives and the old summer families would just as soon entertain a gang of admitted racketeers.

One summer my small daughter went to one of these schools of the theater, managed by people who never in their lives were behind the scenes in a professional theater and who got all their stage craft at the summer school of the Walla-Walla College, where even the road shows no longer come. There was no pretence of training the children in even a few of the rudiments of the stage, as even a good actor has to be trained.

It's All a Racket

No, it was all self-expression. One day we found daughter and a few of her little mates curled up on the floor in various positions trying to feel like tomatoes, radishes, cabbage heads and even artichokes. When they felt that they felt properly, they were encouraged to arise and express the soul of the string bean in pantomime.

They say that these theater school people are beginning to get on Broadway—which may explain the feeling one has that most of the younger people on the stage today belong back in the old church vestry. As Walter Pritchard Eaton is fond of saying: The worst professional actor is better than the best amateur. And when one sees these theater schools, whose teachers have learned all they know from other teachers in other theater schools, with never a whiff of the necessary professional dog-training, one learns to pick a spot for his summer vacation where the art school has never penetrated and where the natives lynched the last little theater promoter.

One sympathizes with the trained actors out of a job who are willing to gamble on their experience in putting over a decent show to separate the summer people from their money. That is perfectly legitimate. And one can forgive the fashionable amateur with money to burn. But when the unsuccessful artist or the unsuccessful actor or the unsuccessful school teacher opens an art-and-drama summer school on a shoestring and takes the greenhorn's money under the pretence that all this is furthering the legitimate self-expression of American art, one can only gag a little. It is purely and simply a racket. And it is beginning to ruin the old New England vacation ground.

RADIO MAN IN ANNULMENT PETITION

'Passport Romance' Revealed by Immigration Ban on Yarmouth, N. S., Girl

A radio operator's "passport romance" stranded on court shoals was revealed when Lee W. Clifford, petitioning Suffolk Probate Court for annulment of his marriage to Mary E. Thibodeau, charged that his bride's sole aim in marrying him was to obtain executive clemency for a crime committed prior to the wedding that barred her from entering the country.

In his petition, Clifford said he met his bride while on a trip during the summer of 1930. After a speedy courtship, he and Miss Thibodeau were married at Yarmouth on Aug. 4, 1930.

WARNED OF BAN

Right after the marriage, Clifford declares, he hastened back to Boston and prepared a home for his bride. Then he sent for her, only to discover that immigration authorities refused to let her cross the border.

His suspicions aroused by this state of affairs, Clifford states in his petition, he began an investigation of his bride's career, prior to her marriage. He discovered that she had committed some crime which prented her from entering the United States.

CRIME DETAILS GUARDED

To escape punishment for this crime, the nature of which Clifford or his attorneys, so far, have been unable to determine, the petitioner declares, Miss Thibodeau became his bride, and for no other season.

The marriage was never consummated he states, and declares further that his wife at no time had any intention to do so.

The petition is returnable on Aug. 20

JUDGE EASY ON HONEYMOONER

Wedding felicitations and a discussion on the length of honeymoons resulted from a traffic case before Judge Michael J. Murray in Municipal court today

Harold E. Higgins, of Park st, West Roxbury, pleaded guilty to parking his car in a loading zone in Church st., on June 8

"I was going to get my marriage license and that was the only place I could find to park," he explained.

"Well, we can't do anything to a man on his honeymoon," said Judge Murray.

"But I had my honeymoon two weeks ago," said Higgins. "I was married four weeks ago last night."

"Oh no," corrected the court. "Honeymoons last usually for six months. I'm going to file the case."

Higgins thanked Judge Murray and smiled.

"I hope you wear that smile the rest of your life," said the judge.

Bus Rider, Jostled on Step, Loses $150

William G. Hill of Fletcher st., Winchester, struggled with two heavily dressed young men for precedence in entering a bus today, won the struggle, and lost $150

He told police he was stepping aboard the bus at Northampton and Washington sts. when the two men hurried to the platform and jostled him roughly. He boarded the bus and they stepped off the platform Later he discovered his wallet with $150 and personal papers was missing.

DIVER WORKS TO FIND BLASTED BOAT SUNK IN HARBOR

LYNN VET BACK, MINUS 'BRIDE'

Walter Nichols, 74, Lynn war veteran who reported the disappearance of his "bride" of a month to Milford, Conn., police Monday, appeared mysteriously in his home city last night, it was learned today.

Nichols, who was seen by friends in an auto with two strangers, said he was bound for Boston, and failed to visit his still undivorced wife, Mrs. Helen Nichols, of 67 Spring st., Lynn

According to Mrs. Helen Nichols her husband disappeared from home five weeks ago, after collecting more than $400 as a veteran's loan.

Miss Barbara Rogers, then employed in Swampscott, but whose home is said to be in Dunstable, also dropped out of sight about the same time

Last Monday Nichols went to the Milford, Conn., police station and said his bride of a month, who was Barbara Rogers, according to police, had disappeared. A search was instituted but she was not found

GAS BOAT BLAST VICTIM DIES

George Gilfoyle, 21, of Tenean st., Dorchester, who was severely burned when the Fauci oil launch 2280 blew up last Wednesday at its mooring at the Fish Pier, died today at Carney Hospital.

Alfred Pereira, of East Chelmsford, also injured in the blast, is still undergoing medical treatment for burns.

A veteran diver, John Robinson was sent down today to examine the shattered hull of the oil boat to determine salvage chances and to discover whether the explosion was from the inside of the boat

The launch, which is in 25 feet of water, was looked over but the findings of the diver were not made public

Legion Fete Planned

Somerville Post No. 19 of the American Legion will conduct a monster "Tombola" at Richard Trum Field on Broadway at Cedar st., Somerville, during the entire week of July 13

GIRL IS DYING IN SURGERY CASE

While a Watertown girl is dying at the Massachusetts General Hospital, victim of illegal surgery, police are searching for a Newton woman doctor

Miss Eileen Cole, 20, who lived with her aunt in Main st., Watertown, questioned today by Inspector James Dennessy at the hospital, was unable to name the man or the doctor who operated on her She remembers only that the woman doctor was 55 or 60 and occupied an office in Newton

Because of her condition, the interview was necessarily brief, but police said they had sufficient facts to arrest the doctor

Miss Cole was admitted to the Massachusetts General Hospital July 5 on the advice of relatives Her name was placed on the danger list. The case was brought to the attention of Dist. Atty. Foley, who assigned Inspector Dennessy to investigate

SUSPENDED IN CLUBBING CASE

Patrolman John G. Cronin of the Malden police department today was suspended pending investigation of charges that he beat a Malden youth insensible with his nightstick and left him on the sidewalk.

Edward McGuinness, 25, of Medford st., Malden, who was released from a hospital yesterday after treatment since July 4 for serious scalp injuries, complained to Capt John H. Aylward that Cronin attacked him without provocation with his club early on the morning of July 4

According to McGuinness, Cronin knocked him to the sidewalk and left him there unconscious Passersby carried him to the hospital.

Police Sergt. Lasky to Be Buried Monday

Funeral services for Sergt. Henry W. Lasky, one of the best known of Boston policemen, who died today in Massachusetts General hospital after a month's illness, will be held Monday at 2 o'clock at the home, 2209 Center st., Jamaica Plain. Burial will be held at the Woodland cemetery, Malden

Sergt. Lasky was for several years attached to Station 7, East Boston and later was assigned to the superintendent's office. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edward Boudreau of Glendale rd., West Roxbury, and Mrs. Geneva Betts of Evans st., Dorchester, and a son, William Francis Lasky of Roslindale.

GAMING BARRED AT CARNIVALS

American Legion officials, incensed at a report that open gambling was allowed at carnivals under their direction, today denied the charge and said their carnivals were conducted strictly according to law.

Richard H. Kilduff of William F Sinclair Post, A. L., holding a carnival on an open lot off Howard ave., Roxbury, one of the places named in the report, said

"The report is absolutely untrue and extremely harmful to the American Legion."

Police Captain Joseph McKinnon of Dudley st. division, in whose precinct the gambling was alleged to have taken place, said

"I am not aware of any gambling at these carnivals. We keep tabs on all of them. At one place named in the report a man attempted last Monday to carry on something that is against the law, but he was stopped. I have assurances from the various Legion posts that no gambling would be permitted."

Col. Carroll J. Swan, high in the councils of the American Legion said:

"The Legion never would allow that sort of thing to go on. Propositions of a kind that have been practically legalized were put up to us during the national convention, but we would not touch them. I am sure there is a mistake."

BOY, 14, GIVEN HERO AWARD

William Reed, 14-year-old son of Mr and Mrs. Harry L. Reed of 191 State st., Framingham, was today awarded the Massachusetts Humane Society bronze medal for bravery in saving a life on Jan. 14, 1931

He has just completed his first year as a student at the Mechanic Arts high school in Boston

Young Reed saved the life of Arthur L. Spencer, 20, of Framingham on Farm pond. Skating across the pond, he saw Spencer's head just above a broken hole in the ice. Spencer had been in the icy water for several minutes, struggling to keep a hold on the edge of teh ice. With the ice breaking under him, Reed sped to the spot without hesitation and pulled Spencer to safety with the aid of a hockey stick

ROXBURY WIDOW ASKS $150,000 IN AN ACTION

Mrs. Taub Claims Late Barnett Drooker Promised Her Half His Estate

The estate of the late Barnett Drooker, wealthy retired dry goods merchant, was sued today for $150,000 by Mrs. Esther Taub, a Roxbury widow, who claims he promised her half of his property.

Mrs. Taub, who states she is a cousin of the deceased, declares in her action that Drooker was permanently separated from his wife and employed her as companion and nurse under an agreement whereby he would give her half of his estate and pay all her expenses

BANK NAMED IN SUIT

The suit was entered in Suffolk superior court against Isaac E. Simons, of Brookline and Hull, and the United States Trust Co., executors. Simons was attorney for the deceased

Although she sues for $150,000, Mrs. Taub lists the value of the estate as $155,138.07, and says she is entitled to $47,560.03

Drooker died May 1, 1930, at the age of 80. The agreement under which she became his companion and nurse was made May 15, 1927, she claims, after Drooker's wife had brought proceedings to terminate the marriage relation.

PROMISED HALF ESTATE

The plaintiff says Drooker had always a deep affection for her since childhood, that he was grateful for assistance given him by her father, that he was lonesome because of long continued marital difficulties and that he desired to become a life member of her household and "to conduct himself as a dutiful and loving brother."

He agreed not only to give her half his property before he died, but to pay all her clothing, living, traveling and pleasure expenses and provide her with spending money, she says

Newton Judge Holds Woman as Forger

Leona B. Quigley of Follen st, Boston, was held in $200 bail for the grand jury today in Newton district court by Judge T. S. Cunniff on five counts of forging and cashing checks totaling $580.

Roscoe Davidson, Brookline real estate operator, made the checks payable to J. H. McDermott of Jamaica Plain and it is charged that Miss Quigley forged McDermott's name and cashed the checks.

DAILY TRUE STORY
WAY OF A MAID

"YOU DARLING!" CRIED PAUL

WHEN PAUL met Phyllis that golden July while he was on vacation at Greenhampton, he told himself that Adam in his Eden was not more favored.

Throughout the day they were together sailing or cleaving the surf. In the evening, when the moon made her special magic light for lovers, turning the sands and the sea to silver, they were still together, telling each other what a lovely world it was and hinting shyly of a future that was to be little short of paradise.

And then came the thunderstorm.

Paul had not met Phyllis' people. Of course he knew that they lived in the big, rambling, castle-like house, set back in glowing acres a mile from the beach, and he knew that the Van Strongs were persons of importance. But, with the fire of headstrong love urging him on blinding him, perhaps, to many realities, he contented himself with the argument that nothing else mattered, that in this day when a girl and a man found they were meant for each other obstacles were to be ignored or laughed at.

And Phyllis finally invited him to the great domicile, the Seven Pines, where he was to meet the Van Strongs and their friends and where she was proudly to introduce him to her father and mother—the Only Man in the World.

Invitation Cancelled
Paul Leaves on First Train

Paul was awakened at his little hotel on Thursday morning by a peremptory knock on the door. Sleepily he had turned the key and admitted Hall, the sleek chauffeur had measured him appraisingly for a moment, then handed him an envelope.

Before Paul could question him the chauffeur had turned on his heel and was halfway down the hall. Paul shut the door, sat down in an easy chair and with a feeling of foreboding, tore open the envelope.

Sleepily he began to read:

"Miss Van Strong conveys her regrets that she is compelled to withdraw the invitation to the dinner dance for tonight."

The note was not signed.

Paul read it once more in a dazed way, then tore it to fragments and laid the pieces on an ash tray.

An hour later Paul was a passenger on the first train out.

That evening there was a memorable interview between Mr. Van Strong and Phyllis, which would have enlightened Paul and taken some of the bitterness out of his soul. Phyllis, still in an afternoon sports suit, was pacing the library floor when her father called him.

"I hope you're not taking too much to heart what your mother and I have done," he said.

Phyllis looked at him silently a moment, her lip curling.

"I thought you and mother might be slightly interested in meeting the man I'm going to marry, dad," she answered with just a touch of irony. "If you want my opinion regarding what you've done I think it was most discourteous——and, in this day and generation—quite unwise."

"Please don't dramatize this incident," said Mr. Van Strong. "It isn't worth while, Phyllis, really. And—you're not—going to marry this unknown and inefficient young man you happened to meet on the beach. That's final."

"Sorry, father," returned Phyllis. "I'm not trying to dramatize anything, if you please. However, I expect to claim the right to pick my own husband, and my choice is not inefficient from my point of view. I rather think it took even you some time to achieve a success. At least, grant him that."

A week later Phyllis slighted from an elevator on the twentieth floor of the Apex Building and started down the corridor, looking for an office number. Her heart nearly stopped as another door opened and a young man stepped briskly out.

"Paul" she cried as he was about to hurry past. "Why, Paul, don't you know me?"

"Perfectly" said he coldly. Then just stood and looked at her, his face slightly pale, his lips compressed, his right hand clenched so the nails bit into the palm.

"Please don't look at me like that, Paul. I agree with you, dear, that it was—it was outrageous. But I didn't write that note, I didn't even authorize it—you must realize that."

Paul still said nothing—just looked at her, sphinx-like. Phyllis went on breathlessly.

"I'm proving to you that what —what I told you there in Greenhampton, is still true as truth. I'm here today, Paul, looking for a job."

Paul straightened up suddenly and shot a look almost of unbelief at her.

"Oh, I can hold one, if I get one," Phyllis went on. "I learned typing, stenography, all the trimmings at Miss Dean's school. I insisted on a practical course. And I'm going to find a job and be with you here in the city and shape my own life. I've told father that I can't—I won't give you up, that I'm going to help you in your fight to get in the law."

"Of course he just insulted me and told me I'd get over it, but when he finds I'm really gone and that I meant what I said, I fancy he'll begin to wake up and take a different view of matters."

She paused breathlessly. Paul was speechless. Then "You don't really mean it—you are going to work, Phyllis? Why, it's unbelievable."

I just had to do something. I'm not ashamed of it. I would ask you that if I haven't changed my mind a bit but that what I said to you was true and from my point I'm going to work—going to—if you'll let me."

"You darling!" cried Paul, his face lighting with a smile. "I believe you! Why, you're a little heroine, as well as the most precious girl in the world."

Then Paul stepped back a moment abashed. "I forgot," he said, as a door opened down the corridor, "I'd like to kiss you now, dear, but——"

"Well," replied Phyllis, "why don't you, silly? I'm not afraid to have the whole world see you do that, dearest."

Patrolman and Captain Retire

Mayor Curley today approved the retirement of Patrolman Joseph A. Ridion of the City Point station and of Patrolman Francis Spring of the Savin Hill station.

Capt. Ridion observed his 65th birthday June 23. He has been a member of the police department since November 8, 1895. Patrolman Spring was 65 years old June 24. He has been a member of the department since December 11, 1893.

COURT ALLOWS HER WEEK TO RAISE SUM

Dorchester Woman Unable to Continue $2 Payments on Ice Chest

If she cannot pay $29.80 for damage to an ice chest and more than $40 accrued costs in poor debtors' court, Mrs. Mary Gallagher of Alexander st., Dorchester, mother of nine children, must go to jail for 30 days.

She hasn't got the money and doesn't know where it's coming from. She has until next Thursday to get it.

Even if she and the nine children, ranging in age from nine months to 15 years, went without food for the next week, she could hardly hope to save $69.80 out of her husband's $35 a week salary.

That is one of those mathematical impossibilities. It does not however affect the issue.

CHEST BOUGHT ON CREDIT

A series of unfortunate circumstances that began with the purchase of the ice chest on the installment plan four years ago is responsible for this predicament in which the mother of nine finds herself today.

She opened a little store in Kane st. four years ago to help out her husband. Fire destroyed most of it. She had no insurance. She returned the ice chest to the company from which she obtained it.

She received a bill for $29.80. A mortgage on her home was foreclosed. She was summoned into [illegible] court on the ice chest bill. She was in the hospital when the summons was served.

ARRESTED AT HOME

She was defaulted. Later she was arrested at her home by a constable despite the fact that nine children depended upon her for their care.

In court she was ordered to pay $1 weekly on the ice chest bill. She couldn't keep up the payments, she said, and was summoned to court again.

In all her name was entered on [illegible] poor debtors' court docket 14 times in connection with the ice chest bill and finally she was given until next Thursday to pay the bill and accumulated court costs or go to jail for 30 days.

In the Gallagher brood there are James 15; Thomas 14; Peter, 13; Anna, 12; Mary 11; Helen, 13; Vivien 8; Joseph, 6, and Theresa 3 months.

Mrs. Gallagher is rich in children but she hasn't got the money for the ice cream.

GIRL WINS HARD FIGHT TO WED SAX TOOTER

Greta Mund "Talks Down" Her Father; He Didn't Know Love Was Like That

Cupid and a saxophone player triumphed today when the father of 18-year-old Greta J. Mund, former Jamaica Plain beauty, withdrew his opposition to her marriage.

Greta and her father, Fred C. Mund, stayed a week [illegible] their present home, Farnard [illegible] Worcester on Wednesday over her determination to marry Herbert Arntz of Maple st., West Roxbury.

The girl left in the family automobile and came to Boston looking for a job, pending her marriage to Arntz, orchestra leader at Westwood Inn, Dedham.

In the meantime she sought refuge at the home of Arntz's parents, from which she informed her father of her undying determination to marry the man of her choice.

Today Mund capitulated and announced he would give the couple his blessing.

"I didn't realize Greta was so serious," he explained, "If it means so much to her I will not oppose the wedding. She is a sensible girl and I am willing to give her a nice wedding."

WIFE GUARDIAN OF HUSBAND

Mrs. Lillian Webster, wife of Ray F. Webster, proprietor of several drug stores in Lowell, was today appointed temporary guardian of her husband by Judge Charles M. Harris in Middlesex Probate court at East Cambridge.

A petition for appointment as permanent guardian, heard last week by Judge Harris, had been taken under advisement. In making the temporary appointment today he indicated that he was considering the appointment of Mrs. Webster as permanent guardian.

Mrs. Webster alleged in her petition that her husband "does by excessive drinking, gaming, debauchery and idleness expose himself and his family to want and suffering."

Atty. Max Cohen for Mrs. Webster said that the husband had left the place of business on July 4 and only returned once since. Chief of Police Gerald E. Lerman, of Tyngsboro, called by Cohen, testified that he saw Webster on Sunday evening in an automobile with a woman and a chauffeur; that Webster's face was covered with blood, and that he had been drinking and said that the woman had struck him.

Visiting Violators Must Read Story of Boston

Instead of being summoned into court for traffic violations, visitors to Boston will in the future receive a warning tag, telling them of the violation, and a booklet describing to them the various industries here.

The booklet, distributed to officers yesterday, carries this wording on the cover:

"Your attention is arrested for a moment in order that we may tell you something about Boston."

The first page of the book carries a message and photograph of Mayor Curley setting forth the manifold commercial and industrial advantages of Boston.

MOTOR ARRESTS INCREASING

One-third more motorists were arrested in the first six months of the present year than in the same period a year ago, the Governor's committee on street and highway safety revealed today.

The checkup by the committee also showed that the rise in automobile arrests and convictions was considerably greater than the gain in volume of all the force's combined activities.

The committee took occasion to warn all Massachusetts drivers of even greater tightening of highway discipline during the balance of the six months' higaway safety campaign.

Passing another car while the view was obstructed was the violation which brought the most arrests, the committee disclosed. For that fault the state police arrested 640 and obtained convictions in 615 of the cases.

The next most prevalent cause for arrest was speed too fast for conditions. The number of arrests for this violation was 592 with 577 convictions.

The total arrests for all causes by the state police was 2600 as against 1943 for the first six months of 1930, an increase of 33 per cent. Of the total number arrested 92 per cent were convicted.

Fines and costs rose during the same period from $31,537 to $37,761. Added efficiency in the dispatch of the cases was also noted, the committee said, as where there were 813 cases pending at the beginning of last summer, only 580 cases this year are "hanging fire."

Mayor Is Honored by Roosevelt Club

Mayor Curley was named honorary president of the National Franklin D. Roosevelt Club for President in organization papers filed yesterday at the State House by Whitfield Tuck of Winchester.

Tuck will serve as president of the Roosevelt group here, with James F. Heslin, vice-president; P. Joseph McManus, second vice-president; Mrs. Kathleen E. Higgin, treasurer, and William H. McMasters, executive secretary.

POISON NEEDLE FIEND HUNTED

Shopping crowds in downtown Boston were being scanned today by detectives and women police in a search for a "poison needle" assailant who within the last 24 hours has stabbed two young women in the crowds on Tremont st., near School st.

Miss Elizabeth Carroll, 18, of 8 Mason st., Malden, a secretary employed at 49 Portland st., was one of the victims.

The identity of another woman who became slightly hysterical when she was stabbed with the needle, was not known to police today.

Doctors at Haymarket Square Relief Hospital notified police of the attack after Miss Carroll went there for treatment. They found that her left thigh had been punctured by the point of a drugged needle.

WOMAN VICTIM OF AMNESIA

An unidentified woman, about 45, is at City Hospital suffering from amnesia. She was found in front of 216 Huntington ave early today.

Sergt. Harold Walkins saw the woman acting in a strange manner and questioned her.

Physicians declare there is little hope for her recovery.

The woman is five feet, eight inches in height, weighs about 150 pounds, is light of complexion, has gray hair and blue eyes. She wore a greenish blue coat with white and brown fur collar, black dress, gray stockings, fawn colored low shoes and crystal beads. In a brown pocketbook was found a card bearing the name, "Edith Reed."

SCALDED WIFE GETS DIVORCE

On his infrequent shore [illegible] her Filipino sailor husband [illegible] most of his time complaining [illegible] her cooking, sometimes resorting to force, Mrs. Elizabeth Villaneuva testified in Suffolk Probate Court today, in her suit for divorce against Dominador Villaneuva, a seaman aboard the U. S. S. [illegible] ampton. She said that once he threw a pan of boiling water at her.

Mrs. Villaneuva, who lives in Havana ave., Chelsea, now was granted a divorce and allowed to resume her maiden name of Snelling.

Mrs. Mary Corvi was given a divorce from her husband, Frank, who, she said deserted her in 1927 after a month of married life featured by several beatings.

TROLLEY LOBBY BILL $1000

The Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company paid $1000 to the law firm of Warren Garfield, Whiteside & Lamson for counsel services in all matters of interest to the company before the last legislature, a return filed today with the secretary of state under the Lobby Act, disclosed.

Other returns filed today, the last day of grace under the act, showed:

Warren, Garfield, Whiteside & Lamson received $1000 from the Springfield Street Railway Co.

The General Crushed Stone Co. paid $800 to Harold Williams.

Dying After Collapse

Frederick Sanders, 38, of Crescent st., Winthrop, was believed dying in the Haymarket Relief Station today after he collapsed in an Oliver st. restaurant from a blood clot on the brain.

'AUNTIE HELPED MAMA DIVORCE PAPA'

ANTOINETTE ROSA MRS. NELLIE ROSA MISS MARIE OLSON

Sister returned sister's favor in Suffolk Probate Court today and the act led to Judge McCool granting a divorce decree to Mrs. Nellie Rosa of School st., Revere. Recently Mrs. Rosa's sister, Mrs. Rose Semone of Dorchester, sought a divorce. Mrs. Rosa testified in her behalf. Today Mrs. Semone, having retaken her maiden name of Olson, was the star witness for Mrs. Rosa. They are shown with the latter's little daughter after the hearing. (Staff photo.)

YOUNG BANDITS STAGE NEW HOLDUP

POLICE CORDON IN CAMBRIDGE IS DEFIED

Desert Victim About to Be Robbed to Give Chase to Another Car

Slipping through a cordon of police cars, their occupants armed with riot and shotguns, the three youthful bandits sought throughout Greater Boston held up another motorist in Cambridge early today.

In the act of demanding at gunpoint the money of Frank Mederos of 92 Second st., Cambridge, the bandits abruptly abandoned the holdup to pursue a large sedan which passed through the street.

Nothing further was heard of them, but Chief of Police John J McBride of Cambridge ordered extra details of police for night patrol duty, starting tonight.

IN CREAM-COLORED CAR

Recently the youthful gunmen mainly hatless, have been concentrating their activities in Cambridge. As a result of five holdups in 48 hours Mayor Richard M Russell conferred with Chief McBride yesterday, and orders were issued to the police to round up the bandits.

Last night, in addition to the police men on foot, four cars loaded with officers heavily armed, cruised the city in search of the holdup men.

Their quarry eluded them, however, and appeared in Windsor st., riding in a cream-colored roadster, believed to have been stolen.

PULLS GUN ON VICTIM

Mederos was sitting in his car parked in Windsor st., near Lincoln, he told police, when they drove up.

He said the driver of the roadster leaped to the street and pointing a gun at Mederos demanded his money.

Told then a big sedan turned into Windsor st., to be at once spotted by the two bandits as the pursuit appeared in the wake of the sedan.

"Never mind this fellow," one of them shouted to the stickup man, "that's the car we want."

BABY TITLE SEEKERS LOOK THE FIELD OVER

MELVIN READS NEWS

Little Melvin Crowley, 2-year-old, of Roxbury, is keeping up with the news on the better baby drive conducted by the Boston Lion's Club. He's also peeping at the other babies in the contest, for which awards will be made at the Boston Arena on Saturday night. (Staff Photos.)

LITTLE MARY, GETTING FINAL CHECK-UP

Pretty Mary Theresa Mooney is one of the South Boston candidates in the Lion's Club Baby Contest. Mary is 3-years-old. She was photographed at the Forsyth Dental School, where preliminary examinations are now being held, and will continue until late tomorrow. Mothers will get the final word on the winner tomorrow night.

MOTHER OF 3 FIGHTS FIRE

A mother today fought a fire which swept through a three-story building in Newburn ave., Medford, and drove two families to the street and caused damage amounting to $500.

Mrs. Michael DeVito, mother of three children, hurried her children to safety and returned to fight the flames in her first floor dwelling.

The family of Arthur Casey, living on the second floor was also driven to the street by the flames while Mrs. DeVito sought to extinguish them before the arrival of apparatus.

'L' TIEUP DELAYS HUNDREDS

Hundreds of persons were late for work this morning when the burning of an insulator short circuited the third rail in the Friend st. subway station of the Elevated.

Three rapid-transit trains, bound from Everett to Dudley st. and Forest Hills were tied up in the station, which was filled with smoke.

An emergency crew rushed repairs, which were completed in 12 minutes, and in the meantime outbound trains were diverted by way of Atlantic ave.

VANISHING DOG IN BAD AGAIN

Scotty's in trouble again. Last week he was in the Waltham pound and got out by a narrow squeak, and now he's in the Watertown pound.

His old master is a sitting in judgment upon his life.

Scotty is a terrier. His master is Chief of Police John F. Milmore of Watertown. The chief bought Scotty about a year ago and the dog immediately dropped out of sight.

Wednesday night the selectmen sent an order to Chief Milmore to pick up all dogs found unleashed on the street. These dogs, the order stated, must be taken to the pound and in 48 hours either shot or treated with the new anti-rabies serum.

It so happened that Chief of Police Milmore was walking along Lexington st. yesterday and saw Scotty, without any leash.

The order said to capture all stray dogs. This Chief Milmore did. He discovered that the dog had been residing for a week with the family of Mr. and Mrs. James MacLean of 25 Lexington st.

The chief then brought the dog to the pound and is now thinking over Scotty's fate.

WARNER TO AID FRAUD PROBE

The Supreme Court will be asked to cooperate in the State-wide probe of fraudulent and exaggerated automobile insurance claims in Massachusetts which got under way today.

This was made public in a statement issued by Frederick W. Mansfield president of the Bar Association and chairman in charge of the investigation.

The Supreme Court will also be asked for such authority as may be needed in bringing particular cases before the court.

It is said that the facts uncovered in the probe will be laid before Attorney-General Warner and that he will take charge of the criminal prosecution.

Atty. Mansfield calls attention to reference to "fake" claims by former Insurance Commissioner Monk in 1928. He also says the special commission created by the Legislature to study the compulsory motor vehicle insurance law emphasized in its report in 1930 the effect of fraudulent or exaggerated claims in increasing the cost of insurance to the insurance companies.

Insurance companies in the state have contributed a preliminary fund for the purpose of the inquiry.

HOSPITAL MAY BE CLOSED

The Fall River General Hospital, owned by the city at an expense of $40,000 annually, may be permanently closed as a retrenchment measure it was indicated today by the special State medical investigating committee called in by the city.

The decision awaits the report of the committee now nearing the conclusion of its work.

Fall River, facing a financial crisis is one of few municipalities in the state operating a free hospital and the investigating body has pointed out that there is nothing in the law that requires the city to maintain it.

The committee is composed of Dr. Frederic A. Washburn of Massachusetts General Hospital, Dr. Haven Emerson of Columbia University and Dr. D. L. Richardson, superintendent of Providence City Hospital.

2 Hurt in Chase of Gasoline Cheaters

At Broadway and Phelps st. Saugus the pursuers car overturned, pinning into flames Brocco and Ward, bruised and lacerated. Freed from the wreckage and [illegible] to Saugus police station, where they were given first [illegible]

Houghton's to Stay Open on Saturdays

Announcement was made today that Houghton's department store would remain open all day Saturday during July and August for the convenience of customers. The management said it believed the best interests of everyone would be served by helping to fight the recession by urging all the merchants to close.

The entire store family it was said would be given additional vacation time to compensate for hours on Saturdays.

Boy Diver Injured in Melrose Pond

Lawrence J Lucey, 18, of 101 Linford st., Melrose dove 25 feet off High Ledge at Swan's Pond, Melrose, today and struck his head on the bed of the pond.

He was unconscious when his cousin John Lucey, 18 and Charles Doherty, 24, took him from the water in which all three had been swimming. At Melrose hospital it was found the youth had severe scalp wounds and possible fracture of the skull.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—NO MAN LOVETH A CREDITOR

By HELEN ROWLAND

HOW LONG, oh ye Foolish Ones, will ye seek to win men's hearts with flattery and favors and kisses and false hair?

• • •

For, behold, a woman resembleth a dog, which is full of thankfulness for whatsoever kindness and tenderness it receiveth. But a man is like unto a cat, in whom there is no REMEMBRANCE of past favors. And in his heart the cry is always "Next!"

• • •

Therefore, I charge thee, if thou would'st make a man forget thee, smother him with generosity and deny him not the caresses. Yea, leave him naught to desire.

• • •

But if thou wouldst make him remember thee, let him serve THEE. For a man's love may live forever upon hope or vanity—but not for a day upon gratitude!

• • •

Go to. The fool hath said in her heart, "I'll send my Beloved unto me with gifts and burnt offerings!

"Yea, I will hang garlands upon his door, and shower him with week-end invitations and cocktail parties and smiles and home-cooked dinners.

• • •

"Verily, I shall make myself more necessary to him than a motorcar and more comforting than a down pillow or a mother. And he will reward me with gratitude and everlasting devotion!"

• • •

But, alas, what do all her labors profit her?

• • •

For a woman unto whom a man OWETH anything shall never receive it as a matter of money or devotion or gratitude.

• • •

And no man loseth a CREDITOR!

• • •

He fleeth before the damsel that pursueth him with telephone calls and invitations, and trembleth before her that cowereth him with hospitality and attentions and "thoughtfulness."

• • •

He dodgeth the "too kind" damsel as a bill collector!

• • •

But the that fleeth him "seeks," and permitteth him to bestow favors and to wait upon her and sacrifice himself for her, shall be "richer shod" forever.

• • •

For, every man desireth to be the Mighty Benefactor, the benefactor of gifts and the dispenser of charity. Yea, every man delighteth to play Santa Claus unto the woman of his heart!

• • •

And in all the world naught else so repelleth a woman as the lack of gratitude in a woman's eye when she receiveth. Oh, thou generous and wonderful man!

Trump Card Is Held by Zinnowitz

"OF COURSE, Schwimann and Gerstenkorn would remain as directors and be given salaried posts in addition, whereas now they are saddled with all the risks. On the other hand, if the affair with Burleigh's were in black and white, when—such at least is my humble opinion—they would turn down the offer from the S. I. R and amalgamate with you. That's their position. But what yours is with Manchester there I am now quite so clear. I had a somewhat guarded letter from your father-in-law—"

Once again Pressing interrupted the lawyer's easy exposition with a stupid question.

"Is this offer of the S. I. R. definite or only talk? How much have they offered?"

"That is beside the point," said Zinnowitz, who did not know. "The offer's there. Burleigh's isn't exactly in a bad way." Preysing said hesitatingly.

"No? Seems to me a good way either, it seems to me," the lawyer replied promptly.

Pressing stretched out a hand toward his portfolio, drew back, and then really took hold of it. He took the cigar out of his mouth, and was chewing at it as last, as the third stood up and pulled out a blue folder in which were filed letters and copies of the replies.

"Here is the correspondence with Manchester up to date," he said quickly, and held out the file of letters.

He had no other choice than he regretted it. The hope of his name were one more in a sweat. He began to rub with a ring on his finger, a habit of his, but it got him no further.

"In the strictest confidence, please remember," he requested urgently.

Zinnowitz replied only by a glance out of the corners of his eyes as he read the letters Preysing was here.

"Yes——" said Dr. Zinnowitz as he put the letters aside, "and now I come back once more to the starting point. The negotiations with Burleigh & Son are still going on. Consequently we still have this trump card to play in our efforts to bring pressure on the Chemnitz people. If we postpone a meeting with them and Burleighs refuse to come to terms, as seems very possible from their last letter of February 25th, then we hold this trump card no longer. Then we shall have no card to play whatever. We agree, then? The difference will take place tomorrow and we shall do all in our power to get the draft agreement signed. If only I knew——"

"Listen," he continued after a moment's silent reflection. "Will you allow me to take one or two of the letters away with me?" Some of the more refonusing ones, you understand me, dating from the earlier stages of the negotiations." I am seeing Mr. Simonis and Gerstenkorn this afternoon. It would do no harm if—of course, I wouldn't show them the whole correspondence, only some of it——"

"Impossible," said Pressing. "We have promised Burleigh & Son to regard the matter as strictly confidential."

Zinnowitz smiled at this. "Why it's common knowledge in any case," he said. "However, as you think best. It is your responsibility. Now is the time to show your mettle. The thing would be to let one or two of the letters fall into Schwimann's hands, quite by the accident, of course. A few copies. But you know best, please. It is your responsibility."

Once more Pressing was faced with a responsibility. The idea of confidentially handing Rothenburgers a purchase of shares still lay heavy on him. He positively had a twinge of heartburn from nervous agitation and his temples throbbed feverishly.

"I don't like it. It isn't straight," he said. "The negotiations with Chemnitz have been going before the affair with Burleighs, nor was there a word said about it between us and Gerstenkorn. Now of a sudden everything is made to turn on it—we are not going to the length of letting them look through our correspondence. I wouldn't hear of it."

As stubborn as a mule thought Dr. Zinnowitz and he snapped the lock of his portfolio. "As you please," he said and had just opened it to put the letters in.

Suddenly Pressing gave in.

"Have you anyone who could make copies of a few of the letters? I might let you have a few copies, only one needs the fashionable rose dicse. It is cool in appearance and mighty attractive. Beshimmed of an inexpensive cotton. The deep V's are slenderizing, too.

AMUSING PAJAMAS

For Wear at the Beach

SKETCHED IN PARIS

Chanel is showing amusing beach pajamas with little belted jackets of the same material. In the sketch is one of these ensembles in pale blue shantung. The jacket has four pockets and is trimmed with stitching bordering all the edges. The flaring pajamas are very wide and quite short.

Pajamas of Comedy Type

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, July 10—See that you are sartorially sure of yourself at the seashore. Last year's beach clothes, no matter how little used or carefully preserved, will avail you nought this season. For this year's crop of beach things is entirely new and different.

Freak pajamas are not for this year. The natty nautical note is emphasized and no one required to look like a musical comedy version of the seaside girl.

And for those who are weary of pajamas, and for those who never really liked 'em, there is something much newer. And that is the linen wrap-over tunic worn over the bathing suit.

But more of this new mode anon. Just a glance at this year's models will show that the practical note has been combined with the decorative to make beach ensembles that are the apex of good taste and art.

Chanel has gone in strongly for beach pajamas this season and they're several amusing and good-looking models in her new collection. Many of these suits have little belted jackets of matching material.

Girl Prefers Athletics to Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 17 years old and go with a boy of the same age for a little over a year. He is very nice and my mother likes him very much. But there is one thing that is bothering me. He keeps talking about not getting married. I know this is out of the question because we are both very young, but I don't know what to do to get him interested in some other subject. When I tell him we are too young and that I want to play tennis, or dance, he always has some excuse. I should think anyone our age should join in sports instead of marriage. What can I do to get the idea of marriage out of his head? Please advise me. Thank you. BABE

Dear Babe: I think that you are a fine, normal girl. Certainly, marriage is out of the question with a boy of 17 years, especially when no one is apparently can think of nothing else. It seems to me you are quite too young to have any serious friendships. Why don't you seek the company of other girls and boys, especially of those athletically inclined.

Household Hints

BEFORE WEARING silk stockings soak the heels and toes in cold water and let them dry. If you wear out stockings at the heels you will double the life by putting the feet of the stocking over the darner and rubbing with paraffin.

Persons who perspire freely should throw a small handful of soda into the bath water.

To clean a straw or glass tube such as swizzels use when unable to drink from a cup, a tiny brush that comes in a doll's nursing bottle set from a 5 and 10 cent store with a piece of wire attached. Just perfect for this brush, dry and keep for future use.

Pumpkin seeds are very attractive to mice and traps baited with them will soon destroy this little pest. Lillian Brown, 145 Danforth st., Fall River.

The Beauty Box

IF A girl hasn't the zest and the zipp for outdoor recreations, she is only half alive. All exercises in the open air help to preserve the sweet qualities of youth, the svelt anatomy, the firm contour of the face, healthy expansion of the lungs, brightness of eyes, buoyancy of spirit. Now is the time to flirt with Al Fresco, to golf, swim, play tennis, tramp through the woods.

EAT ORANGES FOR HEALTH IN SUMMER

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

REMEMBER THE oranges a year ago? If your family were orange-minded and demanded their glass of orange juice every morning, you probably haven't been able to forget them. These high prices were brought about by a very small crop in California.

This summer, however, California has a tremendous Valencia crop. There will be enough to go around and at prices that everyone can afford. Sizes are small, which are ideal for juice.

Martha Lee

If your are economizing on food costs don't do it at the expense of your health. Try cutting down on your fresh fruit consumption, as this is the most important source of the various vitamins and minerals that your body so much needs.

ORANGE AVOCADO SALAD

Fruit salads are among the light dishes most suited to summer menus, since appetites prefer them when other foods lose charm, due to rising temperatures.

4 to 6 small oranges.
Lettuce
1 cup watermelon balls or cubes
1 cup cantaloupe balls or cubes

Pare oranges, cut in thin slices and cut slices in halves. Arrange on lettuce-covered salad plates. Scoop balls from melons with cutter made for that purpose, or cut melon in tiny cubes. Put melon over orange slices. Serve very cold, with a sweetened French dressing.

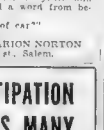
CONSTIPATION BRINGS MANY ILLS



Did you know that constipation often finds its cause in food poisons spread through the system. You lack pep. Headaches become frequent. No wonder you have the "blues."

Yet constipation can be overcome by having sufficient roughage in your daily diet. A pleasant way to obtain this roughage is through eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

You will enjoy this delicious cereal. And how much better for you than taking habit-forming laxatives.

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, will relieve and prevent both temporary and recurring constipation.

ALL-BRAN also contains needed iron to build up the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Scientists War on Many Rare Ailments

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

Dr. Copeland

This condition is very uncommon here. At the Mayo clinic during the past 20 years only 115 cases of this disease have been seen.

The disease is characterized by a diminished muscular weakness with a bronze or dusky color of the skin.

This change of color of the skin is noticed first by friends of the patient. The skin may change in color, anywhere from a light yellow to a deep brown, or even black. This discoloration may at first be confined to the face and hands but ordinarily it spreads all over the body.

When marked weakness is present the patient should not be permitted to be up long about. Such exertion or severe muscular exercise should not be practiced.

Many cases are now successfully treated. Indeed great advances have been made in the last 10 years regarding diseases, previously of mysterious origin, particularly those involving the internal glands.

No definite treatment has as yet been established. The general treatment must include abundant rest, warmth and complete relaxation.

Persons suffering from Addison's disease require complete freedom from work and worry. They must not be permitted stress or strain of any kind. It is quite important to observe this rule as drastic results occur when these simple precautions are overlooked.

Answers to Health Queries

R. E. R. Q—What causes cracking joints?

A—This is usually due to lack of synovial fluid. Massage the parts with warm cod liver oil before retiring.

MRS. D. A. Q—Is mineral oil fattening?

A—No, it is merely lubricating.

E. R. T. Q—What do you advise for arthritis?

A—This disease is often stubborn in yielding to treatment. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

That Dear Paris---Home of 'Chic'---Has Changed

By WINIFRED BLACK

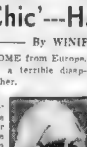
Poor Molly!

She was seasick all the way over, or a most all the way, and when she did get up on deck all the little cronies were formed and nobody asked Molly to play shuffleboard or deck tennis or not a single soul.

And when she got to London she almost froze to death. When she'd been there a few days, shivery days, she knew why the terrible flannel undergarments were on display in store windows. And on the fourth day she actually went in and bought woolen bed socks Molly who never wears a thing next to her skin but silk.



Winifred Black

And the things in the shops were not pretty, and they cost just three times as much as a whole lot prettier things cost at home.

Oh, well thought Molly, this is London.

Men's clothes are always smart here. I don't see so many of them this year, but there's no denying that Englishmen set the fashions in dress "nobody ever did pay much attention to the clothes English women wear. Wait till I get to Paris."

So Molly hurried to Paris the Channel was a little rough but the trip was short, so Molly stood it.

She could hardly wait for morning to go out and do some shopping.

She remembered all the enticing little shops she had seen seven or eight years ago in Paris.

Hats that were dreams.

Dresses that were visions.

Stockings and slippers that were irresistible—and all for nothing, or next to nothing.

Gone—not a trace of them left.

Windows full of commonplace, everyday dresses that you could buy in any American department store for $10.

They charged you $40 and up in Paris.

Hats nothing for less than $12—and up.

And you could buy the same models for $8 at Miss Betty Martins' Millinery Store in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, or Mrs. Edmond's Hat Shop in Petaluma, California.

American prices have come down—way down.

French prices have gone upway up, and poor little Molly came home and did her shopping in New York before she started out to Omaha for the rest of the summer.

Molly thought she's going to give a talk at the Tuesday afternoon club about shattered dreams—I think she's going to talk about hats and dresses and stockings and lingerie that she did not buy in that dear city dear Paris.

Webb and Wilson. One Up, One Down. All in the Game, | The Big Batters. What They Like. What They Fear.

A Little Inside Stuff on Apple Mashers

Some are up and some are down and some, betwixt and between, Webb and Wilson both will show about just what we mean.
This year Wilson warms the bench, though last Hack ruled the roost—Tries his darndest to kill the ball, but can't give it a boost.
Last year Webb drew no headlines and no one called him "Star."
This year Earl is heralded and headlined wide and far.
Leads the league in two-base hits, is hot on Babe Ruth's trail,
Pitchers look alike to him since Earl began to flail.
Baseball's like the Game of Life, for Fortune's smile and frown
Hits you atop the world today, tomorrow pulls you down.

Heigho, some are up and some are down and some are betwixt and between. Take Earl Webb and Hack Wilson, for instance. Last year Earl was just a ball player. This year he is a star. He's blazing his way across the baseball firmament hot on the flanks of the mighty Babe Ruth and Eddie Morgan in a sizzling race for the batting leadership. Last year Hack Wilson was the Home Run King. Flailed out more circuit slams than the King of Swat, Babe Ruth, himself. But where is Hack this year? Most of the time on the bench. And take the Waner brothers—look how Paul and Lloyd have fallen off this season. But back to more pleasant things. Back to Earl Webb.

Doesn't it beat the Dutch how Earl is mashing the old apple? They said Earl was a sucker for a slow ball and a sap against southpaws. This year Webbie is murdering southpaws and massacring the slow ball. They can't "pitch to his weakness" any more for he hasn't any weakness.

A great pitcher, a smart pitcher, sometimes pitches to a batter's strength. A few times this year twirlers have attempted to pitch to Webb's strength. If you know your baseball you know Earl likes 'em low and on the inside. Earl always could "kill" those low and inside ones. When the pitchers this season found southpaws and slowballers no longer were terrors to Webb, the tip went out to cross Webb by pitching to his strength. Thomas of the White Sox tried it. Worked to perfection. Webb didn't get a solitary bingle. Couldn't knock the ball out of the infield.

The tip went out to "get" Webb. So the Cleveland pitchers started "pitching to his strength" a la Thomas. Webb crashed them for three home runs. Got the lone hit and robbed Willis Hudlin of a no-hit game.

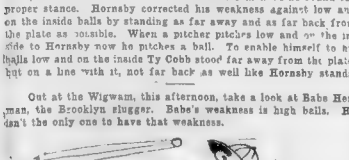
After that the American League pitchers went back to pitching to Webb's weakness. But what is Earl's weakness? He still is hammering the old horsehide hither and yon.

We believe part of Webb's batting strength this season is due to Manager "Shano" Collins. "Shano" lets Earl alone. If Webb is up to the plate and the count is three balls and no strikes and Webb wants to hit at the next one, why Collins lets him hit. And if you don't believe that Webb generally connects just look at the batting averages.

What are some of the batsman's strengths and weaknesses? Consider Al Simmons of the Athletics. He hasn't any weakness. He strikes out occasionally. Al is only human. But feed him the same ball again you struck him out with, Mister Pitcher, and he'll knock it back at you with such vehemence that the wind of it will blow off your cap.

Babe Ruth doesn't like a slow ball on the outside. Hornsby, like Simmons, practically has no batting weakness. But, like Ty Cobb, balls low and on the inside bothered him until he found the proper stance. Hornsby corrected his weakness against low and on the inside balls by standing as far away and as far back from the plate as possible. When a pitcher pitches low and on the inside to Hornsby now he pitches a ball. To enable himself to hit balls low and on the inside Ty Cobb stood far away from the plate, but on a line with it, not far back as well like Hornsby stands.

Out at the Wigwam, this afternoon, take a look at Babe Herman, the Brooklyn slugger. Babe's weakness is high balls. He don't the only one to have that weakness.



Herman thinks he can hit highballs. Pitch one to him and he goes after it. But generally he just punctures the ozone. Babe has been advised to stop going after the high ones. But he thinks he can kill 'em. For every one he kills ten have him swinging like the old barn gate.

Sometimes the strongest hitters are the easiest to fool and the weakest hitters are the hardest to fool, paradoxical as it may seem. As an example, take Rabbit Maranville. The Rabbit is no good hitter, yet he is one of the smartest batsmen in the league. Rabbit hasn't the build and lacks strength to hit the ball far. He has to place his hits. He's a crack at placing 'em. If he only could hit the ball harder and further he might be leading the league.

The "smartest" hitters are supposed to be in the National League. This is because the National League stresses curve ball pitching. The American League favors the fast ball. American League batters do not have to face the curve ball pitching their National League brethren do.

But World Series records show that the American League hitters can hit National League curve ball throwers even more promiscuously than the National Leaguers hammer the American League speedballists.

Goodale-Eaton Team in Winchester Win

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT—SEMI-FINALS

R. L. Goodale and C. S. Eaton, Winchester defeated Howard Paul and E. M. Neilson, Bear Hill, 2 and 1.
J. J. Healy, Longmeadow, and C. D. A. Grasse, Mt. Pleasant, defeated R. W. Wilson and Richard Woodman, South Shore, 2 up.

SECOND DIVISION

SEMI-FINALS

Frank Selman and R. W. Puffer, Jr., Wellesley, defeated H. Partridge, Jr., Crow Point, and W. R. Trowbridge, Cohasset, [illegible] F. Rich, Wellesley, and Edward Marr and D. D. Sullivan, Norfolk, 1 up, 21 holes.

By BILL GRIMES

For the first time in many years the entertaining club [illegible] represented in the final of the annual Winchester four-ball invitation which will be played this afternoon, for Bobby Goodale and Charlie Eaton defeated Howard Paul and E. M. Neilsen 2 and 1 this morning in the semi-finals and will meet Jack Healy and Chick Grasse in the deciding round.

Healy and Grasse stepped into the finals after a hard fight with Bunnie Wilson and Dick Woodsum. In the second division final Frank Selman and Bob Puffer will play Stanley Reed and Chet Rich.

Selman and Puffer put out Hoyt Partridge and Sam Trowbridge, this morning, while Reed and Rich downed Tom Healy and [illegible] Marr and D. D. Sullivan.

Paul and Nelson got off to a winning start when Goodale and Neilson in the semi-finals and were three up after playing six holes, but at this point Eaton hit his drive and the match was squared, when they reached the 12th hole Harvard man won three consecutive holes.

Winchester Team Goes Into Lead

The Winchester pair dropped to one down again when neither got homs at the 14th, losing to a par three. At the 12th hole Paul and Nelson ran into trouble and lost to a 6.

Goodale was the only one to get his par at the long 13th and for the first time in the match the Winchester pair were up.

They held their one hole advantage to the 17th when Goodale came through with another win, ending teh match 2 and 1.

But for a wildly played second hole by Jack Healy, Woodsum and Wilson would have been 3 up going to the fourth hole on the defending champions.

Woodsum ran down a 20-foot putt for a birdie three at the 2nd hole, and he was home with his second before Healy played his second. Healy pushed his drive, it went into the woods and hit a tree, but bounced back onto the fairway.

He hit a terrific brassie and which went over the green and everything was all set for Wilson to win another hole. However Healy holed out from beyond the green with a pitch for a birdie 3.

Wilson came up with another one at the third hole, where Healy stopped his drive and Grasse topped a pitch her conqueror had only 10 his third shot. At this point Healy stepped into the picture again and came up with three consecutive 3's.

Squared the Match With 25-Foot Putt

After a [illegible] approach he dropped another 25-footer for a birdie three, which squared the match.

He then halved the sixth hole with the South Shore boys and he should have won the seventh, as he was the only one home with two, but he needed three putts to get home for a halve with Wilson.

Having carried the load for four holes Healy let down at the eighth but Grasse stepped in with a birdie four and then won the ninth by virtue of a fine chip putting his side two up at the turn.

Al Letournier, the popular fifth Frenchman, who has thrilled his fans for the past three years, is out tomorrow night to break the winning streak of Fred Spencer in the Golden Wheel 50 mile motor race at Revere Track.

At the present time Letournier is leading in points for the American championship with 47, Franco Georgetti, last years champion, is running a close second to the fighting Frenchman with 41 points and tomorrow night's event will have much bearing on the next champion.

In addition to Letournier, Georgetti and Spencer, Manager Nat Ruther has engaged the services of Charlie Jaeger, Franz Duelberg and Jimmy Wathon. Since it is a well-known fact that the larger the field the greater the thrill, tomorrow night's race promises to be the best to be staged at the Revere saucer this year.

In a special sprint race Bobby Wallhouse, Jr. son of the famous Bobby, Sr., of motor-pace fame, will race Joe DiVito in a best two out of three heats. To round out a banner card there will be a special 10-mile motor-paced race between Anthony Bernard, John Brunski and Bob Christian. The amateur and pro events will complete the card, which will start promptly at 8:15 p. m.

Stand Up Near the Plate

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

The Boston Police have organized a baseball league, and no sooner was the news announced than 250,000 motorists applied for jobs as umpires.

Here is a game, umpired by a driver who has been tagged for nothing. Received on our regular telepathic radio set.

It is the last of the ninth. Two are out. Three men are on. Officer Taggem is at bat. The count is three and two.

Here comes the throw. Whizz. Six feet beyond the plate.

Umpire: "Hey! Where do you think you're going. Get over there."

Officer: "Why? Wasn't that a ball?"

Umpire: "Hey! Where did you learn to play ball? Can't you hear?"

Officer Taggem: "I thought you said a ball."

Umpire: "You thought, did you? What part of the sticks do you come from?"

Officer: "Szy! Don't get fresh with me. I know Superintendent Crowley and Tip O'Neill.

Umpire: "Oh, Yeah! Well, I'm Commissioner Hultman. You get over there and shut up. I'm running this game."

MIANNE LOSES IN COURT PLAY

Providence, R. I., July 10 (AP)—Miss Virginia Hillcary of Philadelphia, fourth ranking woman tennis player in the country, advanced to the final round of Agawam Hunt women's invitation tournament when she defeated Miss Mianne Palfrey of Brookline, 6—3, 6—2 in a semi-final round match on the East Providence grass court today.

Miss Hillcary, top seeded player in the draw, will face the winner of the match between Miss Mary Greef of Kansas City and Sarah Palfrey.

The tall Philadelphia girl had little trouble scoring her victory this forenoon. She jumped into a commanding lead at the outset of the first set and led by a substantial margin throughout the match. She required only 32 minutes to win the second set.

It was announced by officials that some of the matches, including the men's singles finals for the state championship, would probably be postponed until tomorrow on account of the unfavorable weather, which has handicapped the tournament all week.

Eliminated Lady Astor in Golf Tilt

Walton Heath, Eng., July 10 (AP)—Lady Nancy Astor was eliminated in the semi-final round of the ladies' championship golf tournament today by Lord Castlerosse, who won by a single hole.

Lady Astor was the only woman competing in the field of [illegible] 100 which started play several weeks ago. She had a handicap of 22 while her conqueror had only 10.

Hornsby's Hint to Enemy Proves Fatal to the Cubs

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 10 (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cubs, doesn't mind giving the opposition a hit now and then.

Paralyzed Youth to Be Walker's Guest at Fight

Orangeburg, N. Y., July 11—A wheel chair with a paralyzed youngster in it was pushed into the training arena at Gus Wilson's camp just as Mickey Walker was about to begin punching the bag, preparatory to his fight with Jack Sharkey on July 22.

Mickey looked up, recognized Nicholas Cavalas, a 16-year-old boy who worships him, and rushed over to shake hands. Then Walker picked him up and carried Nicholas to a seat near the ringside.

"You're going to be my guest at the fight, aren't you?" Mickey asked him, and added, as if an inducement were necessary: "There's a seat in the second row ringside waiting for you."

Nicholas, paralyzed since birth, accepted. He came from Northvale, five miles from here, to see his idol spar. The trip was a paying success and, as for Walker, he didn't lose any in the esteem of the 500 spectators who saw him carry the youngster to his seat.

WOLGAST PUTS TITLE AT STAKE

Wolgast won recognition as flyweight champion early in 1930 when he defeated Black Bill of Cuba.

RIVALS CLASH TONIGHT AT GARDEN

Complete Card at Garden Tonight

FOUR ROUNDS
Henry Surretta, Leominster, vs. Ike Ezmunt, Peabody.

SIX ROUNDS
Jack McCarthy, Roxbury, vs. Gus Carlson, Dorchester

EIGHT ROUNDS
Al Marra, Los Angeles, vs. Tony Shucco, North End

TEN ROUNDS
Jack Dorval, Quincy, vs. Gene Stanton, Cleveland.
Jim Maloney, South Boston, vs. Ernie Schaaf, Wrentham.

By JACK CONWAY

Jim Maloney and Ernie Schaaf each motored from the South Shore to Boston today to weigh in for their 10-round battle at the Boston Garden tonight.

Maloney, accompanied by Dan Carroll and Jess Gardner, made the trip over the road from Shamus home in Merry mount to Billy Ames' office in the Garden

Schaaf breezed in from Hull where he has been living with Johnny Buckley, his manager

Maloney was serious and determined. He knows his back is against the wall and he knows he will fight his way out front

Jack Conway

Schaaf was almost light hearted. He thinks he has Maloney's number. He does not claim he can repeat his recent 70 second knockout of Maloney, but he does believe he will stop the South Boston warrior within the limit of ten heats

Schaaf said he will weigh over 200 pounds when he enters the ring tonight. This should mean that he will carry all of his strength into action

Schaaf rules a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting. When Ernie battled Maloney recently at the Garden Shamus entered the ring a 2 1/2 to 1 choice. A left hook to the jaw followed by a right hand punch to the same spot knocked the betting odds overboard.

Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, will be in Schaaf's corner tonight. Sharkey made a flying trip here from his training camp in New York, where he is getting ready for his meeting with Mickey Walker on July 27 so that he could help Schaaf score a victory in the Garden mill.

It was at first felt that the presence of Sharkey in Schaaf's corner might have a bad effect on Maloney. Instead the fact that the American champion will be behind Schaaf has tended to steam Shamus up. He says he will knock Schaaf right into Sharkey's lap.

Schmeling's Victory Has Boomed Boxing Game

I believe Maloney and Schaaf will benefit from Max Schmeling's knockout victory over Young Stribling. The German added new fire to the heavyweight division. The fans are once more talking fighting they will flock to the Garden tonight to see what happens when a couple of thumpers start letting their punches fly.

Schaaf has youth on his side and also the knowledge that he has already beaten Maloney in decisive style. These facts will aid him a great deal once he answers the going tonight.

Maloney, on the other hand knows that he will be forced into retirement if he suffers another defeat at the hands of Schaaf. He is fighting to keep in the boxing game.

Maloney will probably carry his head high so as to avoid Schaaf's head punches. But if he does this he will leave his body wide open. And Schaaf can punch as hard to the body as he can to the jaw

Maloney says he will carry the battle to Schaaf, which will give him a better opportunity to score damaging punches. If he makes good his promise, it should be a hard fight, as Schaaf won't back away.

Dorval and Stanton in Semi-Final

Roxbury Post to Hold Field Day

The Roxbury Post, 44, American Legion has arranged an interesting program of sports for its monster clambake and field day, to be held at Carver Sunday

The program includes field and track events, which will have members of the Boston Swimming Association girls' track team participating and also swimming and fancy diving competition by 50 mermaids of the B. S. A.

There will also be open events for members of the legion and auxiliary members and a baseball game between married and single men.

DIEGEL GETS 71 IN OPEN

Mississauga Golf Club, Toronto, July 10 (AP)—Diegel of Avia Caliente, Mexico, who has won the title four times and was runner-up to Tommy Armour last year, carded a 71 today in his second round to take the lead among the early finishers in the Canadian open golf championship with a 36-hole total of 141.

Diegel shelled the first nine for a 34 two under par, but went one over perfect figure coming home.

Walter Hagen, who had a 68 yesterday to tie with Wiffy Cox and Armour for second place behind Denny Allen, continued his sub-par golf today, scoring a 34 on the outward nine.

Andy Kay, Toronto golfer who is the Canadian professional crown a few days ago checked in a few minutes behind Diegel with a 73 for a total of 148 and a temporary tie with Diegel for first place. Kay was around in even par, 72, yesterday.

Auguste Boyer of France also turned in a 71 today but his 70 yesterday pulled him five strokes behind Diegel and Kay with a half-way total of 150.

Carl Hubbell, Giants—Held the Phils to seven hits, beat them, 6 to 3.

Lou Gehrig, Yankees—Home run and double drove in five runs against Athletics

Schaaf Is Conway's Choice to Beat Maloney

"I have hopped aboard the Schaaf band wagon and believe he will stop Maloney again tonight," said Jack. "When these big fellows met in their first meeting, I picked Maloney to win, and was surprised at Schaaf's 70 second knockout.

"I am convinced that Schaaf will win again tonight. He may not score such a decisive triumph, but he will be out front when the final punch has been delivered."

Loss of Lindstrom Is Bodyblou to Giants

New York, July 10 (INS)—Fate, which has dealt many a winning hand to John J. McGraw in his 31 years as a big league baseball manager, reached outtoday and smacked the veteran pilot squarely on the whiskers

For McGraw's Giants, who had a glittering chance this season to win the fiery leader his first National League pennant in seven years, appeared today to be doomed to wind up another campaign among the also rans.

Indications at this writing were that Lindy would be lost to the club for at least a month and possibly for the remainder of the season Loss of his services for even a month would seriously cripple the team.

Lindstrom Apple of McGraw's Eye

Lindstrom, a vital cog in the New York machine, is the apple of McGraw's eye. A reliable hitter, fast on the bases and a star in his new role of outfielder he has been one of the outstanding performers of the national pastime since the world series of 1924 when at the tender age of 18 he played a substitute's role against Washington with the poise of a veteran.

His loss means that Leach and Allen must be used simultaneously on the New York outfield instead of being alternated in left field against right-hand and southpaw pitching.

This will weaken the team's attack unless McGraw decides to take a chance on Fullis in right field. And Fullis is no Lindstrom The latter, just emerging from a slump, raised his average 13 .200 by hitting a homer and a single before being injured yesterday.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

The Red Sox can hold their own against their Western rivals but they aren't very successful against their Eastern opponents.

Since coming back from the wide open spaces, where they won seven and lost nine the Colts men have lost five out of six to the Athletics, Yanks and Senators.

The last game the Sox won was on Sunday last, when Deacon Danforth MacFayden turned back the Yanks. Today, the bespectacled Somerville youth will try to duplicate his mates' back-to-back victory trot again in the second of a three-game series with the Senators in Washington. He will draw "Rump" Hadley, Lynn boy, as his opponent.

Wiley Moore started against Fred Fitzpatrick in the first contest in the capital. The sinker-ball expert didn't last long, the Senators scoring nine runs in the first three frames. The final count was 14 to 1, which enabled the Griffmen to gain a game and a half within six games of the champion Athletics, who were tripped by the Yankees.

Though both the Giants and Robins won, each lost a little ground in the National League race as the champion Cardinals grabbed two verdicts from the last-placed Reds and increased their lead to four full games.

The Pirates scored their second straight victory over the Cubs and are now tied for sixth place with the Phils, as far as games won and lost are concerned, but the Quakers have a margin of a few points in the percentage column.

Rabbit Maranville was able to resume play in the first game against the Dodgers and Bill Urbanski, rookie infielder, made his debut at third base, the berth he was purchased to fill. He looked very good in the field, made one clean hit and was robbed of a double by a fine catch by "Lefty" O'Doul

The same O'Doul, who played with the Yankees, Red Sox, Giants and Phils, before becoming a Robin, had a great day with the stick. Up five times, he made three singles, a double and drew a walk

Several Brooklyn rooters armed with cow bells and in a box back of the Robins' bench and made plenty of whoopee every time one of the visiting firemen made a hit.

Led by Fresco Thompson, a noted "jockey," the Brooklyn bench warmers sat on the steps of the dugout and criticized the "umps" all afternoon. Bill Klem got mad along about the fifth inning and spent more time trying to catch somebody making an insulting remark than he did watching plays for the rest of the game.

BAD WEATHER HINDRANCE TO SHARKEY

New York, July 10 (INS The fact that bad weather has interfered considerably with Jack Sharkey's training schedule at his camp in Pompton Lakes, N. J., is worrying J admirers far more than it America's star heavyweight.

Some of these Sharkey admirers are openly expressing the fear that Jack isn't taking seriously his 15-round championship battle with Mickey Walker at Ebbets field on the night of July 22.

Sharkey was scheduled to begin a high-pressure training grind at Dr. Joseph Rier's health farm in Pompton Lakes last Tuesday. It is an ideal training site and Sharkey and his retinue of handlers were delighted with it

But Sharkey said the country was no place for him in the rain and decided to postpone his Pompton Lakes invasion until the sun reappeared

The sun did not shine on Tuesday nor Wednesday, so Jack established himself in a gymnasium in Manhattan and went to work, using nearby Central Park for his morning road work

Five miles around the park reservoir at a lively trot didn't seem to bother the lanky Lithuanian in the least

E. Y. C. FLEET STILL IDLE

North Haven, Me., July 10 A new record for inactivity by an eastern yacht club fleet was established yesterday. After vainly waiting for the mythical mist machine off Monhegan to shut down, Commodore William C. Aldrich reluctantly ordered off the run to North east Harbor and Eggemoggin Reach and announced that an effort would be made tomorrow to run up the western Penobscot either to Castine or Islesboro.

Back in 1909, when the late Washington B. Thomas was commodore, the eastern fleet was forbound in Burnt Coat Harbor, on the south side of Swans Island, for two days, and there have been several years in which scheduled runs were called off, but never in the 31 years' history of this time-honored cruise has an eastern fleet been compelled to linger three long, idle days in port.

ROBINS FORGE AHEAD

CLUB HITTING AND FIELDING WELL NOW

By JOE CASHMAN

The same team that lost four straight games to the Braves and appeared very bad doing it, during the opening series of the season here, now looks and acts like a pennant winner.

Its famed sluggers are knocking down the fences, its mound scares are pitching almost unbeatable ball and the whole gang is hustling and fighting as though the championship depended upon the outcome of every game.

In short, Your Uncle Robbie seems once more to have performed the miracle of moulding a serious fog contender out of a lot of diamond odds and ends.

Even southpaws don't worry or bother the boys from Brooklyn any longer. That's a sure sign that they have found themselves and are going to be in the thick of the fighting for top honors right down to the finish.

They were sunk deep in the second division for the first six weeks of the campaign because they couldn't hit portside slants. They couldn't have hit an average right-hander any harder or more often than they landed on Old Tom Zachary's southpaw shoots in the opening game of their current series with the Braves at the Wigwam.

Robins Win First Game of Season Here

Old Tom went into the game well rested and with a record of not having been beaten in four starts against the invaders, but neither his condition nor his record was of any help to him.

Six solid hits, including a triple and two doubles and the majority of them by left-handed hitters, gave the Robins four runs and the old ball game in the fourth and fifth innings.

FULL SCHEDULE OF CRICKET

The Massachusetts State League cricket teams will revert back to active competition this afternoon, after a two weeks' layoff, when a full schedule of games is on tap with the feature attraction carded at Franklin Field, Dorchester, where three games will be played.

The Wanderers, entrenched in second place but a single point behind league leading Arlington, will cross bats with Roswell in the feature match of the popular Dorchester crease, a tilt that should produce some heavy batting.

Athletics and Rockland and West India A against West India B are the other matches scheduled for Franklin Field.

Arlington Mills, safely perched on top of the 14-team loop minus a defeat, will have the Mystic Lodge as opponents at Lawrence and the latter should be just another victim for the leaders.

St. Georges will have Bermudis and Glendale Park, Everett, and Quincy by the manner in which they defeated the West India A in their last start should have some battle on their hands.

In the remaining matches, Brockton will entertain Standards at Brockton and the University and Windsors will clash at North Brighton.

Dorchester Post Ring Show Tonight

Simon pure punchers from banquets to light heavyweights, will each be the Dorchester Post No. 14, A. L. show at New Lincoln Park tonight.

ED GEORGE IN FINE SHAPE FOR BOUT

By MR. BOSTON

You can tell the sea gulls and everybody else that Ed Don George plans to tear Henri De Glane, world's heavyweight wrestling champ, into a thousand pieces when they get tangled up in their finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Crossup-Pishon Post's show at Braves Field next Tuesday night.

I motored up to Mansion Inn with Paul Rooney and Alex McLean to get a peek at George in action. I wanted to get a close up of the former champion so he will go through his training. I had been told that he was working harder than any grappler has in years, but, I wanted to be shown.

George started his workout at 2 o'clock and it was 4:15 when he called it a day. The preparation was running down his face when he ended up with a furious bout with Buck Weaver.

Ed has a new wrinkle in training. He does not take a rest period from the time he opens fire until he ends his training. I saw him skip rope, play medicine ball and wrestle.

George and Al Morelli wrestled 30 minutes on a mat pitched on the lawn beside Mansion Inn. By the way these boys went at each other it would appear as if the title was at stake.

Mr. Boston

Morelli Gives George Hard Workout

Morelli, one of the most promising youngsters to crash his way into the wrestling game in recent years, gave George a hard go. But George wouldn't be floored. He kept going forward at all times in an irresistible fashion.

Freddy Moran, Sailor Jim Arnold and Buck Weaver also got a crack at George. He took them on, one after the other, without a second's rest between bouts. This made him step all of the time.

"I must have lost 10 pounds today," said George, laughingly, as he finished his workouts. "I was out on the road for an hour this morning, while I have worked for more than two hours this afternoon.

"I am in the best condition of my career and quite confident I shall conquer DeGlane. You know I licked the Frenchman on the Coast shortly after I won the title from Sonnenberg. I recently held him to a draw at Buffalo, each of us having scored a fall when the match was stopped by the 11 o'clock rule that exists in New York State.

"The hunt next Tuesday night will be in a positive finish event if it lasts all night. I'm too rough and strong for DeGlane. He is a finished wrestler, but I'll rough him around a bit and in this way slow him down. I'll be right back in the championship throne after the bout on Tuesday night. I'll then sign a contract with Paul Bowser for all-comers."

DeGlane Faces Hardest Bout of Career

When George stepped on the scales, he weighed 218 pounds. He is as hard as nails and one of the best conditioned athletes it has ever been my privilege to gaze upon.

DeGlane will have to put up the greatest battle of his career if he is to retain his title Tuesday night. George reminds me a lot of the Dempsey of Toledo. He is jammed with vitality and confidence. He has also been schooled in the fine points of the game. He figures he is unbeatable and that he is going to score the wrestling heights once more.

RADIO PLAY WRITING

Opportunity Great for Young Authors

New Field for Writers Created by Demand for Dramatics

Young writers have found a haven in radio. There are at present more than a few hundred whose struggle for existance has been lightened by the progress of radio dramatics. Experts on listener psychology predict an even brighter future for radio plays. That means much to youthful authors. In New York high hope has sprung eternal with budding geniuses of literature for many years. Magazine and newspaper offices have been besieged with manuscripts submitted by ambitious creators of fiction, each one living a cherished dream wherein they visualize success as their reward for tedious hours of writing.

For a time the demands of radio were filled by regular staff members employed by the big broadcasting chains. At present, it seems, they are buying the work of independents, with every indication pointing to a continuance of the patronage. Material suitable for air adaptation is something vastly different from that which makes a successful play. Radio continuity construction is indeed a work apart.

New Worlds to Conquer . . . .

Quick to sense the requirements, hundreds of unknowns have managed to acquire the necessary technique. Radio production men are also alert where acceptable text matter is concerned, as a result of which many a dream has come true in the ranks of writers, whose previous hardships bordered on despair.

• • •

Continuity found to be good as a radio offering is worth money. Very often 15-minute playlets bring $75 each, and two or three a week are purchased from certain of the talented contributors. A never-ending flow of manuscripts constantly pour into the desks of production bosses, whose responsibility in dealing with such offerings has made such work tremendously important.

• • •

Shades of the silent movies are brought back with the initial sponsored effort of Francis X. Bushman, one-time matinee screen idol. Ten Friday periods, beginning tonight (WBZ) at 9:30, will feature Bushman re-enacting old film roles that brought him fame.

• • •

Close contact with Scout life is made possible by the booking of a new NBC feature to be known as "The Boy Scout Reporter." It is due next week, Wednesday afternoon at 4:45 p. m. Each weeks these bits of life in camp will take the air waves from WEAF, with WEEI more than likely to list it in Boston.

• • •

Old Movie Favorite . . . .

So much has been written and said regarding television that it becomes increasingly difficult to determine just how much (if any) progress is actually being made. Technical obstacles, seemingly unsurmountable, hold back major developments. Those now guiding the destiny of radio in America do not seem to be as perturbed or even as concerned to the extent in evidence a few months ago.

For Early Birds

Arthur Bagley, whose morning exercises are daily featured on WEEI (7 a. m.), is so all-fired convincing as he pokes fun at yawning early risers that he actually prevails upon a good many to really get down on the floor and do his bidding. He openly insinuates that listeners are not doing as he tells them. Bagley insists that those of his hearers who stretch out on the living room floor are not the ones "laying down" on him. N. F. T.

On the Air

Great Britain's prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, and three ex premiers, Stanley Baldwin and David Lloyd George, will be heard from London over WNAC tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. They will speak on "Arms and the People" at a mass meeting in Royal Albert Hall . . .

CBS is trying to get John McCormack to sign on the dotted line, but it must have forgotten the Irish tenor is a member of the NBC artist bureau . . . Manchester, N. H. will soon open a 1000-watt station . . . Ohman and Arden, piano duo, will probably be Bobby Jones' successor on the air . . . Frank Gillis' air descriptions of mat and ring activities evidently have reached the ears of N. Y. b'casters. If negotiations are completed the sports announcer will soon be commuting regularly to N. Y. Just one more proof that Boston is Gotham's radio feeding ground . . . Amos 'n' Andy's sponsors have signed the N. Y. favorites. "Rise of the Goldbergs," to be offered daily on a WEAF network starting Tuesday . . . The program will be tested on a small network and if successful a major crash including WEEI, WTAG, may follow. The program will be heard at 7:45, Mr. Brown's time . . . NBC is managing Post and Gatty, jet their globe-hopping reception will be b'dcast on the CBS tonight, WAAB at 10:30 . . . Billy Jones and Ernie Hare will cease to be the Blue Flame Boys long, but they resume Sept. 4 . . . Everything that will happen at the new Waldorf-Astoria will come through NBC exclusively.

Francis X. Bushman, matinee idol of old, will be heard over WBZ at 9:30 this eve. In the first of a series of ten programs in which he will give his impressions of stars he was known . . . Borah, Minnevitch & Harmonica Rascals are guest artists on The Voice of the Air tonight at 10:30 . . . Joe White, Stage Masked Tenor, guests at 8:45 over WBZ with . . . Ted Husing at the Globe wrestling card, and Graham George, challenger, at the ringside . . . Jewell to Debut Here soon on WNAC at 10:30 tonight . . . Although Irena Bordoni is summering in Europe, her sponsors have signed Welcome Lewis, formerly of NBC, to do a series on the CBS beginning July 16. There will be NO commercial announcements on the program . . . If Chevalier returns to the air in the fall he will b'cast from the Pacific Coast.

KOKORDA WILL RUN COPLEY SQ. HOTEL

Charles W. Kokorda, hotel man in New England for 30 years has leased the Copley Sq. Hotel from Charles W. Rowell the owner. The Copley Sq. Hotel, Inc., former owners of the hotel, which was yesterday petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy has no connection with the new management.

The hotel will be conducted under an entirely new regime. Kokorda had the Hotel Sippian at Marion for five years. He conducted the New Bedford Hotel for several years and last summer had a summer resort at Burlington Vt.

During his career in the hotel business he has also managed hotels in the South. He recently returned from a European tour, visiting hotels in England, France and Austria with which he was connected before coming to this country in his early youth.

SCENERY TODAY'S TOPIC

Today you have a lesson on scenery. Herriman, creator of Krazy Kat, converting among the cactus of Coconino County, tells you how to draw the backdrops of your comic strips.

By HERRIMAN

I don't have to tell you how important scenery is to your drawings. By the time you have drawn enough to realize how much it can add to your effects

This important thing about scenery is to make sure that it does add, and not subtract. In very many, if you're not careful, to let your scenery get away from you and push itself into the foreground of your picture. Just remember that your characters must always be in the spotlight—the reader's eye must pick up the characters first, and only be conscious of the scenery as an addition. Scenery, like fire, is a swell servant, but a bad master.

Get out that lesson Nelson Harding gave you on perspective and look it over again. Remember to use all its principles as you draw today.

FIRST EXAMPLE

In the first example today I've drawn a very simple background for you: a straight line to represent the horizon, with a tree in the foreground. That road, with the two lines that make it seem to sail at the horizon adds to the effect of distance.

The horizon is the imaginary line where earth and sky meet, and is always at the level of the eye.

Now look at the second sketch I've drawn. This one is a little more complicated. Here the effect of distance is obtained by drawing a tree in the foreground, then another somewhat smaller nearer the horizon, then a building a whole lot smaller right in the horizon. Note in both these sketches that the horizon line is further emphasized by shading the sky to distinguish it from the ground.

CHARACTERS IN FRONT

Now we are going to put characters in front of our backdrop and this is where the warnings I gave you above come in

In the third sketch we have Krazy busily sitting in the foreground of the picture. I wanted to shade the sky as I did in the first picture but Krazy is shaded in nearly the same way and I couldn't cut the risk of causing confusion. So I drew a building on the horizon right behind Krazy long enough him up in high relief against a white background.

Now in the fourth picture I've made use of a comic stock in this kind of drawing which emphasizes a certain kind of action. See where the horizon is? It's very much lower than in any of the other pictures. This shows to good advantage our hats leaping "dense" of glee. In this picture I drew a building on the horizon right behind Krazy long enough him up in high relief against a white background.

Any kind of action which would be more impressive if you were seeing it from below can be emphasized in this manner

Try out all kinds of scenic effects yourself. Go out and try to draw what you see, keeping in mind the simple rules for perspective and the rules of drama that you've had.

Keep your pencils sharp. Tomorrow another great drawing lesson from a member of this highest paid faculty in the world will appear in the Boston Evening American

The Life Story of WILEY POST, FLIER

This is the seventh in a series of eight installments in a life story of Wiley Post. The previous installments traced the career of this Texas-born farm youth as barnstormer, chief test pilot for an aircraft factory and as a man who carefully laid his aviation groundwork.

By LEON H. DURST

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press)

PART VII

..Wiley Post was happy when the way was smoothed for the opportunity to make real the biggest thing he could think of that but to go around the world.

With assurance of his financial backing of F. C. Hall, his Oklahoma friend, and the co-operation of his navigator, Harold Gatty Post went to work in earnest shaping things for the argosy he had dreamed of for over four years.

To Post the task of getting his sleek monoplane, Winnie Mae, in condition was the most important. He himself, as usual, was riding the crest of health and spirits. He felt misgivings about his ability to handle the plans as long as he motor smoothly and

SPENT MONTH ON PLANE

It was primarily the job of the meticulous Gatty to fuss with maps, charts, logarithms and all things a good navigator reaches

To make perfect his plans Wiley spent a month at the air factory on the Pacific coast where he once worked as chief test pilot

Upon the throbbing Pratt-Whitney engines. He even reached back to utilize that experience born of barnstorming days when he thrilled country crowds with his wing walking and parachute leaps, and gave the right climb to erratic motors

It was only a shell of the engine that carried him to victory in the 1930 national nonstop air derby from the Pacific coast to Cleveland. Parts had been replaced only after they had been X-rayed etched and microscopically scrutinized.

"We spent as much money on it," Post said, "as a new engine would cost, but we wouldn't trade it for two new ones, I'm sure."

To gain more speed, he worked out his own fuel-carrying arrangement and altered the wing adjustment. Two tanks and five wing tanks served as gasoline receptacles. This moved the weight sufficiently to the front to permit what Post said would be easier handling, fewer balances and better speed-flying position

WINGS SHIFTED FOR SPEED

A slight negative angle of incidence to the wings was made to give more speed and at the same time balance the load better

Fully loaded, the ship weighed about 6000 pounds with a range of 2400 miles on the 340 gallons of gas and 31 gallons of oil which are carried

Post saw no need of carrying either parachute or life raft. The load was limited to just a few [illegible] Wiley stood up the situation [illegible]

Compasses for pilot and navigator were packed as well as every conventional instrument. There was also an "artificial horizon" and a "directional gyro" to aid in fog and other blind flying. Above the place for Navigator Gatty in the nose, a glass fitted hatch was cut in the wing to let in the sky.

Wiley went to the capitol seeking permission to fly over Russia. This had been granted, however, while they were in route

POSE WITH SEC. SIMSON

They talked with Secretary Simson of the Navy Department and proudly posed for pictures with the ranking cabinet officer.

To capitol reporters Post said they were "going to fly around the world in 10 days, and maybe less." Post said plans almost 107 hours of flying time would be required. This was prophetic, the actual flying time being only a few hours less.

Wiley and his partner loitered at Roosevelt Field several weeks waiting for Dr. James Kimball of the U. S. Weather Bureau to say all was well Mechanics marvelled at the mechanism of the "Winnie Mae." Every now and then Wiley dubbed it the field the most amazing man that ever flew across the Atlantic," gave his plane a careful look over, always leaving with a satisfied expression.

Then came the big moment the dawn of June 2 To Harbor Grace, N. F., they raced, 1,040 miles, and after they had been X-rayed etched and microscopically scrutinized

(Tomorrow: Wiley Post carries his name high in aviation's shining hall of fame.)

Western Union May Gross Shows Drop

Western Union Telegraph Co.'s gross income for the month of May totaled $9,549,615, as compared with $11,620,381 in the same month of the preceding year.

Operating income in May was $994,813, as against $825,914 in May 1930.

Gross income for the first months ended May 31 aggregated $47,088,228, as compared with $59,042,981 in the first five months of last year, while operating income totaled $3,225,313 and $3,360,914, respectively.

Bond Offerings in Week Are Larger

New bond offerings during the week ended July 10 totaled $30,815,000, compared with $26,897,000 last week.

NEW ENGLAND SHOE INDUSTRY HOLDS OWN

By FRANK H. MELOON

Plainly our Northeastern states are more than holding their own in the shoe industry, which once centered in Northeastern New Hampshire and Massachusetts in the person of Henry Wilson, nicknamed "Shoe Maker Colfax" according to figures released at close of the Boston shoe and leather fair, nearly 50,000,000 pairs of shoes, or most two-fifths of the nation's total output, were manufactured in New England in the first five months of this year In May New England produced 37 per cent of United States shoe output, a record of per cent for preceding four months This section has produced a large proportion of footwear for so far this year than for several years past and its lead for both increasing month by month

Nash Motors, a few years ago in trouble and struggling during in Boston and later the skyrocketing sensation of the Wall St market, was brought here by the late James J Storrow Five years ago Nash was put rent stock dividend was one of the leaders in industry of Today At the time of the 10-9 erash Nash had $25,000,000 invested in plant, equipment, etc The NNash bookkeeping is rather intricate but the reserve just set aside, or the value of the ticker prices as considerably in excess of a million dollars, indicates the current dividends are nominally about earned in the current quarter instead of two per of just under 50 cents a share originally reported

President T. B. Macaulay of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, considered by many to be the leading individual proponent of the purchase and holding of common stocks for investment purposes, said in October that the Federal Reserve's relieve existing conditions by the purchase of government bonds Thinks were turned on the idea at the time but it now appears that the Federal Reserve officials have definitely decided to try the experiment. Medicine can sometimes be worse than the cure of help but it is our understanding that Mr Macaulay doesn't think it too late at this time

T. B. Macaulay

Mr. Macaulay, whose outstanding exponent of common stocks was so approved several months ago at a gathering of the company's representatives at Swampscott, Mass., said:

"The outstanding need of humanity today is stabilized currency Compared with it, all other needs are of minor importance The gold standard has brought currencies into harmonious relationship with each other, but the stability they all need still is lacking. Unless the gold standard can be given stability of value its importance and usefulness are reduced enormously, and even its permanence endangered. Several countries already have had to abandon it and so far the results to them are not all bad."

Many conferences have been held on stabilizing employment, in the account of them to date have we seen the fact taken into consideration that unfortunate industries are entirely seasonal, while the seasonal requirements of many others vary greatly. A study of this factor in conference will enlighten us for example about the way to make the shoe industry and the clothing industry an all the-year-round affair

Filling stations and garages can be cited as employing about 4,000,000 Americans during the peak of the season, but in winter, when weather dries up the tides of travel many thousands of these garages and filling stations are closed More than a Nobel prize should be awarded the one who can tell us how to establish some sort of employment

* * *

Another topic discussed without too much thought is that of securities in control of New England railroads Control of the Boston and Maine will be passed on at today's stockholders meeting Next month is due to come up for decision the question of voting control of the New Haven according to the viewpoint. Also coming up for decision before the New England Public Service Co. is the proposal to sell its New Bedford gas property to the Consolidated Gas Co. of New York

Many in State Street are beginning to feel that banish, fashion stocks tempting to capital is one of our major problems. Very much more might be written on this subject

Marlboro Loan Is Awarded in Boston

Marlboro awarded to First National-Old Colony Corp. at 2.67 per cent, $60,000 loan payable in 1935 respectively March 21, April 20 and May 20, 1932. Other bidders were Peoples National Bank, Marlboro 2.69 per cent and Faxon, Gade & Co 2.11 per cent

Associated 'Phone Gets Foreign Order

Associated Telephone and Telegraph Company has received an order through its subsidiary, Automatic Telephones Limited Japan for a complete Automatic P. A. X. equipment for the South Manchuria Railway Company's hospital at Mukden, Manchuria.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Wall Street traders were attributed today to center attention on the situation abroad. A further drop in German Government bonds in our markets and the weakness of stocks on the Berlin Bourse was evidence plainly of the uneasiness still existing over the whole war debt and economic position of Germany, whose bankers are still vainly for new loans

U. S. Steel Has Another Decrease

Pivotal shares marked time today, perhaps the appearance of U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage statement. The statement, as originally forecasted there, showed another decrease for the month of June, thus following the nearly shattered product of previous recent years 12 Steel changed hands in moderate volume a point or more above its days now following the issuance of the June statement

Bethlehem Down on Dividend Report

Beans circulated a report today that Bethlehem would lower its dividend rate. Standard Statistics estimated no earnings would be made for the first half of 1931. Bethlehem was sold rather freely, off over a point. The dividend has been cut from $6 to $4 annually

Alaska-Juneau Has Good Pool Support

Good pool support appeared today for Alaska-Juneau, and the gold mining issue was sold actively at higher prices, displaying itself as the strong spot of the specialty group

Railroad Leaders Are More Cheerful

Railroad leaders were reported more cheerful, with the carriers doing a period which almost invariably has proved one of better earnings than those of the initial half of the year Baltimore & Ohio New York Central, Southern Pacific and other well-known rails were in demand at moderately higher prices

International Shoe Attractive Issue

International Shoe has been at traction of interest during all its recent reactions, especially when obtainable to yield 8 per cent or more. The strong balance sheet of the company coupled with the fact that the shoe business appears to be turning the corner, brought considerable buying into the stock several weeks ago Those who bought at that time are said to have maintained their long position despite the latest decline in the general market Several investment houses have called the stock to the attention of their customers

Johns Manville Earnings Gossip

That the net earnings on the various companies is affected by the action of the individual stocks was the explanation given Johns Manville. When this stock was advancing sharply a few weeks ago the talk was general that revenues were showing considerable improvement Now with the issue reacting as a result of easier tendencies in the general list the comment is made that the various statements of a few weeks ago were exaggerated Stop loss orders have been uncovered on the recent recessions

Bethlehem Steel Dividend Action

Bethlehem Steel directors meet today for dividend action, July 15. Because of the knowledge that earnings on the common stock in the second quarter were negligible, it best it is the confident view in Wall St. that at least a reduction in the rate will be decided upon Three months ago the dividend was cut from $6 to $4 a share per year. The most popular belief now is that perhaps 50 cents a shares will be ordered paid placing the stock on a new basis

A. & P. TONNAGE SALES LARGER

Sales of Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. for the four-week period ending June 27 were $40,850,700. This compares with $32,921,191 for the same period in 1930, a decrease of of $2,070,491, or 2.5 per cent.

June sales, expressed in tons were 454,268 this year compared with 392,099 in June, 1930. This is a gain in quantity of merchandise sold of 62,169 tons, or 15.85 per cent.

Average weekly sales in June were $20,212,675 compared with $20,730,298 in 1930, a decrease of $517,623. Average weekly tonnage sales were 113,567 compared with 98,025 in June, 1930 an increase of 15,542.

Sales for the first six months of 1931 totaled $831,619,232 against $843,000,901 for the first half of last year, a drop of $18,480,769, or 3.07 per cent

Devonshire to Pay $3.50 for Quarter

At a meeting of the directors of Devonshire Investing Corp, a quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share was declared on the common and A stock, payable July 15, 1931. To stockholders of record at the close of business July 10, 1931. This dividend will be No. 16.

Reports of Boston Coalers Are Given

In June, Pond Creek Pocahontas Co. mined 103,605 tons of coal com pared with only 72,744 tons in May and 104,013 tons in June a year ago In June Island Creek Coal Co. mined 227,228 tons of coal, compared with 316,262 tons in May and with 443, 373 tons in June, 1930

BOSTON TRADE GAINS NOTED

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review to be issued this week, will say regarding trade conditions in Boston that optimistic sentiment is gradually commanding more and more strength and, in some quarters, actual improvement is noticed, especially in the wool and leather trades, where price firmness is apparent and some slight advances already have been made

A large amount of domestic wool is being moved on rather narrow margins Down town manufacturers come reports of increased orders and, in a few instances, additional help

Wholesalers of men's wearing apparel report more advance orders than they had a week ago, and many women's apparel specialty stores are recording more sales

UNITED STATES SMELTING REFINING AND MINING COMPANY

The Directors of the United States Smelting Refining and Mining Company have declared a quarterly dividend of 1¼% on the 7% cumulative preferred capital stock, and a dividend of twenty-five cents per share on the Common Capital Stock, both payable on June 15, 1931 to stockholders of record at the close of business July 2, 1931.

STOCKS STRONG IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, July 10—The stock market in the last hour strengthened markedly, despite apathetic trading, in the later hours of today's session. The closing tone was strong.

Some prominent issues registered advances of 2 to 5 points, including U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Chesapeake Corp., American Tobacco B, Case, Allied Chemical, and Eastman.

MILLION SHARE DAY

Wall St. still watched intently the efforts of the French to unfreeze Reichsbank to raise a large long-term credit, but did not in the main feel that any difficulties would be encountered in taking care of German credit requirements.

Stocks had a solidified appearance. After a downward drift during the morning, short covering on publication of U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage report prompted a general rally, and several prominent issues soon registered gains of 2 points and more.

Shrinkage of 141,129 tons in forward business reported by U. S. Steel for the month of June was perhaps a little larger than expected, but a substantial decline had been generally anticipated.

DIVIDEND OUTLOOK

Maintenance of the $7 annual dividend rate on the common stock for quarter ending July 28 is generally, if none too confidently, expected in Wall St., although operating earnings for the quarter is believed to have been virtually nil.

Bethlehem declined somewhat more substantially than U. S. during the morning selling, and there is less inclination to look for maintenance of the current annual dividend rate at the meeting July 30.

While Wall St. looks for a renewal of the $100,000,000 international credit to the German Reichsbank, there seems to be no uniformity of opinion among leading bankers as to whether Wall St. should take additional measures to put funds at the disposal of the Reichsbank at this time.

The $200,000,000 credit advanced to the Bank of England a few years ago to help stabilize sterling exchange is frequently cited in discussions of the matter, and some feel that similar measures for the Reichsbank at this time might be justified.

On the part of other bankers here, however, there is a disposition to attribute much of the recent flight of capital from Germany to nervous exports of capital by German people, rather than withdrawals of foreign credits.

Recently published statistics on leather sole leather output also have made better showings than a year ago, as did June sales by General Motors.

NEW INVENTION ALMOST THINKS

Schenectady, N. Y., July 10—A new type electric switch has been perfected by engineers of General Electric Co. here. Some of the things it can perform, officials say, are: Turn lights on and off at dusk and dawn or any predetermined time before or after sunset and subsequent operations; turn on at desired days of the week; and start motors at the proper time to pump water from the day if desired and shutting them down at night. One switch can turn on and off the fire lights of a building at dusk, turn off hall lights at midnight and keep fire exit lights on until dawn.

"To duplicate possibilities of this switch," they said, "a man would need an almanac, a knowledge of latitude and longitude, a precise watch, a degree of mechanically far above the average and ability to be awake and alert at all hours."

Curb Market Moves Moderately Higher

New York, July 10—A return of aggressive bullish leadership in final hour of today's dealings put a definite halt to earlier sagging tendencies and established most active stocks at moderately higher price levels.

The utility group was in brisk demand late in the session, with covering on the part of short-sold members of this list materially.

Woolworth Abroad Having Good Year

London, July 10—W. L. Stephenson, chairman and managing director of F. W. Woolworth & Co., Ltd., says current business prospects are either record year. Sales for six months were up 11.86 per cent over like period of 1930. For five months the increase was 10.28 per cent. Despite general unsatisfactory business conditions June sales gained $8.09 per cent over June, 1930.

Airless Tire Is Called Superior

Akron, O., July 10—B. F. Goodrich Co. has perfected a new tubeless tire for industrial and agricultural tractors. It is constructed with a rubber arch built on a perforated steel base to be used on solid tire wheels. The new tire, while not under air pressure, is reputed to have more cushioning effect and greater traction ability than either pneumatic or solid tires.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Summer holiday excursionists to Ireland and England will set out from the Port of Boston on the Cunard liner Scythia, which sails from the Cunard Docks, East Boston.

Leading a large group on the excursion party will be Walter J. Brennan, of Boston, who is well known in the Masonic fraternity. He has conducted several excursions in the past.

As an attractive program of entertainment to take up every minute of the time during the Atlantic crossing has been arranged.

ARIZONAN DAMAGED

With her propeller damaged, the steamer Arizonan is heading at reduced speed for Balboa, according to a wireless report received in London and relayed to Boston. She was bound from San Francisco and other Pacific coast ports for New York, Philadelphia and Boston when the accident occurred.

FAST RUN

Making the fastest eastbound run since she was put in commission a year ago, A wireless message received from the White Star liner Britannic indicates that she may set up a record on this trip. She left Commonwealth Pier late Saturday night for Ireland and England. She expects to leave a capacity list of passengers at Queenstown Saturday morning at 70 o'clock.

VAGABOND CRUISERS

A group of Bostonians started out for Cuba, Panama and Costa Rica on the United Fruit Co. steamer, Tolca. Included in the list were: Ethel L. Williams and Annetta Dunphy of Boston; Margaret Powell of Medford; Angel Jasarian of Watertown; William Matthews of Hyde Park, and George W. Clark of Lynn.

TRAWLER CRASH

Report that the beam trawler Holy Cross was in collision with the barge Cocalico off Boston Lightship was made by Capt. Torney Nottestead of the trawler on his return to the Fish Pier from Georges Banks. The crash occurred while the trawler was outward bound to the fishing grounds on the morning of July 2. The Cocalico was the head barge of a tow of three being hauled by the tug Tamaqua to Philadelphia when the Holy Cross hit her in the bow planking on the port side of her pilot and covering boards and tearing away her towing bridges. Bending of two forward rails and a scraping off the bow paint was the only damage to the Holy Cross. An investigation will be held.

BALTIC SUNDAY

Reported 1187 miles east of the Boston Lightship, the White Star Line steamer Baltic was speeding along at noon yesterday expecting to arrive at Commonwealth Pier on Sunday at 2 p. m. She carries 26 cabin passengers, 31 tourist and 26 third class. A large cargo and mail is coming.

Ireland Is Happy

Erin Prospers Under Freedom

Frank A. Bayrd of Malden returns to tell us that the people of Ireland are among the few contented people in the world today.

They are working out their agricultural problems and the development of their immensely valuable waterpower and other natural resources and are enjoying a measure of prosperity long withheld from them and now infrequent among other Nations.

Mr. Bayrd would probably have said, if he had been asked, that Ireland's economic regeneration is largely due to the fact that the people of Ireland have some measure of freedom and some right to guide their own affairs.

One of the great Massachusetts litterateurs and patriots, probably it was Lowell, once exclaimed, when Ireland's illiteracy was held up as a reason against her plea for liberty, "Ireland's illiteracy is not the shame of Ireland but the shame of England."

The shillelah and the blackthorn and Donnybrook fair were held up as examples of Ireland. They were false symbols, fashioned by the propaganda of her oppressor desirous of holding her in captivity.

Mr. Bayrd's observation proves these symbols to be untrue. The people of Ireland are capable of working out their own salvation when given even half a chance.

He Burned His Books

A Doctor Leaves No Unpaid Accounts

All the stores and business houses in Uxbridge were closed and flags were unfurled at half-mast while the mortal remains of Dr. William L. Johnson were committed to "the earth from which he sprang."

Shortly before his end, Dr. Johnson wrote a will in which he ordered that all his account books be destroyed. He wanted no bills outstanding against his patients.

The country doctor of Dr. Johnson's type brings his patients into the world, watches them develop into manhood and womanhood, tends them in their serious illnesses, knows their strengths and frailties as neighbor, friend and medical counsellor.

So long as his type exists, the people of the rural towns of New England at least will be free from "medical trusts" and "outrageously high fees" which have attracted the vocal complaint of Dr. Bigelow, the State Commissioner of Health for Massachusetts.

'Seven Come Eleven!'

Tepe Gawra, which is in Mesopotamia, is now for a brief time at least as important as Neanderthal or Piltdown in the chronicles of ancient man.

Dr. Speiser, of the University of Pennsylvania, did some digging there, and turned up a pair of dice. He proves they were used as far back as 3750 B. C. The festive aborigines at Tepe Gawra probably used them to play tric-trac or backgammon.

This upsets all previous theories. Dice were supposed to have been invented by Queen Hatsu, 1600 B. C., who was an inveterate tosser of the knucklebones. The cry of "seven come eleven," or its Latin equivalent, rang a century later in old Rome. A bushel of dice has been dug up in buried Pompeii. But most of the specimens, we regret to say, were loaded.

We await with anxiety Dr. Speiser's report on whether the Tepe Gawrans' cubes were straight or not. The University of Pennsylvania has a backgammon board 3000 years old. A game with this aged set-up ought to be exciting and should promote interest in archaeology.

Sic Transit Gloria

The great men of today are not comparable with the illustrious figures of sixty-five years agoñ Bishop Shayler of Nebraska, opines. He asks us to consider some of them "whose names stand in majestic prominence," and gives as examples Whittier and Longfellow.

Most of us feel that something has been lost. We should like to see recaptured today something of the patriarchal dignity that graced our species decades ago. Life was then regarded as solemn and earnest, both by statesmen and poets, and the political quip or the slick rhyme was not its goal.

A statesman with a massive head and a venerable beard hardly fits into our scheme of life any more. Our leading poets lack the prestige of longevity, and they do not sound the profounder chords. Neither have they beards, since they are mostly very young ladies.

Unlike the French, we could not elect a septuagenarian to the Presidency. And luxuriant whiskers help no one to get rhymes into the magazines. Other times, other ways.

The Comedy---A Year After

After a year in office, Prohibition Director Woodcock has begun to think that the way to deal with the drinker is to "leave him to his own conscience."

This, as every child knows, is what many millions of citizens have thought ever since the dry law went "into effect" ten years ago.

For a militant Prohibitionist, this sounds like a confession of failure. And to advocate the revival of "temperance education," with more dreadful pictures in school books, showing what happens to the insides of the drinker, seems old-hat and also very funny. Especially now when it has been shown that alcohol has nothing to do with cirrhosis of the liver.

Dr. Woodcock sees a faint ray of hope in that "sooner or later all violators are caught." Caught, yes, sometimes. And when they are released, they start all over again, and add to the gayety of nations—and the enforcement bill.

A Wise Shopper

Is Man Worth While?

A ROCK must be worth while.
And to make rocks different.

Earthquake and fire,
Icecapand flood,
All these it took to make
Marble, obsidian,
Granite and quartz.
All that work to make rocks,
All that skill to preserve
The difference in rocks,
Rocks must be worth while.

Elsie Robinson

A tree must be worth while.
Aeons, also, to turn slime
Into white birches,
Sycamore, pine.
All that work to make trees,
All hat skill to preserve
The difference in trees,
Trees must be worth while.
A bird must be worth while.
Think how birds came—
From web-legged lizard
To bright, winged song
Of blue bird and wood thrush,
And kildee and lark.
All that work to make birds,
All that skill to preserve
The difference in birds—
A bird must be worth while.
Then is man, alone,
Not worth while?

It has taken as long to develop
The individuality of men,
As to develop the individuality
Of trees and rocks and birds—
But are these lesser forms
To be saved,
And a man's personality
Obliterated?
Will Life work fifty million years
To preserve the pattern
Of a gnat's wing,
And discard the pattern
Of a man's spirit
After fifty?
"But trees and gnats and birds
Are species," you say—
"Only species persist."
Yet, marvelously,
Each man is also a species,
A separate development,
As different from all other men
As elms are different from oaks,
Or hawks from wrens,
Or coal from crystals.
He is of the human breed,
As trees are of the vegetable breed,
But he is also himself,
As a willow is itself—
If willows go on,
Why shouldn't you and I?
All this work to make men,
To make different men,
To make you and me,
With our separate
And distinct responsibilities—
With our varied capacity for work
And love and thought and dreams.
All this work
To make us worth while—
And now will Life
Break the pattern,
Quench the flame,
Blot us into mud again,
Wast. aeons of efforts
Because we neglect
A cold in the head?
I DON'T BELIEVE IT!

WITH THERMOMETER registering 100 the agricultural experts in Washington worked on the cotton crop report behind locked doors and windows in a hermetically sealed room. Their figures give all the cotton in America, not including what they were spitting by the time they had completed their statistics.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, July 10—Thoughts while strolling: What became of slate roofs? Carlotta Monterey has the blackest hair I ever saw. Those writing twins—Helen Josephy and Mary Margaret McBride. They are calling gigolos "Willie Vanillas." Who remembers cartoons of Bryan with dove of peace eggs in his locks?

Channing Pollock, a Washington, D. C., boy who made good in the city. Rosita, the "Spanish dancer," born Mary Louise Harnrack of Waco, Texas. And her dancing husband, Ramon, who dropped studying medicine to entertain in night clubs. Why is ditchwater always considered dull?

Midget cars like darting otters. Charles Morton Bellak, who owns Villa Vallee, and started life as an architect. Many who used to weekend at Tuxedo now slip down to Coney for an evening dip. Anyway, we have had a lot of fun feeling sorry for ourselves the past year.

Frank Crowninshield seems New York's most popular bachelor. He bears a physical resemblance to Count Boni. This is a fine way for a full grown man to fritter his time away. That venerable Broadway messenger "boy" with a thin white beard—like frosty fuzz on a withered twig.

The innocent savagery of those dance hall girls. Bright red paint, glittering bracelets and dangling earrings. Nothing confuses me like the fluttering tingle of a bicycle bell, approaching from the rear. I immediately go into a dance. Jack Benny knows how to wear a hat.

Everybody loves New York and everybody wants to get away from it. Or is that a platitude? But wasn't it Don Marquis who said the trick of paragraphing was to stroke a platitude until it purrs like an epigram? A "Button Hospital for Bachelors," Arthur Hammerstein in front of his bankrupt theater.

Those Gay '90 hotels with rose bud lounges and mirrors framed in lump girl. Wonder if Diamond Jim Brady is conscious of Broadway changes! Morris Aleshire in riding togs. Correspondence school sign: "Learn journalism and you'll thrill millions." Do I seem to be gyping anyone?

Some time ago on a curb in front of a famous old restaurant on 14th street I idled with a crowd watching a hawker dispose of wrist watch bands—"fit any watch, cool, comfortable and smart—only 25 cents." As he barked along he interpolated: "I read your column," which catapulted my vanity into a somersault. The audience, of course, did not understand his aside. As I walked away he continued: "Give us guys a break some day. After all we are only trying to make a living." So here it is.

The top notch street spieler was a half blind fellow, known to his guild as Flash Ike. He passed on some ten years ago but in his day made more than $100 a week. He sold patented tie clasps in the city, horseshoe nail rheumatism rings in the country, and attracted a crowd in a jiffy by suddenly clapping his hands and placing three articles, a quarter, a handkerchief and a lead pencil, a few steps apart. That was his "flash"—everybody expected him to perform some feat of legerdemain which he never did. But he had a way of lashing his audience into buying that was a gift. He was reported to be a product of the London slums.

Bill Halligan says things are so bad in Hollywood that many are going to try to get along with this year's divorce until things pick up.

In East 47th street is a millinery shop—Daisy, Phillip and Martha. Every time I pass I always peep in in the hope of seeing Phillip. I'd like to know how he got in the firm. And today my wife received a lingerie announcement from "Imogene and Ida, formerly Clara."

Just Folks

The Foolish Fisherman

There was a foolish fisherman who sat beneath a tree
Upon the river bank and kept his rod across his knee.
His face was long and solemn and great furrows lined his brow
And this he sadly said to me: "The fish aren't biting now!"

"Why don't you bait your hook?" said I. "The stream is flowing by.
You might perchance catch something here if only you would try.
You have the rod, the line, the hook—just turn your tackle loose
And fish the stream for all you're worth." He muttered: "What's the use?"

"My neighbors tried a month ago, they all came back at night

"There must be fish in here," I said. "Yes, maybe one or two,
But I'm not going to work all day and only get a few.
I'm going to sit beneath this tree and wait until I know

Pretty Girls of Today

And a Good Example From Asia

THREE GIRLS, THREE SMILES, THREE CIGARETTES

Women young and old wanted to be FREE and they ARE free; this picture proves it. Perhaps they have been free all the time and we simply didn't know it.

It is refreshing to look at the three little English girls, dressed up in modern clothing and attending an exhibition for the benefit of the "Children's Holiday Fund."

They seem quite "care free," and the young lady in the middle, you will notice, is wearing a contraption that combines eccentricity with modesty. You may be shocked by the "pajama dress," but in a high wind it has its advantages, if you want advantages of that kind.

The three smiles, the three dresses, the care-free expressions and the three cigarettes are typical of the girls of our day.

In that second picture you see the Japanese ambassador to England, and his wife, Mme. Matsudaira, and daughter, Mlle. Mairi Matsudaira.

These ladies, if you choose, are not quite as dashing as the three girls above, and the Japanese ambassador hasn't the care-free, "worry-go-hang" look of a modern English boy in roomy trousers and no hat.

But of one thing you may be sure. These sedate costumes worn by the family of the Japanese ambassador will survive and outlast our modern dress and modern manners.
